CHAMBERLAIN WALLS.

His Fourth of July Orations—Abuses "This President" by Calling Him a Betray-er of Trusts, &c.

A Meeting that Cheers Extolty Opposite Sentiments.

The following are a few extracts from ex-Gov. Chamberlain's speech, made at Woodstock, Connecticut, yesterday, the 4th of July:

"A presidential policy, if the term is descriptive, is an anomaly and offense. It savors of bad faith. It has a native and historical odor of treachery and intrigue. But, fellow-citizens, what is the President's Southern policy? In point of physical and external fact it consists in withdrawing the military forces of the United States from the points in South Carolina and Louisiana where they had been previously stationed for the protection and support of the lawful governments of those States. In point of immediate foreseen and intended consequence, it consists in the overthrow and destruction of those State governments, and the substitution in their stead of certain other organizations called State governments."

"In point of actual present results, it consists in the abandonment of Southern Republicans, and especially the colored race to the control and rule, not only of the Democratic party, but of that class at the South which regarded slavery as a divine institution, which waged four years of destructive war for its perpetuation, which steadily opposed citizenship and suffrage for the negro,—in a word, a class whose traditions, principles and history are opposed to every step and feature of what Republicans call our national progress since 1860."

"In point of general political and moral significance, it consists in the proclamation to the country and the world, that the will of the majority of the voters of a State lawfully and regularly expressed, is no longer the ruling power in our States, and that the constitutional guarantee to every State in this Union, a republican form of government, and of protection against domestic violence, is henceforth ineffectual and worthless."

"I could frame an excuse for James Buchanan. He was the decaying fruit of half a century of Northern subservience to Southern dictation; the poor drudge of a worn out politician whose life had been spent in covering submission to the will of those whom he was now called to confront. But what shall be said of this President, educated by the events of the last seventeen years, the long and perilous struggle to save the nation to freedom and justice, the representative of a party whose life and inspiration in every hour of its existence, has been political justice and freedom for all American citizens; a President who had literally climbed to his high seat over the dead bodies of hundreds of loyal men in Louisiana, who had met death in forms far more terrible than any battle field, in order that the liberty of which they had tasted, might be kept for their children? James Buchanan could say that he negotiated with those who were in arms against the United States, in order that he might by peaceful agencies, preserve the integrity of the Union, and avert a fratricidal war. This President enters upon his negotiations with those who are in arms against the lawful government of Louisiana, in order that he might the more surely betray the friends who had trusted him, and the cause he was sworn to uphold."

"Now, fellow-citizens, I exercise the right of an American citizen—no more—when I say that a review of this chapter of our history, leaves me in no doubt that the real purpose of the Louisiana commission and of the whole conduct of the Louisiana case by the President, was to accomplish the overthrow of Gov. Packard and his authority."

"Called upon under the constitution and laws of the country, as its Chief Executive, to discharge a grave public duty, a duty essential to the maintenance of the life of a great State, a duty equally essential to the maintenance of human rights and the principles of the political party which had elected him, the President, not only declines the duty, but he stabs the State that sought his aid, and betrays the principles and men who were bound to uphold and protect."

PAN PRESBYTERIA COUNCIL.

Three Hundred Delegates and Five Thousand Visitors Present—The First Meeting—The Moderators, &c.

NEW YORK, July 5.—An Edinburgh special about the Pan Presbyterian Council says that all the public institutions, colleges, libraries and menues have been thrown open to the three hundred delegates and the five thousand visitors attracted by the assembling of the council. The committee of arrangements having previously decided that the two great bodies of the church in the United States, North and South, should be represented in the officers of the first meeting of the council, appointed Howard Crosby, D. D., Chancellor of the University of New York, and Dr. Stuart Robinson, of Louisville, Ky., to preside as moderators. The subsequent sessions of the council, will be moderated by Rev. Dr. Good of the Free Church, and the Rev. Dr. Phinn of the Established Presbyterian Church of Scotland. It is now forty-four years since the Free Church parted from the Established on the question of State interference in religious matters, and this is the first effort at affiliation or union since that time. The other churches represented in the moderatorship of the councils are the Reformed Dutch of America, by Rev. Dr. Ormiston, of New York; the United Reformed Synod of France by Paster Fisch, of Paris. The Presbyterian Church in England is represented in the moderator's chair by Rev. J. Oswald Dykes, D. D., of London, the Irish Presbyterian Church by Rev. Dr. Bell, the American Churches by the Rev. Dr. Kerr, of Pittsburg, Pa., and Elder Jun kin, of New York, who preside in turn over the evening meetings.

