UNDER THE PRESENT SYSTEM

—OF DAILY ORDERS,—

My business has been increased so much an extent, that I have been forced to add a new line of goods to my varied and extensive stock. I have on hands and am receiving a new and complete line of heavy made clothing in fancy and diagonal

Cashmere Suits, Chinchilla and Cashmere Overcoats, bought since the decline, so that I can give my customers the ADVANTAGES OF THE LOW PRICES.

I have also added a beautiful stock of Trunks and Valises to my present line, bought from first hands at bottom prices.

Also, a third stock of Colored Cashmires and Dress Goods. A new lot of those beautiful Brocade.

Come and see my new lot of Plain Dress Goods,

"Though Lost to Sight to Memory Dear."

To the Editor of the News and Courier:

One of your correspondents, in a recent issue, asks for the author of "Though Lost to Sight to Memory Dear." This familiar line appears in a poem by Rufus W. Hendry, first published in the Greenwich Magazine one hundred and seventy years ago. Hendry has something similar in his

"In Memoriam," a very pretty poem for you.

"Sweetheart, good-bye! the fluttering sail is spread to waft me far from thee,

And soon before the evening breeze

My ship shall bound upon the sea,

Perchance, all desolate and forlorn,

These parting words I say to thee,

Perchance, all desolate and forlorn,

These parting words I say to thee,

Perchance, all desolate and forlorn,

These parting words I say to thee,

Perchance, all desolate and forlorn,

These parting words I say to thee,

Perchance, all desolate and forlorn,

These parting words I say to thee,

Perchance, all desolate and forlorn,

These parting words I say to thee,

Perchance, all desolate and forlorn,

These parting words I say to thee,

Perchance, all desolate and forlorn,

These parting words I say to thee,

Perchance, all desolate and forlorn,

Waiting for a Woman.

Have you ever waited for a woman to "get ready" to go anywhere? Of course you have, and will be interested in what follows, written by Kate Thorn. The hour was 3.30. Marie is not ready. At 4 she will be down in just one moment, but even at this hour, if you could look into Marie's chamber, you would be in despair.

Her "crimps" are not taken down, her boots unbuttoned, her pull-back elastic corset around of gear, and the maid is fixing the hair, but even at this hour, if you could look into Marie's chamber, you would be in despair. Her
