CITY BULLETIN.

First day of the new year. Now for the good resolutions for '76. Shall it be wine or coffee, to-day?

"Nothing doing," anywhere, yesterday. The stock law in effect on and after to day. The schools of the city will generally resume on Monday.

The sale of the property of B Koopmann takes place to-day. See ad. The holiday season has about closed, and everything and everybody is settling down to the accustomed routine.

The hop of the Hebrew Benevolent Society, will take place on Friday evening next at the Commercial Reading Rooms. Katie Putnam will give us "Jane Eyre" to-night, instead of "The Daughter of the Regiment," as first advertised. The First National and the Merchants' and Farmers National Banks of this city, have both declared dividends of five per cent. Some of the young gentlemen will call today, but we do not think that they will turn out generally. The ladies, we believe, will very generally receive.

The office of the Democrat has been moved and will henceforth be in Mr Yates' red front building on Trade Street, opposite the Merchants' and Farmers National Bank.

The feilow who was to have been seen about 1 o'clock this morning, stretched out on the side of a pavement, dead drunk, was having "a cappy new year.

It is due the young man who remarked on the streets, yesterday, "well, they don't pin near as tight as they used to," to say that he was not at the hop on Thursday night.

Newslessness.

This weather casts a damper upon the spirits of the persevering scribe. He would not mind wading through the mud if anything could be picked up even then : but nothing is transpiring and news is absolutely non est; so that it is about as good luck to sit still and write nonsense lite this, as to run around to no purpose.

Removal of School.

- Mrs Waring has moved her school from the basement of the Lutheran Church, to her residence on West Tryon street, and the pext session will begin on Monday, the 3d inst. Mrs W has been teaching for a long. while in this city, and has always given great satisfaction to her patrons, She is an excellent instructress, and we trust that she will have a full school next session.

Presentation to an Employer.

We have been shown an elegant ebony cane with gold head, which Meisrs J M Shelley, W J Orr, Lindsay Davis and D H Anderson, employees of the extensive grocery firm of R M Miller & Sone, on last evening presented to the senior member of the firm, "as a slight token of their very high respect and esteem," as they state in their note to the recipient. It is a beautiful and valuable cane, and the presentation was a very graceful act on the part of the gentlemen who made it.

The New Year.

Now is ushered in the year of grace, 1876. The great wheel of Time has made another grand revolution, and we find ourselves at the threshold of another year. Another twelve-month has gone by, and

'What's past, and what's to come, is strew'd with husks, And formless ruin of oblivion."

And so the world wags. Most of us are no better and no more useful at the commencement of to-day, than we were at this time last year, and many of us are just as thoughtless and just as unconcerned about the moments which are passing away. "Thus we play the fools with the time, and the spirits of the wise sit in the clouds and mock us." An Ingenious Piece of Work,

We saw yesterday, at the store af Wittkowsky & Rintels, a beautiful and ingeniously contrived lady's work box, which was made by Mr M C Benson, of this city, and presented to his wife. Mr B is employed as a pattern maker in the shops of the Charlotte, Columbia & Augusta Railroad at Columbia. The box is made of 1,628 separate and distinct pieces of wood, the whole top and sides being one after another separate piece, some of them so small as to be almost invisible to the naked eye. Yet all are laid with such perfect precision, as to form even rows. which, at a little distance, look as if the top and sides were grooved. The box is highly finished and is one of the prettiest specimens of its kind that we ever saw. In its mechanism Mr Benson has displayed great Black silk wrappers made by this pattern are worn for house dresses almost all day. The brocade cashmeres in dark rich colors are also very handsome robes.

As was to have been expected, the Opera House was filled last evening with the refinement of Charlotte: a more cultivated audience has never assembled there, and the success which Miss Katie Putnam and her company achieved, was such as must have been very gratifying to them. Nothing could afford a better field for the display of versatility than the two leading characters in "The Old Curiosity Shop;" and the dual role of the "Marchioness" and "Little Nell." as assumed by Miss Putnam, could not have been improved. Of course the character of "Little Nell" does not strike the popular fancy as much as does that of the "Marchioness," for people would rather laugh than be made sad; but to our mind Katie Putnam's representation of the former is not a whit inferior to her representation of the latter, and as the"Marchioness" she is unapproachable. We have no doubt that it is true, as it is said, that she is the only "Marchioness" on the American stage. There is nowhere in all of Dickens' writings, to be found a more natural or a more interesting character than this same bright, rollicking, ignorant, half-staryed and ill-treated servant girl : and Miss Putnam has a full appreciation of the character which the great author intended to portray. In the other role, all of the sweetness, nobility and selfsacrificing love of "LittleNell," is beautifully and strongly brought out by this brilliant and captivating artiste. Katie Putnam last night strengthened her hold upon the people of Charlotte-and it was already a strong Her company is a good one. Mr. Pratt made a very creditable Swiveler; Mr. Coon, as Grandfather Trent, was very fine, and the parts of Quilp, Slam, Brass, and Kit, were taken with more than ordinary ability. This afternoon we will have the charming play of "Little Barefoot," in the matinee, and to-night the great play of "Jane Eyre," We hope to see a crowded house on both ocons. We reproduce herewith, what the Norfolk Landmark, of the 24th ult., says of this company's rendition of the last named drama:

