A Lively interchange of Endearing Expressions.

[Special to the Baltimore Sun.] WASHINGTON, May 8 -- A very exciting scene occurred on the floor of the House yesterday, between Representa-tives Kelley and O'Neill, of Pennsyl-vania. Both of the gentlemen represent Philadelphia districts, and are among the very oldest members of the House, Mr Kelley being in his eighteenth year of service and Mr O'Neill in his fourteenth year. They both assume to be and are considered as the peculiar champions of a protective tariff, which day to take up the Wood tariff bill, which is so obnexious to the Pennsylvania members, Mr O'Neill, in an exsake of gratifying your egotism and getting a chance to make a speech you vote to take up a measure which is ruinous to my constituents and your own." Judge Kelley replied, "I am doing what I think is right, but when I have a collar around my neck and you hold the string, then you can lead me." Mr O'Neill said,"I would not own such a pup." Judge Kelley to this retorted, "If ever you dare to speak to me again I will smack your chops." The colloquy was also inter spersed with some of that choice profanity which the late Senator Nye used to characterize as "endearing expressions." The two gentlemen were getting very warm, but through the in-strumentality of friends who interfered the scene was brought to a close. Afterwards Judge Kelley stated that courtesy that there should be an op-portunity for the bill to be discussed, and for this reason he had voted to calling, the mother used the full given take it up. From the spicy interchange of civilities between the two gentlemen it may be assumed that the fires of me?" youth still burn in their veins, although Mr O'Neill is closely verging on to three-score and Judge Kelley has long since passed that age.

THE MASTERS AND MEN.

An Adjustment in One Quarter and a Strike Pending in Another.

London, May 9.—This afternoon's Echo published the following telegram: "Blackburn, May 9.—Somebody is softening. The Masters' Associations have authorized their members to make any arrangement they please with their hands. Messrs Boothman have set their large mill in motion with a full complement of hands on the operatives' terms."

London, May 9.—The master cotton spinners at Ashten-under-Tyle, Staley

He then proceeded to give all the details he could, and the result was Mrs Bailey wrote to her mother, who resides within a few miles of this city, and the last-named secured the fortune and is now enjoying the fruits of her flaughter's hospitality to the tramp.

Where They Hide Their Money

[Cincinnati Commercial.] Mrs Hansen put $50 in the oven of her stove one night to keep it safe. Next morning after breakfast the national debt had been diminished exactly that much, A student of the curious would find it interesting to note the places in which women hide their money. One excellent and frugal dame used to tuck her little savings away un-der a corner of the carpet. The tiny roll of greenbacks grew fatter and fatter in the course of a year or two, when, the day after it counted up to $250, the house took fire, burned to the ground and again the national debt was diminished by a little roll of woman's pin money. There was that Capt Parrish, the superintendent of other careful lady, too, who used someboard, sometimes behind a certain brick in the cellar and again under the lining of an old hat. She had divers other places of safety for her jewels aldren and colored set so, the only trouble being that she had duction for families. so many hiding places, she occasionally forgot where she had last put her precious things, and about every three months would fancy she had been robbed and the house would be turned in-side out and all therein made un-Salem Press: On the 1st inst, the comfortable until the missing gems would be found tucked away in the folds of the bottom towel of the pile in the left hand corner of the lower drawer in the clothes-press at the east end

Honest and Dishonest Profanity.

Some one in a crowd took occasion to mildly rebuke old Ben Wade for his profanity. He turned on his self constituted moral instructor and asked : "Don't you swear sometimes?" "No, sir."

But the base cowards who try to deceive their Maker by their 'darn its' and their 'durn its'-hell is full of such fellows."

It must be borne in mind that he illustrated his point as he went along with "full, round and distinct" oaths,

[London (Ont.) Advertiser]

A story has been told us which seems to go far in corroboration of the late Boss Tweed's theory of chances. It is said that something over a year ago a tramp called at the house of Mr Bailey, he was just as much opposed to the tariff bill as any one could be, which permission to stop all night. A little permission led to his request being was of course well known, but as a persuasion led to his request being member of the Ways and Means com. granted, and he was also asked to take mittee he had agreed as a matter of supper. During the meal Mrs Bailey courtesy that there should be an opname of the child:

"Isabella Stevens, don't you hear The tramp looked up as if interested and remarked, musingly "Isabella Stevens? Isabella Stevens? Have you got any relations of that manie?"

"Yes," said the lady, "that was my mother's maiden name."

"There is," said the tramp, "an immense fortune in Cornwall, England, which has been for twenty years awaiting a claimant of that name who is

Passing through the White House grounds yesterday I saw the cow that furnishes the administration with milk. For be it known that the administration keeps four horses, but only one shigle solitary cow. President Grant bought his milk ready made, but Mr Hayes, who is of a more economical turn of mind, has it made on the premises. The aforesaid cow is an animal of some consequence to the nation; for as a man's humor is affected by his bile, and his bile is affected by the milk he drinks, so, if this cow should sour Mr Hayes' stomach he might make us feel it. It is not a pretty specimen of a cow, being rather lantern-jawed than otherwise, lopsided, and with "crumpled horn," but in view of its intimate relations to the administration's bowels, it is an interesting cow, nevertheless. But she ought to be kept away from the garlio patches, or there may be trouble in
