WASHINGTON.

PROCEEDINGS OF CONGRESS.

in Silver-Senator Merrimon Speaks on the Subject-Nominations statutes, fixing a standard for vinegar.

The New Orleans custom house is again an open question this morning.

NIGHT DISPATCHES. Washington, Jan 18.-House - The bill was passed removing the political disabilities of Charles L Scott, of Ala-roads of the House re-elected Thos L Bell, of Virginia, clerk.

Lansford L Lewis, attorney for the eastern district of Virginia.

SENATE.—Mr Conkling, of New York, presented several petitions of citizens of Albany, remonstrating against the passage of the Bland silver bill; laid on the table, the bill naving been report- explaining the apprehensions which ed to the Senate.

In presenting the memorials, he said they were signed by men representing not only money and property, but enterprise also, and they express d the would be prejudicial to the honor and

At the expiration of the morning hour the Senate resumed the consideration of the unfinished business, being the resolution of Mr Matthews, of Ohio, declaring the right of the government to pay the interest and principal of the bonds in silver, and Mr Merri-mon, of North Carolins, spoke in favor thereof. He said the subject was worthy of the most serious consideration, and he trusted a free and frank expression of views would lead the Senate to wise and wholesome conclusion. He would discuss the resolution submitted by the Senator from Ohio, (Mr Matthews), and not the expediency of re-monetizing silver. He would never consent that the honor and good faith of the government should be impaired in the slightest degree. The naked question before the Senate was whether the government could lawfully pay its creditors in silver of the standard value of July 14, 1870.

He then reviewed at some length the financial legislation since 1862, and quoted from various acts to show that all the bonds issued were payable in legal tender coin of the United States. When these acts were passed, there were but two species of coin established by law, to wit: gold and silver, and as the contract stood between the governby law, to wit: gold and silver, and as the contract stood between the govern-ment and its creditors, he government could pay its debts in both or either of these coins. The fact that there was more or less of a particular kind of coin in cir culation when the bonds were issued, did not affect the contract at all. It had been argued that the creditors of the government did not have the silver dollar in view when they bought the bonds, because silver was not then in circulation. That made no difference. The law then provided for the coinage of the silver dollar as well as the gold dollar, and had it been intended to exclude the silver dollar when the bonds were issued, why was not a provision inserted for that purpose? That the government had the right to pay its bonds in silver was clear, and he could not see how any such action could be looked upon as repudiation. He spoke of the business prostration and suffering existing throughout the country, and argued that it was the effect of unwise legislation. The finan-cial legislation since the war had been peace and good by the requirements of business since the panic of 1873. Nothing had flour-ished save government bonds.

Adjourned to Monday.

Senators Lamar, of Mississippi, and Jones, of Florida, will speak next week on the silver bill.

THE ENGLISH PARLIAMENT.

The Eastern Question Fully Discussed and England's Position Defined-Some Sharp Sparring.

LONDON, Jan 18.—In the debate on the address in the House, Lord Granville said the utterances of Beaconsfield during the recess had been couched in a tone of belligerent neutrality, and had differed from the sentiments ex pressed by his colleagues. If the assurances given by Prussia in regard to the British interests were unsatisfac Washington, Jan 18.—A bill was introduced by Whyte, of Maryland, to repeal section 2,917 of the revised statutes, fixing a standard for riversed.

Lord Beaconsfield said the summons Referred to the committee on Finance | to Parliament was issued when there Voorhees, by request, introduced a at first appeared to be an opportunity bill for revising and continuing the for the inauguration of peace negotiacourt of commussioners of the Alabama tions. The Porte's appeal to England claims and for the distribution of the to intimate her readiness to open peace unappropriated moneys of the Geneva negotiations was, in a measure, made award. Referred to the committee at the instance of the British governon the Judiciary.

The Lori lards, of New York, will appear before the sub-committee of the Ways and Means committee, too morrow, in the interest of retaining the present tax on tobacco.

The Ways and Means committee of pudiated the accusation of a division in the cabinet. When the government, after metara deliberation decided upon have passed a resolution to the effect that they will not hear delegations representing special interests.

The Elections committee have remarked in the cabinet. When the government, after mature deliberation, decided upon a policy of neutrality, they were not influenced by considerations in regard to the value of Kars and Batoum, but ported in favor of seating Wigginton, had to consider the policy and condi-Democrat, from California. had to consider the policy and condi-tions of many other countries. The government never varied from the decision they had first arrived at Lord Beaconsfield declared that he had written no letter on public affairs during the recess, and had spoken only disabilities of Charles L Scott, of Alabama. After an hour spent on private bills, eulogies of the late Senator Mortor, of Indiana, were pronounced and the House adjourned till Monday.