"Katie Putnam committed a mistake by not producing "Jane Eyre, the Orphan of Lowood," at the first of her engagement. Last night she schieved a triumph so grand that her reputation as one of the most brilliant stars on the American stage is estab-lished so far as the opionion of Norfolk and down the centre of the back and over the tournurs. The side seams no longer begin at the shoulder seams, as of old, but start with the centre ones from the back of the ity and truthfulness to nature; but as a Jane Byre she rises to the sublimity of a noble, pure and glorious womanhood. Last night her impersonation of this character was perfection itself.

In speaking thus strongly of the rendition of Jane Eyre we do not forget the credit due to those who impersonated the other characters. Mr. Sullivan as Lord Rochester is deserving of the highest praise. The balance of the characters were good—we may justly use the stronger term, excellent."

Mayor's Court .- His Honor the Mayor had no cases on his docket, yesterday morning. Before Justice Davidson .- A white man named J M Rudge, charged with passing a $10 counterfeit bill upon Ludwig & Fisschesser, on Thursday evening. It was in evidence that the man was from Union county, and that he only came to the city yesterday morning. The prosecutor did not swear positively to the man, and the Justice regarded it as a case of mistaken identity and discharged the defendant.

A negro named Geo. Stowe was up for striking the handless boy, Henry Wilson, and was fined $2 and cost, Being unable to pay it, he was placed in the hands of the officers.

Before Justice McNinch .- Ky, Lawrence, colored, for forging a note; bound over in $300. Champion Crowell, colored, charged with complicity in the same matter, was acquitted. Scott Robinson, colored, a witness in the case, was subsequently convicted of perjuring himself in his testimony. He swore positively to the handwriting of Crowell, but afterwards acknowledged that he had only seen it once. Crowell's counsel. W H Bailey, Esq., asked him if he could read, and received an affirmative answer. Counsel then wrote on a slip of paper "fiat justitiu ruat coelum," and handed it to him to read. Ropinson pondered over it for some time and finally responded that he could only make out the first part of it, and that was "Charlotte, North Carolina." Upon this, the Justice ordered Robinson to jail, and he 396, 398, in Register's Office of Gaston counwas started off, in charge of Messrs King the Court House in Dallas. on Thursday and Seagraves, When near the jail, he the 30th day of December 1875, the followbroke from his guard and ran. [COMMUNICATED]

The Mining Interest of This Section. MESSES EDITORS : Believing that any information affecting the extensive mining interests of this section will be appreciated by hundreds of your readers, the following is respectfully offered, hoping it may tend to stimulate a revival of a once prominent, but neglected industry of this State. A recent article published presents a hopeful prospect of future operations, based upon new discoveries in treating our refractory ores. The mining of metals has alternated between success and failure, but a more promising era is appearing, and mining will be deprived of uncertain ties. The mines that dot the country in the West and South were only deserted when the character of the ores changed from "free ores" to "suiphurets." And while it is true that sulphurets are more valuable in gold and silver than free oves, it is also true that until now no process has been able to treat them with suc-

It will be good news, then, to owners of mines to be informed that sulphurets can now be treated by a new process with a success so complete that it amounts to 98 per cent., and at an expense not exceeding $2 per ton. Sulphurets treated by this process assay gold at a rate per cent. equivalent to a mint assay of the same quantity of the same ore. And what more can be desired or required, when we add the fact that the process is capable of utilizing the "tailings" and estoring to activity and prosperity the abandoned mines of the country? This discovery will be known as Clark's process of desulphurizing, and in the opinion of ex-assayers and mining experts, its introduction will signal the mining interest out of embarrassment, and materially assist the resumption of specie payments. Several weeks ago there appeared in the columns of the OBSER-VER a communication from a gentleman well known in mining circles, demonstrating the practicability of mining the sulphuret ores of this locality for transportation to England where they can be disposed of at their assay value. The estimated expense of mining, milling and transportation would amount to $15 per ton, and yet leave a margin of profit sufficiently large, on an average grade of ore, to strongly commend the scheme to mine owners and capitalists. But why should time and money be consumed n the tedious shipment of these ores to a foreign country, when they can be as cheap-yery mines from which they are raised? By the new process of desulphurizing, recently invented by Mr J H Clark, of Philadelphia, to which allusion has been made, the most refractory ores of Colorado and North Carolina have been, and can be treated successfully, 93 per cent. of the gold extracted, and at the trifling cost of $2 per ton. The owners of this invention are ready and willing to introduce it into this State upon the very reasonable condition of a responsible guarantee to purchase after sucpessful trial. Almost too evident to need repetition is the fact that untold thousands of tons of sulphuret ores, rich in the precious metal, lie buried in our hills within a radius of twenty miles around this city, awaiting the application of industry and capital, encouraged by this new auxilliary to science, to enrich its owners, revive business and bring prosperity to our community.
