NOTES AND NEWS.

The New York Sun says the straight Republican ticket for 1880 will be U. S. Grant for President, and Edwards Pierpont, Vice-President.

The National Republican states that the President is in favor of paying the bonds issued before 1873, in gold, as well as those issued afterward.

A spirit photograph, representing the impartial Redfield with a Whig ghost in the background, would be a neat thing in modern art.

Gen Grant will not leave England as soon as was expected. Besides a banquet at Liverpool on the 28th of June, there is to be a dinner in his honor at the United States Service Club on the 3d of July.

Mr.throp, a Pennsylvania music teacher, wanted to suicide by having a big grindstone fall on him, but, after two days' hard work getting the stone to a second story window, he dodged its fall and still lives.

By the laws of Florida no man who has lost an arm or a leg, no matter how or when or from what cause, can be taxed for any business he may enter into, always excepting the liquor business.

The laying down of underground telegraph advances rapidly in Germany. The line from Mayence to Marburg is complete; that from Cassel to Leipzig is in progress. Two lines, each with seven wires, will run from Berlin to Hamburg.

Mothers-in-law should raise a monument to the late John B. Felton, of San Francisco. He left one-half of his property to his wife, one quarter to his mother-in-law, and one quarter to his children.

The story about Gen Ord being the grandson of George the Fourth and the actress Mrs Fitzherbert is interesting, but untrue; for neither son nor daughter was born to this union, and Mrs Fitzherbert was not an actress.

Wisconsin does not hang murderers, but her papers rather wish she did since A. W. Dennett, of Madison, has confessed to the murder of his illegitimate son eight months old by first smothering it under his arm and then throwing the body into the river.

The collector Freeland in whose interest Mr Beecher called upon the President the other day, is a leading member of Plymouth Church. He was one of the witnesses for the defence in the Beecher scandal suit, and the visit of the Plymouth pastor to the White House was evidently in pursuance of the idea that one good turn deserves another.

The board of directors of the Petersburg Index-appeal Publishing Company announce Mr R P Barham as editor of that paper, vice Ed S Gregory, Esq. Mr Barham has been connected with the Index-appeal for several years, and was a member of the last Legislature. He is an accomplished journalist, and while the loss of Mr Gregory to the press of Virginia and the South is to be deplored, his mantle has fallen upon shoulders competent and well worthy to wear it.

HESTER LIBELLE.—The most refreshing incident of the heated term is the arrest in Washington of John C Gorman, for libeling Jos G Hester. Gorman is a remarkable man in some respects; a self-made man and a man of learning and talent. We had always given him credit for those qualities of mind which impress us favorably even when seen in men whom we abhor, but we had never expected to be called upon to admire in Gorman or anybody else an exhibition of that genius which could libel Hester.

D T Boynton, the former pension agent at Knoxville, it is announced, has been designated as agent for the consolidated district composed of Virginia, West Virginia, North Carolina and Tennessee. Tourgee, the former pension agent of North Carolina, is one of the "belated" applicants for this position. He made $3,000 or $3,500 per year out of his sinecure before this consolidation of agencies was effected, and now that his supply of governmental pap has been withdrawn may we not indulge the hope that Albion will again tramp?

John Hyman, the colored ex-Congressman from the second district, is continually being smitten in the house of his so-called friends. He was chased out of his seat in Congress to make room for ex-Gov Brogden, and now that he seems in a fair way of turning another honest penny, a protest comes up from Maj Wm A Smith, whose voice has not been much heard in a political way since the close of the last campaign. The President sticking to or receding from the appointment of Hyman, will demonstrate whether or not Billy Smith is "a bigger man than old" Dockery.

DOCKERY AND THE ADMINISTRATION.

