CITY BULLETIN.

Only two Sundays intervene between today and Christmas.

No services to-day, in the Tryon Street Methodist or the Lutheran Church.

There was no Mayor's Court again yesterday morning.

The Board of County Commissioners will meet at the Court House to-morrow in regular monthly session.

To walk on stilts is now the juvenile mania, and every other shaver that you meet on the streets, rears his head as high as the average man.

The horse which ran the last day in the Augusta races, and which was reported as Abd-el-Rose, was really Abd-el-Koree, of this city, and should have been so printed.

A negro employee of the Air Line Railroad, attempted to steal a pair of pants from the store of Mr. J. Moyer, on Trade street, last night. He was harnessed and locked up.

The Executive Committee of the Mecklenburg Bible Society is requested to meet Monday at 11 A. M., at the A. R. Presbyterian Chapel. All officers are invited to attend.

Sol Smith Russell is free in a measure, at least, from the public gaze. Nobody dared look him straight in the face, yesterday, in the hotel, or on the streets, for fear of snickering out.

We are very much indebted to the Winston Sentinel and Statesville American for what they so kindly say of us, and a sure thing that their words shall stimulate us to renewed endeavors to become worthy of their handsome compliments.

Yesterday we saw two turkeys, one grown fairly on top of the other; both about the same size and one white and the other yellow. They or it, as you please, were or was raised by Mr. John McAllister, about three miles from the city.

We are requested to say that a congregational meeting will be held at the Second Presbyterian Church after service this morning, and all who are interested in the welfare of the congregation are earnestly requested to remain.

Deferred.

The speech of Hon. L. Q. C. Lamar, chairman of the caucus of the Democratic members of the House of Representatives at Washington City, on yesterday, came to us over the wires last night and this morning, but, owing to its length, we are compelled to defer its publication until our next issue, when its full text will be given.

The temperature.

The weather yesterday reminded one forcibly of the holiday season, when the great log fires of the country hamlet roar and crackle as though imbuing the spirit and reflecting the happiness of the family circle, and great fires of the city mansion send out a glow of the warmth that begets a comfort peculiar to the reign of Santa Claus.

Acquitted of the Charge.

We understand that the trial of the man Howard at Statesville, for the killing of a negro a few months ago, was concluded on Friday evening, and resulted in the acquittal of the prisoner. He was defended by Messrs. R. F. Armfield and R. Z. Linney, and prosecuted by Solicitor General, Col. J. M. McCorkle and Maj. J. W. Wright. The jury were not absent from the Court-room more than half an hour. The man alleges that he killed the negro while the latter was robbing his hen-roost, and no evidence was adduced to show to the contrary. Howard was accordingly discharged from custody.

Farmers' Savings Bank—Resignation and Election of Officers

At a recent meeting of the Directors of the above named institution, Thos. L. Vail, Esq., offered his resignation as Cashier, the same to take effect on the 15th inst. The resignation was accepted, and C. N. G. Butt, Esq., the present Assistant Cashier, was elected to fill the vacancy. In the retirement of Mr. Vail, the bank will lose a good business man and a faithful officer; we regret to learn that the state of his health is such that he cannot longer bear the confinement of the position which he has so ably filled. Mr. Butt, the new Cashier, will prove in every way a worthy successor. He is an excellent business man, a courteous and popular gentleman, and his accession to the Cashiership will prove eminently satisfactory to all who have any dealings with the institution.

At the same meeting when the above business was transacted, B. T. McDowell, Esq., was elected Vice-President of the Bank.

Gene North.

Mr Koppel, business agent for Mrs C N Bodfish, went North last night to purchase the third Stock of Goods this Fall. This is something unprecedented in the Millinery and Fancy Goods business, and shows at once Mr Koppel's tact and judgment, in knowing exactly what to buy to meet the requirements of customers in his line. He asks his friends to withhold their purchases for Christmas until his return.

A Nice Repast.

Last night a waiter from the restaurant of the H P Daniels, was brought into this office, on which waiter was a note stating that what it bore was for the editorial staff, and in addition to this, three square meals composed of coffee, pecans and potatoes, some crackers, and divers other things which the lateness of the hour rendered highly palatable. The arrangement showed just how nice a meal Mr. Daniels can get up. The material was excellent and the manner of its preparation unexceptionably good. Our sympathy with the restaurant enables us to recommend it very cordially to our readers, and we are sure that when the merits become better known it will enjoy a large run of custom.

