Convened at 12 M.—Petition From Temperance People for Temperance Candidates—The New York Times on the Probable Result—Watterson Temporary Chairman—The Old Rules in Force.

St. Louis, June 27.—The Convention convenes at 12 o'clock.

The following has been received: NEW YORK, June 27.

President, National Democratic Convention, St. Louis:

The International Temperance Congress, held in Philadelphia, sends greetings and the earnest prayer of many thousands of christian citizens that in your Centennial platform about to be adopted, you will pronounce against the traffic in alcoholic liquors as a chief cause of crime, pauperism and political corruption, and nominate as your candidates for President and Vice President, total abstainers from intoxicating beverages, and supporters of the prohibition of the liquor traffic as the true national legislative policy.

(Signed) WM. E. DODGE, Secy.

J. N. STEARNS, Pres.

WASHINGTON, June 27.—The New York Times says this morning editorially:

The chances are that if the Democratic Convention proceeds to ballot for its candidates to-day, the nominee will be Samuel J. Tilden. What combinations might result from another night of fighting, shouting and intrigue, it is impossible to guess; but so far the opponents of Tilden have neither shown generalship nor organization, and the triumph of his friends has been easy and complete. Tilden now lacks only 33 votes of the requisite two-thirds, and there are two somewhat improbable accidents relied on to defeat him: one is the release of the New York delegation from the operation of the unit rule, and the other is the holding off of the Pennsylvania delegation long enough from support of Hancock, to gain the Allen and Thurman vote, and eventually break the ranks of Tilden. But Tammany Hall has given up the fight, and the demoralization of the cohorts of Kelly could be caused by nothing short of the impending certainty of defeat.

Henry Watterson, of the Louisville Courier-Journal, is temporary chairman. The rules of the last convention were adopted until otherwise ordered. Cries: "Does that include the two-thirds rule?" Answers from all over the house, "yes;" and the chairman said "yes." [Applause.] Recess to 5 P. M.

FOREIGN.

Derby Says England Can't Interfere in an Internal Strife—An American Prisoner Released.

LONDON, June 27.—In the House of Lords to-day, Lord Derby said: "England's line of action is clear. All would gladly reconcile the Porte and the insurgents, but we have no right or wish to take the part of either in a purely internal quarrel. That is the rule on which we have acted intimates not remote and civil wars far more extensive and sanguinary. We are in communication with the Porte and other powers with the view of offering such counsels as seem useful. We have been charged in some quarters with favoring the Turks. The charge is utterly unfounded. No one supposed the maintenance of the Ottoman Empire possible if the christians become permanently disaffected. The problem is to reconcile their reasonable wishes with the maintenance of a system which cannot be overthrown without a general convulsion."

Wm E Gray, of New York, who was held for extradition, has been discharged.

The Temporary Organization—Patriotic Speech from Augustus Shell—Appointment of Committees—Women Suffragists on the Floor—All the States Represented—McClelland, of New York, President.

St. Louis, June 27.—The Convention assembled in the hall of the Chamber of Commerce, which is handsomely decorated. Delegates promptly seated and Convention called to order at 12 M. by Augustus Shell who in calling order submitted brief remarks upon the purpose of this Convention, to nominate candidates whose election shall change the government and overthrow corruption and produce the administrative reforms demanded by the people. [Applause.] He said the corruption now existing in the government must be buried. This duty must be confided to hands not of those who now hold the government, but to the Democratic party. The reform cannot be made by the people believe so—they understand their rights and will not again trust their interests to the Republican party. He referred to the Democratic as the hard money party from the beginning. He said it was a trick to try to saddle on it the existing policy, inconsistent with hard money principles; an act authorizing paper money as legal tender, and the opinion of the Supreme Court sustaining it, all were done during the Republican administration. He then referred briefly the evil result. The remedy is not rapid contraction or increased currency, but the one remedy at this time is the repeal of the resumption act; do that and give the Democratic the reins of government and their policy of the one money and sound finance will bring specie payments speedily. [Applause.] It is the Centennial of National Independence. We have met to adopt means to restore our country to prosperity. May we not hope after sixteen years of Republicanism that the Democratic party may resume its supremacy in the government. The rules that will govern the Convention will insure good nominations. He exhorted the Convention to wisdom in making the platform. At the conclusion of his remarks, he nominated Henry Watterson of Kentucky, as temporary chairman. [Applause.] This was unanimously adopted. Barnum, of Connecticut, and Ransom, of North Carolina, were appointed as a committee for the purpose of conducting Watterson to the chair.

[Mr. Watterson on making his appearance was greeted with loud applause. He made an eloquent and stirring address which was often interrupted with cheers and applause. Owing to its length, we were unable to find space for it, but will give it in full in to-morrow's issue.—Ed.]