Oliver Dockery seems to have been "running" North Carolina in Washington. We had come to look for daily telegraphic reports of "my son Oliver's" interviews with the President, just as we were wont to look for the regular Sunday afternoon interviews of the agent of the associated press in Washington with the ex-President just on the eve of his departure from the White House. Had Oliver hung on as the Presidential adviser, the consequences would have been fatal to the "Greensboro ring," but there are some indications that he has lost caste in administration circles. One of these is that his visits to the White House have become less frequent, and another strong proof is found in the following article from the editorial columns of the National Republican, which writes itself the organ of the President:

"It is announced that Hon. O. H. Dockery is to replace Consul General Badeau at London, and Mr. Dockery himself is given as authority for the announcement. If this appointment should be made the family rule established by Mr. Sherman will be disregarded in the State Department, because Mr. Dockery's son has already been appointed consul at Leeds, but the appointment would be distasteful on other grounds. The Consul General at the Capital of the British Empire should not only be thoroughly versed in commercial matters, but he should also be possessed of more general information, larger and broader views, and greater knowledge of the world in all its social and other relations than we have ever heard attributed to Mr. Dockery. It may happen that the Consul General may be called upon to exercise the functions of the Minister himself, and, with all due respect to Mr. Dockery, we doubt his capacity to fill the bill. Mr. Dockery must step aside and seek some other field upon which to pasture."

But though Mr. Dockery may not be able to replace Badeau, some of his work has been done well. He has secured the consulate to Leeds for his son Alfred, and has brought about a request for the resignation of Winstead, collector of the Greensboro district; and this should be accounted glory enough for one man, even though the emoluments accruing to himself thereby cannot thus far be seen or judged.

THE UNIVERSITY NORMAL SCHOOL.

One of the most beneficent acts of any Legislature in North Carolina since the war, was that of the last, providing for the establishment of normal schools for the training of teachers of both races and sexes. The colored normal school has been located at Fayetteville, and the interest is increasing throughout the State in the white school which was located by the act at Chapel Hill, and which opens on the 3d of July. The term will continue at least six weeks, and tuition will be free to all white persons, male and female, who wish to perfect themselves in the art of teaching. The railroads will pass persons attending the school for half fare, and textbooks will be provided free. Board and lodging can be had at Chapel Hill for $12.50 per month, and the pupils of the school will have access to all the apparatus and educational facilities which the University affords.

Just So.—In that exchange of views, says the Macon Telegraph, between Hayes and Sherman last Thursday, about national finances, in which the parties labored in vain to comprehend each other's views, Hayes at last, stretching himself and giving a weary yawn, remarked that ever since his revered grandmother had first taken him to church, a little toddling boy, he had been hearing about black clouds having a silver lining. "Now," says he, "the blackest cloud I know of is the present financial cloud; and I am in favor of lining it at least a foot thick with silver." "Too much—altogether too much," replied Sherman; "say six inches!" "No, I won't," said Hayes; "but rather than have a division in the Cabinet, I will compromise on eight inches. Eight is my winning number, anyhow. Say eight inches, then." And eight it was. That was the result of the conference.

The Mormon Lee who was shot for murder, was a better man than Hamburg Butler, and he was shot for a less crime than Butler committed.—Burlington Hawkeyes.

The above paragraph is commended to the attention of those of our State contemporaries who have been publishing free advertisements of the Burlington Hawkeyes as original matter in their editorial and local columns. Undoubtedly it has upon its staff an immensely funny man, but politically there is not on the American continent a more villainous sheet than this Burlington Hawkeyes. No paper goes before it in steadiness and vindictiveness in calumniating the South, and our people should not give the New York Times or the National Republican a wider berth.

The New York Tribune says "the Old Line Whig has been found at last; it was dug up in North Carolina." The Tribune was never more mistaken. The words are the words of an Old Line Whig, but the foot and ears are those of a modern scallawag.

Wayne McVeagh says he does not propose to write any more letters about Butler. He thinks Butler pretty well used up, and says that every portion of Butler's last letter was a fabrication. He particularly characterizes as such Butler's allusion to his (McVeagh's) marriage.

A careful census discloses the fact that the Democrats have so far obtained three appointments, viz: The Marshalship of West Tennessee and the post-offices at Petersburg and Memphis.

Governor Hampton.

The South Carolina Executive at Auburn.

AUBURN, N. Y., June 20.—Governor Robinson, in his speech of welcome to Governor Hampton at the Shields celebration to-day, dwelt largely on the contest in South Carolina in which the latter had taken so prominent a part. Governor Hampton, in the course of his speech in reply, said: Your distinguished Governor has been pleased to allude to the contest in South Carolina. That, my friends, was not a political struggle. It rose far higher than any such contest ever waged in this continent. It was a contest for civilization; for home rule, good government—for life itself. It was a contest waged by the people of South Carolina—not, as demagogues would tell you, against northern men—it was a contest waged against carpet-baggers; and when I say "carpet-bagger" I mean "nigger." We do not mean any man, any Irishman, any German, any Englishman, who settles in our midst as an honest citizen, a carpet bagger. We welcome such with open arms. We tell them to come to our genial skies and fertile soil. Come one, come all, and I pledge them in the name of the State a hospitable, warm-hearted reception. We do not ask whether they are Republicans or Democrats. I want to impress this upon your minds, and will do it by illustration.