Attempt at Incendiarism Charged.

On yesterday a colored woman named Adeline Meas, an employe in the household of Capt. Clarkson, was arraigned on the charge of setting fire to the bed of another colored woman in the same service, a night or two ago. When the woman returned from church, she found a lamp lit under the bed, and two bed ticks burned clear through. The kitchen and house are connected, and fifteen minutes later both would have been wrapped in flames. The alleged cause of the attempt to burn up the bed, is jealousy. The evidence, however, was not sufficiently strong to make out a case against the woman, and she was accordingly discharged.

Superior Court.

This body adjourned yesterday afternoon, after a very arduous session of two weeks, during which time a great deal of business was transacted. The criminal proceedings we have carefully given each day, and were summed up in yesterday's paper. A considerable number of cases on the civil docket were also disposed of, but this was materially interfered with by the large amount of criminal business. The Judge has shown a willingness to dispatch business, and has done what he could to diminish the number of cases on the docket.

The Court was employed all day yesterday with the motion docket, and a number of motions were heard and disposed of. His Honor goes hence to Concord, where Cabarrus Court opens to-morrow.

December.

We have fairly begun the dark month which is the opening of the winter season. Like the three preceding months, December derives its name from the place which it held in the old Roman calendar, where the year was divided normally, only into ten months, with the insertion of supplementary days, to complete the period required for a revolution of the earth round the sun. By the ancient Saxons December was styled Winter monath or winter month; a term which after their conversion to Christianity, was changed to Hilgh-monath or holy month, from the anniversary, which occurs in it, of the birth of Christ. Among the modern Germans, December is still, from this circumstance, distinguished by the style of Christ monath.

Endowment for Stonewall Jackson Daughter.

The following is an extract from a circular concerning a movement which, we are informed, will be started simultaneously in Virginia and Georgia, and which will doubtless receive the loving favor of all the South. The movement has received the approbation of General James L. Kemper, Governor of Virginia, and is now in the hands of one of Georgia's pet heroes for advice and consideration. The circular emanated from Charlottesville, Va., and the following is an extract:

"A movement is now on foot to endow little Julia, the child of Stonewall Jackson, and it is in such hands as will doubtless make it a success worthy of the name and fame of the great man whom two worlds unite to honor. The soldiers and their families are making the movement, and chieftains endorse it. Only in sums of one dollar and hundredth parts of one dollar, will subscriptions be received, that all may partake of this feast of love, gratitude and honor, and none be debarred.

"Soldiers, what would you give to Jackson's living? What ought you to give to Jackson's child?"

The Opera House Last Evening.

The Berger Concert Company performed before a splendid assemblage at the Charlotte Opera House last evening, and before an audience which enjoyed the entertainment with a zest which was very complimentary to the performers. The company has been much strengthened since last season, and certainly afforded a delightful entertainment last evening. The music is splendid. Miss Anna Morgan has a very sweet voice and her songs were warmly applauded. Miss Anna Berger's cornet solo was very fine, and her serio-comic songs were greatly enjoyed. The violin solo by Miss Emma Klasy was splendidly executed, and the music of the bells was so soft, sweet and attractive as ever.

As for Sol Smith Russell and the part which he took, we cannot say too much. He is indubitably, we do not believe that his like exists. "The Boarding House Mistress" he represented here, brought down the house, and his voice was several times lost in the applause. His character songs and representations were unsurpassable; people laughed till they cried and their sides ached. To be brief, the whole entertainment is of such a character as to commend itself to any audience. Mr. Henry Berger tells us that they have had an unprecedentedly successful season, and we are not surprised to hear

Somewhat of a Muse.

The cotton men and the three shipping lines from here, are all mixed up. Some time ago, it may be remembered, we published an article which had been agreed upon by the Piedmont Air Line, the Carolina Central Dispatch Line, and the Atlantic Coast Line for carrying cotton from Charlotte to New York. Well, it seems that first one of these roads and then another has violated this contract by cutting rates in favor of certain firms. By this means these firms are enabled to pay considerably more for cotton than the others, and the question arises with them, "how can this thing be?" and the cotton brokers thus mixed up with each other. Then the railroads come in and each demands to know what the other means by going back on its contract. The agents of these lines have just held a meeting in this city to see what is going to be done about it, and one agent threatens that if the thing is continued he will begin to carry cotton for $1.50.

