Over the soldier's sepulchre, "where heaved the turf in many a mouldering heap," the ripe grain now waves a fitting sen-tinel of the soldier's slumber. How changed the scene of to-day

Seventeen years ago all was bustle and animation and enthusiasm. Now the sword is welded into the ploughshare, and the spear into the pruning hook. Every vestige of war is gone, save here and there a solitary ch mney attests the fearful ravages of internecine strife. Warrenton at last! Three hours and half to go fifty six miles! No wonder one dreads to travel on Southern railroads. It is much from this cause that the South has been so backward. much more desirable to be eaten. I have nowhere else tasted such sweet, in developing her immense resources. Here we find as pretty a little town as you will see in this State. Nestled among the hills, with fertile valleys on there may also be some question, and I doubt if it could obtain in a country either side, she looks the picture of content. Little progress has she made for a half century. There she sits as vests chicken life of much of its roshe has been for years, looking down on her valley and the valley smiling up on her valley and the valley smiling up in return. We find the little town quite alive with Washingtonians, who, to escape the heat and dust of the city, have hid themselves away in this cosy little vil-lage. The society to be found here is famous all over Virginia, and every lage. The society to be found here is famous all over Virginia, and every summer we have the most delightful social gathering to be found in the State. Among the notable men who have their residence here we mention General Hunton, the representative from this district, and General W H Payne a man beloved by all his neighfrom this district, and General W H Payne, a man beloved by all his neigh-bors. Here, too, Mosby, the famous cavalry chieftain, resides. Because of his political opinions he has lost much of his former popularity, and could not now be elected a county magistrate He is a strong Grant man, and pre-dicts his nomination and election in 1880. For a town of 1500 innabitants War-renton may be said to be a newspaper centre. I find three weeklies all in a prosperous condition. The Index and Solid South are strong Hunton papers. The Enterprise, edited by Alex Hun-Whilst Asleep

The Enterprise, edited by Alex Hun-ter, the brilliant correspondent of the Washington Capital, is supposed to be in Neale's interest. Here, as elsewhere, politics are beginning to grow warmer as the canvass progresses. It is diffi-cult to form any opinion as to the re-sult in this district. Neale, a member of the last Legislature, is working night and day to beat Hunton for the nomination and obtain it for himself. He has already spent, it is stated, some
