

The number of failures that occur from year to year and from month to month is considered an index to the general condition of prosperity of a country. In these times when all the people are eagerly questioning if the days of prosperity are indeed returning, the statistics of the failures of the last year, as compared with those of previous years, possess unusual interest. It is frequently remarked that the state of business cannot be improving because numerous and heavy failures are taking place in every part of the world. It is well that we can intelligently investigate this problem. Even if the statistics were not such as to inspire a great degree of hopefulness, it would be wise to give them a careful scrutiny, that so far as may be, we may take our bearings, and know just where we stand, and what course we may best pursue. The mercantile agency of R. G. Dun & Co., has prepared a table which enables us to trace the course of the hard times in the failures that have taken place during the last eleven years.

In the year 1878 there were, in the United States, 10,478 failures, with total liabilities of $234,363,132. In 1877 there were 8,872 failures, with total liabilities of $190,669,630. In 1876 the failures numbered 9,002, and the total liabilities were $191,117,788. In 1875 the failures numbered 7,740 and the total liabilities were $201,000,853. In 1874 the failures numbered 6,830 and the total liabilities amounted to $159,239,000. In 1873 there were 5,183 failures and total liabilities were $228,469,000. In 1872 there were 4,069 failures, and the total liabilities were $121,056,000. A candid presentation of the facts compels the admission that during the last seven years the number of failures has rapidly increased, although the total liabilities have not increased in the same proportion. It is possible to take a very gloomy view of the statistics before us, as the people who are by nature and by long continued habit accustomed to look on the dark side of things will doubtless do. But, on the other hand, it is possible to interpret the record of the exact facts as to the failures of the past seven years, hopefully, and to such an outlook let us conduct our readers.

Take the statistics of the year 1878 for our starting point. Of the 10,478 failures of the year, 3,555 occurred in January, February and March; 2,470 during the next three months; 2,853 during the third quarter of the year, and only 1,800 during the months of October, November and December. The record of 1877 shows no such diminution of the number of failures with the progress of the year. The failures of the first quarter of that year numbered 2,869, while those of the last quarter reached 2,307, and the total liabilities of the two quarters were not more than $6,000 apart. This construction of the case at once changes the outlook for the future. It seems to indicate that although the tide of disaster reached the flood in the year 1878, it has already begun to recede, and the failures of the year upon which we have now entered may be expected to fall far short of the year which has just closed. Such a conclusion is not unreasonable, although the utmost care is required in estimating the causes that have acted upon the business of the country to produce such an excess of failures in the beginning of the year 1878, over those of its closing months.

The influence that has undoubtedly had the most effect in producing the extreme depression in business of the last year, has been the action of Congress. It would be venture some to suggest what proportion of the financial ills of the decade are fairly attributable to the vacillating conduct of the gentlemen who annually assemble at the capitol at Washington. The great foundation upon which to rest a hope of future prosperity is the fact that the greatest of all our financial problems is now placed beyond the influence of any action of Congress, and the country knows upon what to depend. We believe statistics conclusively show that the tide of disaster has turned, and we believe that prosperity is immediately before us. The firms that have been harassed and nearly exhausted by the uncertainties of the past, are now relieved, and, having been able to survive so many misfortunes, they will, in the majority of cases, be able to enter upon a new life of prosperity with the inauguration of an unchanging system of finance. Many failures will doubtless occur in 1879, but we predict the number will be far less than in the year 1878.

WINDING UP THE CENTENNIAL BUSINESS. Last Wednesday the commissioners of the American Centennial Exhibition met in Philadelphia and wound up the last of the business of the association. The report of the treasurer showed as follows: The gross receipts amounted to $11,101,611.15; expenditures up to this time $10,990,990.59, leaving a cash balance of $110,620.56. Among other receipts mentioned were $234,690.06 from concessions; for royalties, $204,281.10; tea party donations, $79,408.22; forfeited stock, $35,946.50; sales of medals, furniture and buildings, $341,465.16; money taken at the gates, $3,834,290.99.

The Philadelphia Times says the financial management of the association was honest, economical and marked by a fair measure of intelligence. The Supreme Court of Indiana has decided, in a suit brought by a church against one of its members, that subscriptions made on Sunday are not legally binding. Hoaxers can be as liberal as they please on Sundays hereafter.

The State board of health will be in session at Raleigh this week. We understand that important legislation will be urged upon the body, now in session at the capitol.

