O, HEART, BE TRUE!

[From the Companion.] O heart, be strong ! There is so much for all to bear.

So much to do in life's short day, Think not that thou shouldst rest; prepared To do thy part and take thy share And join the fray ; Gird on the sword of might, and battle wrong, Be strong, my heart, be strang !

E'se in the thickest of the fight, At times, thou mayest fall and shrink ; Remember thou art in God's sight, And care not what-if thou art right-The world may think,

Bright victory's banner yet shall o'er thee Be brave, my heart, be brave!

O heart, be true!
True to thyself and to thy God,
Though all around thy path may change,
Though oft the road that thou has trod, To those that hear no guiding word, Seems hard and strange, Whatever else the wide world may do, Be true, my heart, be true!

When we Demoralize the Stomach

By excesses or imprudence in eating, we cannot hope to escape the consequences for any great length of time. The most robust digestion must succumb to abuses of that important function. But supposing that we have been foolish enorgh to enfeeble the stomach, is the damage irreparable? By no means. The dyspeptic has only to do two things to insure his ultimate recovery. First, he should adopt an easily digestible diet. Becond, he should use with regnlarity and persistence Hestetter's Stomach Bitters, the leading gastric invigorant of the age. The multiform symptoms of dyspep-sia, and the almost invariably attendant disorders, billousness and constipation, will assuredly cease to persecute the sufferer if the above advice is attended to. Who that has suffered the torments that chronic indigestion in flicts will neglect to take advantage of a remedy which, if the most positive evidence of the medical profession and the public is to be received with due credence, is an absolute specific for the complaint.
