Excitement in Consequence of a Personal Paragraph in a Local Newspaper.

[By telegraph to the N. Y. Herald.]

DANVILLE, Va., July 6 .- The citizens here, and especially the members of the tobacco trade and the newspaper men, were thrown into a state of great excitement by an attack with a cowhide made upon Mr. Daniel Deckhart, editor of the Border Express, by Mr. A. P. Whitfield, a prominent tobacco

The cause of the affair was the publication in the Express, of a local article which stated that several weeks ago a negro named John Robinson called upon Mr. N. C. Whitfield, a younger brother of the Whitfield above mentioned, and requested him to write a letter to Cecilia Robinson at High Point, N. C., enclosing $5. This the younger Whitfield consented clusive of washing and lights,) $75.00; Tuito do, and after sealing the letter gave tion in regular English course, $25.00; extra it to Robinson to mail. An hour later studies moderate. Whitfield called at the post office, stating that the latter was upon business of the firm, and that he wished to make some alteration in it. The letter was handed to him by the postmaster, but was never returned to the office. Last week the negro Robinson complained that the money had never been received, and further stated that he wished to send $7 more. The postmaster at once suspected young Whitfield, and advised Robinson to get Whitfield to write his letter as before and enclosing the money, taking the precaution to mark both the notes so that they could be indentified. The trap acted like a charm. Whitfield wrote the letter, inclosed the marked money and called at the post office soon after the letter had been mailed, making the same representations as on the previous occasion. The last letter was deposited in the post office subse ed and the marked money found on his person. Bail to double the amount being now demanded was given for his appearance, but at the hour appointed for the investigation young Whitfield was not forthcoming. He has fled.

A BROTHER'S REVENGE.

The publication of this article in the Expre s this morning was the cause of the attack. The elder Whitfield armed severely horsewhipped him. Every effort has been made to suppress the details as it is anticipated the affair is not ended, and the friends of both parties continue in a state of intense excitment.