What was done by the Democratic Legislature of South Carolina in almost its first action? A vacancy occurred on the Supreme bench of the State—a chief justice was to be elected. It was a place which had been filled by men of the very highest reputation in our commonwealth. The names of honors of Carolina, who would have done honor to any bench in any country, were presented; but that Democratic Legislature elected to the Supreme Court a citizen of New York, who came to the State as a soldier, and who is a Republican. What further proof do you want that we are not governed by prescriptive feelings? We wanted to show your people of the North that we were actuated by the highest and most patriotic feelings. We did not wage a political canvass. We were fighting for every interest dear to freemen, and, thanks to the brave and true men and glorious women of South Carolina, this war for good government was successful. They have established it in every department of the State Government. They have accomplished this, and they now propose to fulfill to the very letter the pledges I made and appealed to the high Heaven to witness that they should be carried out.

I declared that if elected, I would be Governor of the whole people of South Carolina; that I should know no race, or party, or color; that all men who stood on the soil of South Carolina, whether of foreign birth or black or white, should be equal before the law; and, so help me God, it shall be done. I am glad to say that the bitterness which marked that strife, is passing away; and I say to you, men of New York, as I say at home, I owe my election to the colored men of South Carolina.

Thousands of them voted for me, knowing that I had been a good friend of the race, knowing that I was the first man after the war to recommend that they should be given the right of suffrage; and I have never yet changed my opinion on this subject. Knowing this, they sustained me in large numbers, and I am happy to say that all the fears of the more ignorant are passing away, and they are satisfied that they will be dealt with in all respects as citizens of the North. We in the North, and I elevate them, educate them, and show them the responsibilities as well as the blessings of liberty. We want them, as other citizens of America and South Carolina, to be worthy the great boon of citizenship of this great Republic.

My friends, I must again thank you for this most cordial greeting, doubly gratifying, because it is the voice of New York reverberating to South Carolina. I come, as I said, to do honor to my distinguished friend, Gen. Shields. He wore the blue and I wore the gray; but we can let the curtain drop over those years, and go back to that time when that flag borne by him, waved over the South and over the North, and we can look to the future, when that flag shall float over a free, united, and prosperous people. [Applause.] I say this to you as a Southern man and a rebel, for when I fought I fought as hard as I knew how against you; and I say, also, if that flag floats, as it should, over free and equal States; if it shall be the symbol of liberty and equality and justice, all the States and every man of the South will honor it and love it as of old, and the time may come once more when New York and South Carolina shall stand shoulder to shoulder against the common enemy, and their blood mingle upon the soil. [Applause.]

My friends, I shall bear this cordial greeting back home with me to the little Palmetto State, and assure our people that your hearts here throb kindly for us. I trust in God, that a better future is before the whole country, and that we shall have peace and prosperity and liberty to every man upon the continent. [Applause.]

Judge Whipper, of South Carolina, whom the people of this country know more about than they care to, has been permanently retired by the decree of the Supreme Court of that State dismissing his suit to oust Judge Reed of the Circuit Court. This finishes Whipper.

A Medicine for Many Uses.

A medicine which remedies dyspepsia, liver complaint, constipation, debility, intermittent and remittent fevers, ordinary and uterine troubles, depraves the blood, counteracts a tendency to rheumatism and gout, and relieves nervousness, may be truly said to have many uses. Such an article is Hester's Bitters, one of the most reliable alteratives of a disorderly to a well ordered state of the system ever prepared or sold. It has been over a quarter of a century before the public, is endorsed by many eminent doctors of the healing art, and its merits have received repeated recognitions in the columns of leading American and foreign journals. It is highly esteemed in every part of this country, and is extensively used in South America, Mexico, the British possessions and the West Indies. In its use to increase in public favor in the past, its reputation is gaining in popularity in coming years, it has indeed a splendid future before it.
