The drummer held at he was not a tradecount. that he was not a tradesman and had not offered his wares for sale in the city. Meyers brought in a his wares for sale in the city. Meyers brought in a witness to prove that he had done so, and also proved that he (Meyers) had tried to induce the drummer to take out a license and avoid trouble. The detective met him coming out of a jewelry store, on Market street, and commanded him to halt. He disregarded this notice, and a slight tussle ensued between the two. However, the drummer did not mean to resist the law, and after a little resistance followed the detective before the mayor. The evidence above related appearing correct, Mayor Fishblate fined him $25 for drumming without a city license, $20 for resisting and abusing the officer, and $3 for a city license. The drummer reofficer, and $3 for a city license. The drummer re-fused to pay this and was committed to the city prison until he shall pay up.—Wilmington Sun.

Wilmington is a city governed by Radicals, but they certainly have the good quality of showing a determination to protect and do justice to home-dealers who pay taxes and house rents. Will are heavily taxed to support the city government as well as the State and Why don't Charlette?

The board of aldermen of this city have imposed a heavy tax on our own home people called "street, drummers;" why don't they tax the fellows who come here from abroad and stop at the hotels and who sell their goods and wares in rather a private, clandestine manner, without a license or the payment of a tax? We call the attention of the mayor to the matter. ... Our detemporary, as usual, is level-headed, and in this instance makes a home thrust. Something ought to be done to protect our home tax-paying merchants from the hordes of drummers who scour the country from one end to the other. But what shall be done? The board of aldermen, we understand, matter in hand and starts the ball by Gen. Gary "ought to take sumthin'." arousing public sentiment to the extent of carrying around a petition to the Legislature for signatures.

The chamber of commerce is called to meet to-night. Suppose the subject is discussed in all its bearings in that body, then let the members go to work to remedy the evil of which complaint is made. As we understand it, the law those on whom the burden of the State government naturally rests. If this be the proper view of the case, and it can ject, then the same power which made the original law can alter, amend or the object intended.

THE OBSERVER is in full accord with those of its contemporaries who are opposed to this returning board system The very name smacks of jobbery and the system is wholly un-North Carolinian. It is dangerous from the fact that the time may come when the operation of it may fall into dishonest hands; and it is obnoxious from the fact that it may in the meantime subject honest men to suspicion. It passes comprehension that such a system should have been inaugurated in this State at the very time when it was in its waiting for an encore, worst oder throughout the country, on account of the manipulations of the bodies which flourished under this name in Louisiana and Florida. No objection had ever been raised, so far as heard of to the old system by which the sheriffs of the several counties of a congressional district met at a given time and place to compare the returns no good reason has ever been made to been set aside and replaced by one of the most odions relics of Radical rule in the South. As soon as Mr. Manlinsohn recovered himself sufficiently to give the alarm he screamed at the top of his voice, which attracted the people sleeping on the premises, and they at once ran to his assistance. Mr. Manlinsohn was found bleeding profusely from the gash over the left eye, which was swollen and closed, and showed with the wound above it that the blow must have been a yery powerful one. The wound is not, however, necessarily fatal. . .

In the House a resolution was adopted instructing the finance committee to inquire and report whether the present State of Virginia is liable for the whole debt of the old State of Virginia, which includes that portion set apart as West Virginia.

Another resolution was indopted inquiring into the expediency of so changing the constitution as to relieve the State from imposing a tax for the support of public free schools, and making it the duty of the counties and corporations to levy, collect and disburse taxes for that purpose.

Washington, Dec. 6.—The joint commission having underconsideration the proposed transfer of the Indian Bureau from the civil to the military departheard the views of Secretary Schurz this morning. If it was not that he considered it lished a splendid circular that cost best for the service and the government | them some $200.00. generally that the management of Indian affairs should remain where it is, he would be the last one to advocate it, He thought the Indians were entitled to humane treatment at the hands of the American citizens, and that that could only be tendered through the process of civilization, education and kind treatment. This, he said, in his judgment. the military were not fitted to promote. The secretary quotes at considerable length from the report of the Sioux commission, signed by Generals Sherman, Ferry, Auger and others, setting forth in effect that if peace with the Indians was required the management of their affairs should be placed under the civil department of the governthese gentlemen on this point. A Problem Long Since Solved.

How to remedy those prolific causes of disease, an impoverished circulation and an impaired digestion, was a problem the solution of which had often baffled medical skill, but which was solved over a quarter of a century ago by the introduction of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters to public and professional notice. Since that time, which may well be said to have initiated a new epoch in the history of medicine, the remedy and preventive referred to has obtained a foothold in the confidence of the American people that each succeeding year has only served to strengthen. It is recognized throughout the Union as a tonic of the first order, a remedy for and sure means of preventing fever and ague, and disorders of the stomach and bowels; as a re-liable means of reforming a disordered state of the liver, and of counteracting a tendency to rheumam, gout, urinary and uterine disorders,
