TELEGRAPHIC NEWS.

THE RUSSO-TURKISH WAR.

Osman Pasha Reinforced at Plevna by 15,000 Men.

The Capture of Schipka Pass by the Russians—Description of the Battle.

LONDON, August 27.—The Times correspondent at headquarters of the Plevna army telegraphs, August 20th: "Osman Pasha received a reinforcement of fifteen thousand yesterday, from Suleiman Pasha. The Plevna army now numbers 75,000 men with two hundred guns."

The Times Thessalon dispatch, Sunday, says: "The Governors of Adrianople and Philippopolis telegraph: Suleiman Pasha has taken Schipka pass."

The News correspondent, who was an eye-witness of Friday's battle in Schipka pass, telegraphs from Goruy Studin, Saturday: "Riding backward from Schipka through the night we witnessed masses of reinforcements, artillery and infantry, hurrying forward to Schipka. Their strength is such as ought to secure the safety of the all-important position."

The same correspondent telegraphs from Bucharest, Sunday: "Information follows me here that fighting at the pass is still raging, having been again renewed today, but that Radzky continues to hold his own. It is now a question of endurance, but I adhere to my impression that Schipka pass, as now held by Radzky, is safe, and unless Suleiman Pasha can run a column through another pass, he will wreck his army by thus dashing it continually against this."

The correspondent after giving a description of the pass, says: "On the 21st inst., when the fighting commenced, the Russians were little over 8,000 strong, with forty cannon. The Russians on this day had laid mines in front of their trenches, which exploded just as the head of the Turkish assaulting parties were massed above them. It is reported that a large number of Moslems were blown into fragments. By Thursday evening, the Turks had worked around on both Russian flanks that it seemed as though the claws of the crab were about momentarily to close behind the Russians."

The correspondent concludes: "Occasionally at some point, the Russians would be hurled clean back out of the wood altogether. I could mark the Turks following them eagerly to its edge, lying down while pouring out a galling fire. The troops who were chased, with making the front attack merely succeeded in preventing the Turkish effort to work round to the Russian rear. It was therefore decided at noon to deliver a counter-flank movement. The two battalions executing this movement had to advance under a tremendous fire from the Turkish mountain guns. The fighting on the Turkish front and flank lasted a full hour, but at last the Turks were seen withdrawing their battery of mountain guns, near the right flank, which was a sure sign that danger menaced it, if it stayed longer. Their left battery followed their example, which showed that the Russians had gained a ridge on the Turkish left also. There remained but the central peak of the Turkish position. That carried, the ridge would be ours, and our right flank would be set free from dangerous pressure on it."

A Reuter telegram from Erzerum, re-affirming the report of the defeat of the Russians at Kiziltepe and Sabatan, says: "It is rumored that fighting is imminent. Russian reinforcements continue arrive at Alexandrapole."

Efforts to Induce the President to Revoke the Call for the Extra Session of Congress.

Morton Improving—Mexican Marauders.

WASHINGTON, August 27.—Many leading members of both branches of Congress, have appealed to the President to revoke the proclamation calling the extra session of Congress, in October, considering the session unnecessary and on account of interfering with their fall business before the courts, many being lawyers. It is stated that the President says that he made the call after maturely considering every point, and that there are good reasons why the extra session should be called.

There is no probability of a revocation of the proclamation for an extra session.

It is believed that the Cabinet will to-morrow consider the formation of the Sitting Bull commission, which is not yet complete.

The latest reports of Senator Morton's condition, say that he is still improving.

The Governor of Texas has informed General Ord that he has never authorized volunteers to cross into Mexico after the marauders. His instructions to the State troops were to confine their operations to the Texas side, and escaping marauders must be extradited.

The Campaign in Ohio Opened.

ATHENS, O., August 27.—The Republican campaign opened on Saturday afternoon, candidate West and Stanley Matthews speaking. Matthews discussed Hayes' title to the office, and his Southern policy and civil service reform.

Prospects of a Strike Among English Operatives.