CONGRESS'S PROCEEDINGS. The Geneva Award Bill Passes the House. What it Contains—Committee to Report in Favor of Reducing the Trade Dollar and Subsidiary Coin.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—HOUSE.—The House this morning resumed as the regular order of business the consideration of the Geneva award bill. After considerable debate at half past 5 the bill was passed by a vote of yeas 113, nays 93. The bill as passed revives and continues the court of commissioners of Alabama claims, fixes the number of judges at three and limits their existence to eight months. The first class of claims to be for damages directly done by the Confederate cruisers on the high seas although within four miles of shore. In the losses of whaling vessels ten per cent additional will be allowed in lieu of freight, and the same allowance will be made with six per cent interest on judgments heretofore rendered in favor of whaling vessels. The several classes of claims to be for additional interest on judgments; on all judgments hereafter rendered the interest allowed will be six per cent. In the third class of claims before the payment of the premiums for war risks deductions will be made of any sum paid back in mitigation of damages, so that only the actual loss shall be allowed. The secretary of the treasury is directed to pay, without further adjudication by any court, the two per cent upon whaling vessels and their outfit, with six per cent interest, and on awards heretofore made, and also to pay the present additional interest on all judgments heretofore made, judgment rendered in the first class to be paid first; then if the second class of money is not sufficient to pay all of the second class, they shall be paid pro rata, and a like rule shall also apply to the third class. No foreign born person shall be excluded if he is residing or doing business in the United States or was sailing under the United States flag.

The act is not to be construed as reviewing or continuing any of the commissions of the judges or officers of the former court. Any balance remaining shall be a fund from which Congress may hereafter authorize the payment of other claims.

COMMITTEE PROCEEDINGS. The House committee on coinage, weights and measures decided to prepare a bill for the redemption of trade dollars at par and to prohibit their further circulation in the United States. It has not been decided whether coinage export will be permitted in future.

A Scout's Testimony Before the Reno Inquiry. CHICAGO, January 18.—Scout Girard, in the Reno inquiry, gave a long account of the movements of the troops on the day of the Custer massacre, and the situation of the battlefields, and mentioned various orders given by the fighting force of Indians to have been 2,500 to 3,000. He heard several volleys of fire from fifty to a hundred shots each on the other side of the village, about the time the order was given, "Every man to his horse." Reno's force at that word left the wood where they were stationed and in ten or fifteen minutes saw Custer's command, or what they believed to be his command, and thought a force of 150 men ought to have held the Indians in check for some time.

Yes, although they may despair of relief, it is possible to obtain the relief, for the remedy which carries off, by means of increased activity of the kidneys—important channels for blood purification—the most elements to which pathologists the most eminent attribute the painful symptoms of a theory completely borne out by urine analysis. The name of this remedy is Hostetter's, a preparation likewise celebrated as a remedy for constipation, containing a combination of the blood with the bile and a certain means of relief in dyspepsia, fever and ague, and nervous ailments. It is, perhaps, the most potent, and is highly recommended as a medicinal stimulant by distinguished physicians and analysts, who pronounce it to be eminently pure and very beneficial. A Lost Italian Official.

ROME, January 18.—In the Italian Chamber of Deputies yesterday, Signor De Pretis, president of the council, in reply to an inquiry by Signor Ercole regarding the disappearance of Col. Gola, and what steps the government has taken in the matter, recapitulated the facts. Gola, Italian member of the frontier boundary commission, went from Belgrade to Bucharest with Maj. Wilson, of the same commission. The latter left Bucharest on the 3rd of December, and was to rejoin Col. Gola at Ruskuk, when they were to proceed together to Constantinople; but Major Wilson has never seen Col. Gola since he left him in Bucharest, and no trace has been found of him though official inquiries have been made in every direction.

Signor De Pretis stated that notwithstanding the most diligent efforts of the Italian government and its agents, nothing has been ascertained of the whereabouts of Col. Gola, and that no light on the mystery. He said he trusted the Roumanian government would not fail in the duty incumbent upon it of making a searching inquiry into the case.

Signor Ercole was dissatisfied with the reply. He insisted that the Roumanian government was responsible for the disappearance of Col. Gola, and declared that if the Italian government did not make itself respected in the matter and take such steps as appeared to him sufficient, he should move a vote of a want of confidence in the government.

Two million men were killed and a pyramid was erected from the bones from one battle-field alone, near Niere, by Solyma, as a monument to their fanaticism, and the Saracens drank beer out of their skulls. Since then, following the Reformation, in Christian countries (so called), fifty million more were slain "at by Divine appointment," making probably in all, 100,000,000 who have victimized themselves to their faith.