What was finally done, we have not been able to learn, since the agents refuse to divulge anything to us. The facts of the case and the meeting were just accidentally picked up "round about."

The Struggling Poor.

"The poor ye have always with you," is the text which we shall select for a little Sunday morning discourse. The approach of winter bids forcibly to remembrance the condition of the struggling poor. The poor are always with us or among us. Charlotte has its full proportion, and even, perhaps, more of this element in its thousands of population. The Southern Confederacy that presents everywhere throughout its vast extent, spectacles of struggling poverty. There is a melancholy pleasure in giving voice to woe. The burden of sorrow is partially relieved by ventilation in utterance. And by the fitting remembrance of the fact that such large masses of our fellow-citizens, not only in other parts, but at our own doors, are struggling hard under the weight of poverty, the golden ties of broad, sympathetic humanity, are strengthened and brightened. The greatest benefit that one man can confer upon another is to give him employment, or aid and qualification for being self-sustaining. A man worthy the name of man can be willing, as long as health and strength last, to be an idle beneficiary upon the bounty of others. Still the rich man can not be justified in drying up the milk of human kindness, and ignoring the claims of the suffering as well as struggling poor, with their wives and little ones, when the chilling blasts of winter howl around and through their humble abodes, and want is preying upon their vitals.

The trials of poverty, like fire upon gold, have a purifying energy; and many of the finest, and noblest examples of patient endurance, high-souled honor, and generous magnanimity, are found in the ranks of the poor and needy. Their moral escutcheon has remained untarnished amid temptation. Heroism for the right, and over-much confidence in the designing, have caused numbers to be the victims of destitution. Even a pleasant smile in passing, and a kind word of cheer or encouragement, from generous impulse, would many a time prove a reviving cordial to a desponding spirit.

Magdalen's Gone to a House of Refuge.

Rev. Father Gross, the priest of the Roman Catholic Church of Wilmington, was in this city last week, and while here encountered two girls, inmates of the Exchange Hotel, a house of ill repute, who yielded to his entreaties and agreed to abandon their lives of shame. One of these was J. Flynn, a girl who has been here for several years, and the other was comparatively a stranger, having but recently come. The first is of Irish birth and Catholic education, and was by reason of these things, rendered more approachable to a Catholic priest. She is first persuaded by the man of God, and her influence then carried her companion with her. They confided to accept the offer made them, and, throwing aside their flashy togethery—memorials of the days of their wickedness—arrayed themselves in plain dresses, and, accompanied by the priest, left for Wilmington, whence they shipped to New York, where they will enter an asylum for magdalenas.

There are few we imagine, however wicked, who will not experience some emotion of gratification upon reading this little story of how two repentant women, all stained with guilt, have abandoned the paths of sin and entered upon new lives. May the merciful God-Man, who knows the frailties of poor weak human nature, take them to his bosom, and cleanse them with the blood which was shed upon Calvary for the remission of sin; and may He, in the plenitude of His pardoning love, enable them to restrain their feet from the ways which lead down to death, and lead them in the ways everlasting.

And let not the finger of scorn be pointed by a christian people at him who was the instrument in God's hands beginning this reformation; who sacrificed his time, his money, with the hope of no reward, other than the proudly "well done" from Him who alone has the right to judge of our thoughts or question our motives. If he who gives a cup of cold water to a disciple in the name of a disciple shall not lose his reward, how much more shall he not lose his reward who smashes a soul as a brand from the eternal burning?

LIFE INSURANCE

CHARLOTTE, N. C.,
December 4, 1875.

Man's Error:—I have just received information on Life Insurance generally, that in the last issue of the Democrat, I ask the publication of the subjoined official exhibit. Life Insurance Companies in the United States, from their contracts have paid out to policy holders over $200,000,000 and have at least $400,000,000 more invested for their benefit.

One of $725 death benefit, or 1.5 per cent. can be had without litigation. Can any other business show such a record? This certainly doesn't look much like "Meddling the people's money."

I have sought publicity through the Observer as it was declined by the editor of the Democrat.
