Hon J Parker Jordan, of Washington, D O, is in the city, and is the guest of his sonin-law, Mr C N G Butt. October is half gone, and it don't seem more than a few days since we said this same thing about September (1970) Yesterday the darkies and small boys browsed over the circus grounds with the hope of finding money and other valuables lying around loose. This will be a night when a policeman can say in the language of Beecher: "I even wish that I were dead." The best that we can wish for them is that nobody will accommodate them.

Mr Cole, the proprietor of the New York and New Orleans Circus, said he had a larger crowd at Shelby than he has had at any point in the Southern States. The canvass was so packed that the sale of tickets had to be suspended.

Gloomy Weather.

This is dreadfully "blue" weather, It suses one to feel despondent and to feel that one has no friends. A person's spirits partake more or less, all the time, of the nature of the weather, and this being so, the present spell give ones right to experience somewhat of a ragged edge sensation. We hope there will be an improvement soon.

A New Letter. 10 8 1 / 1 / 2

Cox is out with a new letter for the al phabet-"eg," and is fond of spelling eggnog with it, thus: "e double eg egg, k-n-o-double eg nog, egg nog. This is also the short way, he says, of spelling dog: "d-o-eg." The circus inspired George to this invention, and he promises to be on hand again to-night.

The Rain.

The "clouds which lowered upon our house" for 48 hours, broke yesterday putation without merit—and this is not at all afternoon, and a steady rain fell between that time and night, after which it grew heavy. Everything was drenched, and the rain continued at intervals until midnight. At this writing there is some prospect of a fair day ahead.

Will Be Here in December.

We have received a letter from John Templeton, the actor, in which he expresses regret that he failed to meet his engagement in Charlotte, and says that he is re-engaged for Richmond and Washington in December, at which time he will make Charlotte from Columbia

Time's Changes. The times change and the people with them, Yesterday we heard a man who used to speak of his present wife before they were married, as "the dearest darling little duck, with the most glorious eyes and most musical voice," offer to bet two to one that she could heave a skillet 20 yards, and hit a man on the bump of "conjugal affection"

Prolific Cotton

Mr. 6. L. Gibson brought to our office last evening, a stalk of cotton which contained 36 large, well-grown Haupt, Capt J R Macmurdo, Col A bolls. It was raised from the Cheater Pope and F W Clarke, Esq., of roads ham seed, on the plantation of Capt. Sam White, near Fort Mill, S. C. The bolls were so thick on the stalk as to almost crowd each other.

Our A. T. & O. Subscribers.

Subscribers to the OBSERVER on the line of the Atlantic, Tennessee & Ohio Railroad, are notified that their papers will henceforth be delivered by the morning train. This is not the mail train, and our subscribers are indebted to the courtesy of Mr W R Myers, Jr., the accommodating conductor of the morning train, for the early delivery of their to the public has been prepared and repapers.

The improvement in prices has caused quite a considerable influx of cotton in the past few days, the farmers taking advantage of the rise to sell their year's product. The receipts of two 448 bales being the sales of Wednesday, and 542 the sales yesterday.

The Reason Why blind bus sair What caused Howes Circus agent to follow Cole's procession up so closely on Thurs day, distributing bills, was that some of Cole's agents had had bills printed and circulated in the country, saying the two great shows had been consolidated and would exhibit in Charlotte on Thursday. This taking advantage of Cole's crowd to advertise Howes' business, was a sharp trick which was resorted to by way of getting even.

Howes' Great London Circus,

To-day we have this mammoth exposition and it will no doubt be well attended. The fact of its near approach had a good deal to do, we doubt not, with the smallness of the crowd at Cole's circus on Thursday, the country people holding back for Howes' today. We only know of this exhibition through our exchanges. They are unanimous in saying that the street pageant is gorgeons beyond comparison with anything of the kind that has ever been South, and that the circas and menageric are both very fine. We are prepared for a magnificent exhibition, and unless this show has won its reprobable-we will not be disappointed. We have no hesitancy in saying to show goers, that they will be repaid by a visit today or to-night to the Great London Circus.

Another Old Citizen Gone.

We regret to record the death of S H Elliott, Esq., who died at his residence 61 miles South of Charlotte, on yesterday morning, aged 77 years. Mr Elliott was the father of Mr J A Elliott, of this city, and the father-in-law of Capt W W Pegram. He was a native of this county, and, as indicated above, was one of its oldest citizens. He was a man of the most exemplary character, honest and upright in all his dealings, one who had many warm friends and who won the respect of all who ever knew him. Mr Elliott was one of the landmarks of Mecklenburg county, and

The deceased has many connections in this city and county. He was a nephew of Mrs Susannah Smart and of Mr Jack Barnett, both of whom occupy prominent positions in the revolutionary history of Mecklenburg.

The Railroad Pooling Convention.

We mentioned in Wednesday's OB SERVER that the railroad pooling convention, of which a good deal has been said lately, would meet that day in At lanta, and that Col A S Buford, Gen H leading into this city, had gone to at tend it. The Atlanta Herald, says of the convention that there was considerable discussion on many points that were brought to issue; but they finally agreed to maintain rates, and appointed Mr Albert Fink, General Commissioner of the Association to see that the regulations were carried out, and to adjust all matters of difference between any of the railroads. Each Railroad and Steamship Company appoints Mr Fink its own agent for the regulation of its competitive business. An address ferred to the committee to publish, and will be furnished the papers in a few days. The pooling of business is left optional with the roads terminating at each competitive point.

To Visit the Salisbury Fair.

At their meeting held last night, the Hornet Steam Fire Engine Company decided to accept a courteous invitation which had been extended them, and go in a body to the Salisbury Fair on Thursday of next week. They will remain only one day, going over in the morning and returning in the evening. The members of the company are de: sirous of taking their engine, for exhibition and for practice, and would appreciate the act if the North Carolina Railroad would pass it free of freight charges, or at least at a greatly reduced rate. We hope they can make some arrangement whereby the engine can be taken, as it is a very handsome one, and it, together with the gentlemen composing the company, will reflect high credit upon Charlotte.

In this connection we may mention that the Mecklenburg Base Ball Club will visit our sister town on the same occasion, to competed for the silver pitcher offered, and the championship of the State. We are betting on them, and hope they will bring the pitcher back with them.

Did Not Tarry Long. All Miss

On Thursday night a lady and gentleman who had evidently just arrived on same train, drove up in a hack to a private boarding house in this city, and asked for accommodation. They were both well dressed, and their we chronicle his demise with feelings whole appearance and bearing were those of genteel people. They had no trunks, only two or three satchels or traveling bags and it being supposed that the baggage would arrive next morning, no questions were asked, and the best room in the house was prepared for them. They were shown to this at once. Before the proprietor of the house retired, he heard the man come down the steps and pass out of the house. He concluded then that his guest belonged to the "sporting" fraternity, and that he had gone up town to engage for a few hours in his nightly. business, and so no attention was paid to the circumstance. Yesterday morning the couple did not appear at breakfast, and as it was supposed that the man had been up nearly all night and was then sleeping, they were not disturbed. The dinner hour approaching and still no sound proceeding from the room, it was thought best to wake the new guests. The room was entered, but no guests were BEAUTIFUL there. The birds had flown. Whither, no one knew. Not a thing in the room had been moved, and the bed was untouched The conduct of the people was strange, and is still unaccounted for. 1 40

"See winter comes, to rule the varied year Sullen and sad, with all his rising train? Vapours and clouds and storms."

There is every indication of the near approach of the winter. All nature wears a soberer hue, and soon the leaves will flutter and fall to the ground, to be driven about by the wind, which will sigh among the leafless branches.