On Tuesday evening a reception of welcome was given to the three hundred delegates. At least five thousand visitors were present, and the assembly was brilliant. The Lord Provost presided, and beside him sat his wife. The Lord Provost is an English man, and a Methodist. Addresses were delivered by Rev. Dr. Adams, of New York, Rev. Dr. Wm. Snodgrass, of Kingston, Canada, Dr. Britte, of Hungary, Dr. McCosh, President of Princeton College, N. J., and by Dr. Menod, of Paris. The latter spoke with intense feeling of the condition of religious liberty in France, where he feared nothing would save the reformed protestant church. A conflict, he said, was menacing the very existence of the church there. Then followed the venerable Dr. Plumer, of Columbia, S. C., in a speech of remarkable vigor and earnestness. The doctor is the veteran member of the council, being now 87 years old. During the speech, having made reference to the Fourth of July, the vast audience arose and broke forth in tumultuous applause.

The council re-assembled Wednesday for business, and sat from half past ten in the morning until half past ten in the evening, with an hour's intermission for luncheon. The same programme will be followed for the successive days until next Wednesday, with the exception of Saturday and Sunday.

The utmost harmony prevailed and the real business will be earnestly attended to and promptly dispatched. Speeches were made at luncheon by Jas. Stevenson, a member of Parliament who presided, and by the Earl of Kinton, who felicitously alluded to American independence, saying: "The motherland no more regretted the declaration of independence of the United States of America to-day than a father does their sons reaching their majority. England's mother heart goes forth in gladness at the prosperity of her great son."

Chancellor Howard Crosby, of New Jersey, in the course of a brief but spirited address, remarked that the Fourth of July was ordered and designed by Providence that England and America might love each other more. [Great applause.]

Dr. Plumer, of Columbia, S. C., made a few remarks and called upon pastor Minod, of Paris, who responded by saying that France too had something to say about American independence, seeing that she also had something to do with it.

The Rev. Dr. Jas. McCosh, of Princeton, N. J., was called out and made a glorious Fourth of July speech. His address evoked genuine enthusiasm. The stars and stripes were displayed in the luncheon room and on many prominent buildings throughout the city.

rendered themselves to the Sheriff. The information is very lengthy, and charges them with having on the 4th of December, 187, 6 falsely and feloniously altered and published as true, the altered, forged and counterfeit election returns for Presidential electors, from the parish of Vernon, at the election of November last, by adding 158 votes to each of the Hayes electors, and deducting 395 from each of the Tilden electors. Bail, which has been fixed at $5,000 each, has been furnished by Wells and Kinner, Anderson and Casanave will surrender themselves and furnish bond.

WASHINGTON.

WASHINGTON, July 5.—Advises from Idaho and Oregon claim no success for Gen. Howard, in punishing the Indians. Howard telegraphs that his command was crossing the Salmon river. The Indians had gone from his front, having quietly drawn away and are apparently encamped near the junction of the Snake and Little Salmon.

The President drove in from the soldier's home and spent some time at General Brady's national photograph gallery, having his picture taken.

THE RUSSO-TURKISH WAR.

A Turkish Governor for Montenegro.

Prince Nicholas' Unfitness for War.

LONDON, July 5.—At the termination of the recent successful campaign against Montenegro, it was asserted from Constantinople, that a Turkish Governor would be appointed and the country reduced to the position of a Turkish province; that Suleiman and Saib Pashas were about to march upon Cettinge without any further fighting. To account for the change in Turkish plans it is now announced that Mehemet Ali has been appointed to command the army in Thessaly, and Suleiman Pasha has been recalled to Constantinople, probably with his army. These measures give point to the reports recently current that Austria and probably other powers brought pressure at Constantinople to save Montenegro from being crushed, and also with the view of taking the army from Servia on the pretext for joining in hostilities against Turkey.

A Bucharest dispatch says: "A great battle is impending near Sistova. The Turks are attempting to cut the Russians off from the Danube, and thus separate them from their base of operations. The losses on both sides during the last few days have been very severe."

A letter published in the Times from its Cettinge correspondent, whose telegrams have constantly present in the Montenegro position in the most favorable light possible, says: "The Russian government has decided regarding Prince Nicholas' military capacity and upon him a responsibility to which he was not equal, and which should have been shared by efficient military advisers. The Prince's fitness to civilize his people is much greater than for such a crisis as the present."
