LOCAL BRIEFS

Business men complained of too much leisure yesterday.

The book stores have been crowded for a day or two past by purchasers of Valentines.

Hon David A. Jenkins, of Gaston, ex-State treasurer, is in the city for a day or two.

Charlotte has rarely ever seen more gaiety than she has enjoyed within the past two months.

Again last night the skies were overcast with clouds and again the ground hog promises to belie his traditions.

Another correspondent comes to the front this morning with an article on hell. They all talk about it.

The war news caused a big tumble in cotton here, yesterday, and the cotton men think the outlook gloomy.

Yesterday was one of your calm, quiet, beautiful days; pleasant to everybody except men in search of news.

There is an unmailable package in the postoffice, addressed to Mrs D. E. Mendenhall, Jamestown, N. C.

The box sheet for the Brignoli opera troupe will be opened this morning at 10 o'clock at the Central Hotel cigar stand.

The cotton factory talk has revived with renewed interest, and there are some who affirm that it will certainly be built now.

A German will be given to-night by some of the young men of the city at the room lately occupied by the Harmonie Club.

A telegram in this morning's paper represents the Brignoli combination as having drawn immensely in Richmond.

Politics will aid the weather in keeping the sovereigns hot next summer. More than the usual interest will attach to the members of the Legislature from the fact that the election of a United States Senator will devolve upon them.

straightened Out Again.

The bridge over Staunton river on the Richmond & Danville Railroad has been again placed in position and trains are running over it once more.

The mail train which left Richmond yesterday morning passed over it and connected last evening with the train for Charlotte. It is hoped that the troubles are over with now, but this is dependent upon the weather between now and the first of April, by which time it is hoped the new iron bridge will be ready to be put in.

Arrival of Parties Charged With Defrauding the Postoffice Department.

Col T. B. Long, of Salisbury, special agent of the postoffice department, has been in South Carolina, and Georgia, (both of which States are included in the district over which he has jurisdiction) looking up frauds in the postoffice department. Last week he arrested a party in Augusta charged with changing the figures on postoffice orders, which were sent to New York and accepted before the fraud was detected.

The following special dispatch to this paper was received last night, dated Columbia, S. C., February 12th:

Patrick J. Murray, the accomplished mail depredator of the South, was arrested and jailed here to-day by Col T. B. Long, special agent postoffice department.

There is Nothing Like Having a sufficient quantity of a good thing. Dooley's Yeast Powder is the best in the baking power line, and there is economy in buying the one pound and five pound cans. It is cheaper in proportion than the smaller sizes.

That New Idea of Lighting Cities

The other day we copied among our miscellaneous matter a selection from a newspaper telling that it had recently been determined to light the streets of Macon, Ga., by means of locomotive headlights, and that the experiment had thus far proved highly satisfactory.

Tragic Death of a Former Member of the Legislature

A correspondent at Lexington sends us an account of the tragic death of a well known citizen of Davidson county. The town was thrown into a state of excitement, Monday, by the announcement of the fact that the body of Jacob T. Brown, Esq., formerly a member of the Legislature from Davidson, had been found in a small stream about a mile from Lexington.

The Brignoli Opera Troupe—A Splendid Array of Talent

It may be safely said that never before have the people of Charlotte had such an array of musical talent and culture as will be presented at the opera house next Friday night. The Brignoli company has not long been organized, but it comprises artists who have been among the best in this country and Europe for years.

The Washington Correspondent of the Cincinnati Enquirer

It is the damnablest piece of nonsense, the damndest piece of silliness ever heard of. Any pack of damned fools, or any one damned fool, can sometimes destroy an army; but it takes the intelligence of Satan to create one. I look upon it as the damndest piece of idiocy of the age.

Vested With the Pallium

On Sunday, Archbishop Gibbons, late of the diocese of North Carolina, was vested with the pallium, one of the sacred insignia pertaining to the archbishopric. The pallium is a small vestment, which when worn hangs over the shoulders, the ends of which are united on the back and on the breast.

The Baptist Ladies' Concert Last Night

An unusually large assemblage gathered in the elegant dining room of the Central Hotel last night to hear the concert gotten up by the Baptist ladies for the benefit of their church.

An Exceedingly Interesting Feature of the Entertainment

The entertainment was a recitation and reading by Miss Emma McDowell. The "Bells," considered one of the most difficult pieces in the language, was given with fine expression, and received by the audience with applause.