Nominations: A H Pool, Marshal of California; G W F Vernon, Collector of Customs of Baltimore; Frank N Wicker, Collector of Customs at Key West; Geo Williamson, Collector of Customs at New Orleans; Geo Ba dey, receiver of public moneys at New Orleans; of wealth of safeguards of the strength once, and then in the presence of his ecciver of public moneys at New Oreans.

Of wealth of safeguards of the strength of the country. When they spoke thus they were told that it was a mistake to suppose that there was an interest peculiar to England, or if there was, In executive session the Senate confirmed Jas R Jolly, collector of customs of the Teche district of Louisiana, and defining British interests, justified the reported to have been burned. defining British interests, justified the imputation of selfishness, as all countries frankly declared that they were actuated by the same motives He did not admit that the government's having summoned Parliament imposed upon them the duty o immediately caused them to do so. Suffice it to say that negotiations had been brought about which might or might not be successful The government considered that there were British interests which must not be endangered if the contest goes on. Parliament approves of the credit of the government.

He also presented the memorial of the Albany board of trade against the passage of that bill; laid on the table.

goes on: Talliament approves of the policy of conditional neutrality and the guarding of these interests. The least they could do was to give the government the means of guarding government the means of guarding Beaconsfield pointed to the opening of the present negotiations as proof that England was not isolated or uninfluenced. Probably more difficult negotiations than the present were never commenced, but he hoped that they might lead through many obsta cles to the termination of the present struggle. There was another kind of decay. At the beginning of the century England alone asserted her national independence, and if the same cause was again at stake, or if any power again threatened the world with a predominence fatal to national liberty, ne felt confident that the House would not fear the charge of being isolated, if it stood as one in maintaining such a cause and fighting for British interests. He concluded as follows: "If in the negotiations British influence increased, as God grant it may, I will express the unanimous sentiment of the government that that influence will be used for the great interests of humanity and for securing stable and enduring peace; but if we are called upon to defend the rights and interests of England; if our present hopes and proffers of peace are unanswered; if there are circumstances that demand that we should appeal again and again to Parliament for means of vindicating the honor and interests of the country, I am certain the government will never fail to take that course." (Loud cheers.)

The Duke of Argyle said Beaconsfield's speech was brilliant but evasive. It was to be noted as a significant fact that it made no mention of the independence and integrity of the Ottoman Empire. If the government meant that however long Turkey resisted, Russia would be precluded from enter ing Constantinople, the gravest quesions would arise.

The Marquis of Salisbury emphatically defied that the cabinet was divided or England isolated. The summoning of Parliament could not encourage the Turks to resist, as they had been repeatedly told to expect no assistance from England. The government had done all in its power to secure calculated to enhance the value of the bonds of the government in the hands of its creditors. In the natural order of of its creditors. In the natural order of things after the close of the war specie payments would have returned, and prosperity existed throughout the country, but the interested bondholders could not wait for things in their natural order. It was too slow. It was thought that a rapid contraction of the paper currency would restore prosperity, and the early resumption of specie payments. This course of contraction has been pursued, but unhappily none of the good results anticipated followed. The volume of paper currency in circulation had been regulated by the government and not by the requirements of business since carrying out your confidence."
The address was then agreed to.

"A Penny Saved is a Penny Earned."

THE GREAT WAR.

The Turkish Council of Peace-The Sultan Presides-Suleiman Pasha at Phillipopelis-He is Burning as He Goes.

LONDON, Jan 17.—No news has been received from Suiteman Pasha yet, At Harmanli where the Russian troops are Harmanli where the Russian troops are said to have arrived is an important point on his line of retreat to Adrian ople. If the Russians have gained that point before him, as there is no reason to doubt, he has not only Gen Gourko's pursuit to beat back, but will be taken in the flank by the column marching from Eski Saghra, while the force posted at Harmanli stands directly in his front. Sulieman Pasha's force includes a division he brought from Bulgaria, the garrisons of Sofia from Bulgaria, the garrisons of Sofia and other towns up to Nisch, and Chakir Pasha's army from Kamarli. All, however, are by this time badly broken and weakened by their hasty retreat and frequent encounters with their pursuers.

CONSTANTINOALE, 9.40 P. M., Jan 17 .-A report current here to day that the bulk of Suleiman Pasha's army had passed through the enemy's lines, and arrived near Adrianople, proves to be premature. Nothing is known of the position of Suleiman's army.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Jan 18 .- The cabinet council to-day deliberated upon messures for the defence of Constantinople. Two squadrons of Cossacks having arrived at Tirnova, were sent to escort the Turkish peace delegation to Kersantik. The Turkish commandant at the former place believed an attack was intended, and blew up the railway
