Death of a Distinguished Virgin-

Bennington, August 16.—Ceremonies to-day were tumultuously successful. During the procession Hayes acknowledged the tributes of applause by sight inclinations of the head, and did not appear to encourage the exuberant manifestations by frequent and conspicuous bowing. There was a slight delay in Main street, of which several persons availed themselves to rush up to the President's carriage and shake hands. One of these, a prominent local politiciau, remarked: "I like you personally, Mr. President, but damn your policy." To which be good humoredly replied: "Come, now, no politics to-day."

The following is Mr. Evart's speech: "Mr. President, Ladies and Gentlemen: "It is fair that I should warn you. Though I am very slow to begin a speech, I am much slower to end it; and I know your only safety is in my retiring before I commence." [Applause.]