At the conclusion, he introduced Rev Mr Marvin, who offered prayer. The chair announced as temporary Secretary, F O Prince, of Massachusetts, and T O Walker, of Iowa, and S K Donovan, of Ohio, Assistant Secretaries. He also announced Dan Abbot, of Missouri, Sergeant-at-Arms. Abbot, of Massachusetts, moved a resolution adopting the rules of the last National Convention until otherwise ordered. Littlejohn, of N York, enquired if this includes the two-thirds rule. Voices, yes! yes! If so, all right. [Applause.] The Chair answered, it does; resolution adopted. Smolley, of Vermont, moved a resolution to call the States in order for presentation of credentials; adopted. Wallace of Pennsylvania, in order to have Democratic precedence observed, moved to reconsider resolution just adopted. He urged States that they should name their members of committees on credentials and permanent organization before any other business was done—hoped there would be no innovation on past precedents. Weed, of N York, insisted that the resolution adopted is in accordance with precedent. Under it credentials are received only for reference to credentials committees.

Wallace read from official proceedings of the Convention of '68, to show that the first business was to name committees. Doolittle, of Wisconsin, suggested that there be appointed a temporary secretary; he suggested that E O Perrin be appointed. Chair decides this out of order. The motion to reconsider was rejected. The Secretary proceeded to call the roll of States for credentials: Pomeroy, of Illinois moved that Perrin be appointed temporary secretary. Finch, of Iowa, objected. Perrin did not inherit this appointment, if he had had it before, and the appointment should be left to the committee on organization. The Chair finally decided the motion out of order. A Minnesota delegate moved a resolution to call the roll of States for committees on permanent organization. Adopted. Smith, of Illinois, moved that a committee of one from each State be appointed on resolutions and all resolutions relating to a platform be referred to said committee without debate. Weed, of New York, moved that the chairman of each delegation send to the chair the name of its member of the platform committee. There being no objection, it was ordered. Chairman said a delegation from the National Woman's Suffrage Association were present, asking a hearing. Cries of "hear them!" no objection. Chair announced they would be heard. Weed, of New York, and Smalley, of Vermont, were appointed a committee to escort the ladies to the platform. The Chair announced that a lady had the floor and refused to hear any propositions. Miss Phoebe Cozens, of St. Louis, took the platform and addressed the Convention with self-possession, but her voice was too weak to be heard many feet distant.

After other unimportant business, the Convention took recess. At 10 P. M. The Convention re-assembled and the committee on credentials reported that all the States represented had no contested seats. Report adopted with amendment admitting delegations from the District of Columbia and the Territories without votes. The report of the committee on permanent organization was read recommending Gen Jno A McClelland, of Illinois, for permanent President with a Vice President for each State. Report adopted, and a committee escorted Gen McClelland to the Chair, who addressed the Convention extemporaneously, assigning the Republican party for misrule and corruption which he claimed called for a change. Mr Belmont, of New York, read a series of resolutions arraigning the Republican party and appealing to the American people to forget the civil war, after eleven years of peace. He accompanied them with some earnest remarks. The resolutions were referred and the Convention adjourned to 11 o'clock to-morrow.

PATRIOTIC AMERICAN ISRAELITES.—The Executive Committee of the Board of Delegates of American Israelites "earnestly recommend to every congregation of Israelites in the United States the holding of a special service on that memorable day, the Fourth of July, 1876. Unitng with their fellow-citizens in other observances deemed appropriate, they will becomngly manifest their heartfelt gratitude to God that the Republic, founded on the eternal rock of civil and religious liberty, the beacon to the oppressed of all nations, sheds its brilliant and undying light over land and sea, and stands in sublime and stately dignity a monument of human intelligence, fidelity and self-reliance, sustained by the Almighty's benign protection.

"The committee further recommend that in each city a record be prepared of the settlement and progress of the Hebrews, their synagogues and other institutions. It is the desire and intention of the Executive Committee, with the co-operation of the congregations, to preserve in a permanent form the local records thus presented. They therefore ask that congregations will furnish the committee with a copy of the historical memoir prepared in compliance with this suggestion."

THE FIRST OF THE SEASON.—The first straw hat of the season appeared on Main street on Monday afternoon. It was in the middle of the street. It was moving along on its ear, with every indication of a safe and speedy trip. A man was about five yards in the rear of the hat. He was popularly supposed to be the owner thereof. He was bareheaded. His face was scarlet in color. He looked hot and embarrassed. Still it bowed along. So did he. Once it almost stopped. He slackened his speed. Then it turned over on the other ear, and shot ahead again. Then he picked up his feet more abundantly. Men in wagons stopped their teams to look. Merchants followed their customers to doors to look. People on the walk dropped every other subject and object and bent all their attention on the chase. The hat went under one wagon, and then passed beneath another, and skimmed across the street, and finally brought up against a tree. The bareheaded man, who had twice given up the pursuit, and had each time declared that he didn't care a snap for the old thing anyway, now put forth a third effort, and secured it. Then he sat it on his head, and pulled it down until the brim cracked half way round. Then he got over a fence, scaled another fence, and then he continued his way home by the same unostentatious route. Danbury News.