LONDON, August 27.—The notice of a reduction of five per cent. on wages which the cotton spinners of the bottom districts served on the workers expires Thursday. Unless there is a settlement in the meantime, upward of 10,000 operatives will strike. The operators are determined to resist the reduction. The masters are also firm. Some of the mill owners have accumulated large stocks, varying in value from 100,000 to 500,000 pounds sterling, and they declare a reduction the only alternative.

Eastport Accident.

NEWBERRY, O., August 27.—The passenger train from New London, due here at 9 p. m., met with an accident near Moberg station on Saturday night. The rain washed away the culvert, leaving the track in its natural position. The engine and tender were hurled into the ravine. The passenger car remained on the track. Six train men and one passenger were injured; none killed.

The Procedure to be Observed at the Death of the Pope.

It empowers Cardinal Camerlengo to either summon the conclave immediately or await the arrival of the foreign cardinals. Cardinal Joseph Bizzarri is dead.

Encouraging Prospects of the Trade of St. Louis.

ST. LOUIS, August 27.—Interviews with a number of leading firms in various branches of business, show prospects for a large fall trade in this city extraordinarily good. Orders have already been very numerous, and a general belief is that the volume of trade will be greater than since 1873.

An Aged Darling.

Curious Case of Infatuation—Years and Wickedness no Bar to Love.

[Jennie June's New York Letter in Baltimore American.]

It is generally supposed when beautiful young women marry elderly men they do so simply and solely as a matter of business—so much young flesh and blood for so much money—and there is little sympathy for either side if the bargain does not turn out as good as was expected. A young lady of Brooklyn has recently, however, reversed all the traditions in this respect. She is an only daughter, and the apple of her parents' eyes. She is extremely pretty and petite, with a rose-leaf complexion, a plump yet delicate form, and a profusion of golden brown hair. She has been educated at home exclusively, and seen but little of the world, except one year spent abroad. This trip was projected in order to get rid of an attachment which, to her parents' horror, she had formed for a man of nearly thirty years old, who was in the habit of visiting her father occasionally, but who took advantage of the privilege accorded to his age, and of a still somewhat fine and even distinguished personal appearance, to make passionate love to his daughter. He is a very poor man—so poor that his board and washing bills are always in arrears, and he is overwhelmed with debts for personal indulgences for which he never thinks of paying.

All this had no effect upon the girl. She insisted upon returning home; and the parents, really knowing but little of him, after a hard contest finally gave a conditional consent, their daughter to first accompany her mother abroad for a year, and if she, on her return, desired to marry her elderly lover they would no more oppose it, but pay his debts and give him a home at their house, for they have abundant means, and the daughter has every advantage that wealth could bestow.

A few months ago the mother and daughter returned from Europe, the daughter still determined on the alliance so repulsive to her family; that they thought had made her mother's hair turn gray. But, in the meantime, her father had made himself acquainted with some previous passages in the man's career, and as soon as possible after her arrival placed them strongly before her. The man was proved to be a thoroughly unprincipled old scamp, the father of an illegitimate child, whose mother he had refused to marry—the boy, now fifteen years of age, supported and kept at school by his mother's daily labor. He had even been compelled to leave one place where he lived to escape lynching, and left everywhere in debt. The father, with tears, told his daughter he could not let her marry such a man, and that her death would be almost preferable. He pictured her ten or fifteen years from this time in the flower of her womanhood (she is not yet nineteen) with a husband, decrepit and helpless, whom she could not even respect. But it was all of no avail. She insisted that he had been abused, wronged, and said it was the one desire of her heart to be able to comfort her remaining years, and smooth his pathway to the grave.

There seems to me something radically wrong and morbid about a case like this, and I think her parents would be justified in taking strong measures to save their daughter from her self-imposed fate. If they do not, she will certainly blame them some time for their failure to rescue her from her situation, and should she even die, as she threatens, her death would be easier borne than the long, horrible sacrifice to which she wishes to confine herself.

No one can develop the grace of meekness by listening to a crying baby. Stop its fretfulness by curbing the Colic with Dr Bull's Baby Syrup. Price 25 cents.
