English Policy—Russia's Policy not Self-Interested—France Likely to be Neutral.

LONDON, Oct. 20.—The cabinet is decided upon a policy of abstention for the present at least. In this policy, they have the support of the press and the people.

The journals editorially seem inclined to abandon all hopes of the preservation of peace between Russia and Turkey.

Berlin newspapers certainly express the opinion, that all the Powers of Europe, including England, are equally interested in and responsible for Russia's action...

The French papers agree that France will do her best to maintain peace, but will not take an active part should the crisis end in war.

THE ELECTORAL VOTE.—Electors meet at their respective State capitols on the first Wednesday of December of the year in which they were elected, vote by ballot for President and Vice-President, and transmit a record of their votes to the President of the United States Senate.

The question has arisen as to whether what has been known as the twenty second joint rule of the two houses is now in force. It provides that the houses shall assemble in the hall of the House of Representatives at 1 P. M., and that the president of the Senate shall be their presiding officer. No vote objected to by either house to be counted.

DIVING FOR DRINK.—One of the hottest regions of the earth is along the Persian Gulf, where little or no rain falls. At Basrah, the shore has no fresh water yet a comparatively numerous population contrives to exist there, thanks to copious springs which burst forth from the bottom of the sea.

After reading what Dewees says, the most conservative reader will readily endorse the strong language used by the Statesville American in characterizing the Canby convention of 1868.

Our dashing friend, Murat Halstead, says the Jews refuse to train with the Republicans. We doubt not that such is the case.

"I will train with no party, I will march under no flag, I will step on you have done, our glorious bloody shirt, and the idea of November are ours."

Conductors on a Boston street road stole a barrel of punched tickets and turned them in for cash fares, thus stealing several thousand dollars.
