THE DONKEY IF AN emblem of patience, if you study the donkey you will find that laziness is what's the matter with him.

THE OX KNOWS HIS MASTER'S CRIB, and that is all he knows or cares about his master.

THE CROW IS THE most natural of all thieves—they will steal and hide what is of no use to them nor loss to anybody else.

THE HORNET HAS MORE fight in them than anything of their size, but there is no need of their modesty.

THE SNAKE IS THE most natural of all thieves—they will steal and hide what is of no use to them nor loss to anybody else.

THE FROG DODGETH when it lightens, and the tad gape when the thunder follows.

THE KRO BIDS her nest of six, the swallow or mud, the quail or leaves, the wren or feathers and wool, and the woodpecker digs a hole for his eggs in the rotten trees.

THE SERPENT and the crab change their clothing each year, and the raccoon lives all winter long on the memory of what he ate in the summer.

THE HORSE ALWAYS gets up from the ground on his fore legs first, and the cow on her hind ones, and the dog turns around three times before he lies down.

THE SPIDER IS THE only critter that catches his food in a trap, and sheep will live without water longer than any domestic animal.

THE FOX IS THE hardest to catch in a trap, and a muskrat the easiest, and the maddollard is the best of all the birds of the air.

THE WILD TURKEY CAN run faster than he can fly, and any man who is a good walker can tire a deer out in 24 hours.

I KANT think, in konklusion, of anything just now in art, science, or morality that mankind excel in, but what can be found, more or less, developed, in the bugs, beasts, birds, and fishes.
