A LEAF.

Five long summers have passed since then Fach has been plessant in its own— And you are but one of a dcz m men Who have played the suitor a summe

But, nevertheless, when I heard your name Coupled with some one's, not my own,
There burned in my bosom a sudden fiame
That carried me back to the day that is

I was sitting again by the laughing brook, With you at my feet, and the sky above, And my heart was fluttering under your

Tt e unmistakable look of love.

Again your breath, like a south wind, fan My cheek, where the blushes came and And the tender clasp of your strong, warm

Sudden thrills through my pulses sent.

Again you are mine by love's own right— Mine forever by love's decree-So for a moment it seemed last night. When somebody mentioned your name

Just for a moment I thought you mine— Loving me, wooing as of old. That tale remembered seemed half divine-Though I held it lightly enough when

The past seemed fairer than when it was near, As "blessings brighten when taking flight,"
And just for the moment I held you dear—
When somebody mentioned your name last night.

STATE NEWS.

Geese cackle in the streets of Raleigh to the annoyance of the inhabitants.

Judge Tourgee denies that he intends to leave the State.

Raleigh Observer: Yesterday was received by the Agricultural Department the report of the Agricultural Statistics of Craven county taken by the county tax list taker. This is the second of the kind yet received by the Department, Camden having sent hers in some weeks ago. The Department is urgent in its request that all of the counties should respond at once, as the reports will be soon needed.

Line Railroads had ordered a reducthe rumor was true, and the order goes into effect October 1st. The cause inducing this reduction is not that they were receiving too much for their labor now but that the same had been done on other roads of the country. October 1st is named for the commencement of this reduction in order that those who don't like it and desire to leave may have ample opportunity to obtain employment elsewhere.
