DAVIDSON COLLEGE.

The Annual Commencement.

Large Crowd-Pleasant Weather Meeting of the Trustees-Speech of Hon. Gustavus J. Orr. of Georgia.

The commencement exercises of this venerable institution were under full blast yesterday, and the village was crowded with visitors. Though the first public exercise began at 11 o'clock in the morning, several interesting matters occurred previous to this, and will be noted in their proper order. The first of these was the annual MEETING OF THE TWO LITERARY SOCIETIES the Philanthropic and Eumenean, Tuesday night. As in every other institution of a similar character, these are always exceedingly interesting occasions to the students and to the alumni of the college. It affords the latter an opportunity of renewing their associations with the scenes and surroundings of their first forensic efforts, and collections of their lives, while to the mind of the student who, whatever may be his habits of study, always takes a pride in his society, it is only second in importance to the occasion when he receives from the college his honorary members being admittedthe general character of the proceedings always leaks out. The members of each society who belong to the graduating class, are given diplomas annually, and several speeches are made by the students. The annual address before the Eumenean society this year was made by R P Davis, of Monroe. The Philanthropic having failed to se cure an alumni orator, induced Rev E H Harding, of Charlotte, who is an honorary member, to repeat the address delivered before the cadets of the Caro-

After a graceful allusion to the pleasure which it afforded him to appear before the students of Davidson College, and to the fact that he himself was a descendant of a citizen of Mecklenburg county, the speaker announced that he had chosen for his theme The Selection of a Profession, and that differing from usage on such occasions, he would address himself mainly to the graduating class.

As the address will be published in full at the request of the two literary societies, no attempt will be made to reproduce it here. The address was mainly devoted to the analysis of the qualifications for such professions as are usually adopted by the young men of the country who have received an education in the colleges. It was eminently practical and abounded in advice to the young men to whom he was addressing himself.

A Complaint Against the Cemetery. Authorities.

Editor Charlotte Observer-

Yesterday afternoon two elderly ladies went to the cemetery to place flowers on some graves, when some little distance in the grounds they were met by a white man and three negroes. The white man, who I learn is named Thomas, told them in a very gruff manner to leave as the gates were about to be closed. They informed him they were only going a short way into the grounds, and would then leave. He again ordered them to leave and as they passed on he went out, locking the gates after him.

Now, sir, I would like to know if this is the treatment the public is to expect from its employes. I understand that there is an hour for locking the gates. Who appointed it? Why has it never been published? Ladies who have no carriages to ride in cannot walk out to the cemetery in the heat of the day. Are they to be debarred the privilege of visiting the graves of their friends in the coo of the evening because they fear they will be locked in by surly fellows like Mr Thomas? This is not the first time this amiable gentleman has played the same trick. On another occasion he ordered a young gentleman and lady to leave, and though they followed him he locked the gate in their faces, they being some fifteen paces behind him, and went off with the key in his pocket, forcing the lady to climb the fence, as was the case yesterday afternoon with those ladies, of fifty years each.

If Mr Rooke will insist on having such assistants, then I think it time to secure another keeper of the cemetery.
