HOME PENCILS.

Has anybody seen or heard anything lately of G. Lumpkins?

A hen of Mr. T. A. Kendrick produced an egg which, being hatched out, yielded a chicken with four wings and four feet.

The improvements recently made in the store of Weddington & Allen are very marked. Always one of the most attractive places of business in the city, it is now handsomer and more attractive than ever.

Baltimore Shirt Price is at the Central Hotel. He is not opening goods for sale, owing to the heavy license tax, but putting in his time darning the boys for what they had already bought.

The road overseer on John Sossamon's section summoned the men to work on the public road on a certain day last week, and he appeared promptly, armed with his mother's fire-shovel, prepared to put Monday's labor as the law directs.

What with being gagged to death with the stench of guano and in hourly danger of being burnt to the ground from the fire in some ash-box related a chicken with four wings and four feet.

It was given out in the Superior Court yesterday that there would be no jury trials to-day and the jury for the first week was accordingly discharged. To-day's session of the court will be devoted to the hearing of motions.

Brother McDowell, editor of the Home, has accepted an invitation to deliver an address at Steel Creek Academy, under the management of Mr. W. S. Moore, next Friday, on the occasion of the annual examination of the students.

The mayor had the young man from Providence up yesterday morning for reckless inebriety, but let him off with a small fine, on the condition that he should pay for a certain front window glass which he had broken with his heavy arm in a moment of undue excitement.

Mr. T. D. Ruddock, of Charleston, S. C., opens a class for instruction in vocal music this afternoon at 4 o'clock, in the Second Presbyterian church of this city. Mr. R. has been selected as the soloist for the benefit of that congregation, but of course it is free to all wishing to join the class.

Personal. Hon. Samuel F. Phillips, an able and distinguished North Carolinian, now Auditor-General of the Department of Justice, was in this city yesterday. He came in on the 1 o'clock train from the North yesterday morning, and left on the North train last evening, at 7 o'clock, making but a brief business trip.

Society Celebration. Yesterday was the third anniversary of the Philadelphia association at Bidwell University, and the occasion was fully celebrated by orations, essays and songs by the members. The subject of the debate was a resolution declaring "that the forcing system in government is more effective than the persuasive."

The participants in the exercises of the evening included the names of young colored men from North Carolina, South Carolina, Tennessee and Ohio.

A Chase After a Daylight Thief.

A wagoner left his vehicle standing in the rear of Wittkowsky & Burch's store yesterday, and on returning discovered a negro in the act of stealing several packages from it. The negro on finding that he was discovered, started through the store with the packages under his arm, and the owner thereof in pursuit. The fellow was followed so closely that he dropped the load in the flight of stairs over Hart's, making his way down the other flight into the back yard. Policeman Blackwelder and a crowd started in pursuit, with the owner of the packages in the lead. At this instant Policeman Stevens took in the situation, as he thought, and also started in pursuit of the foremost man who was trying to catch the negro, the whole crowd going around the First Presbyterian church yard square. Stevens finally fired off his pistol, making his man stop, but without effect. On everybody went, until the thief made the distance between himself and the crowd so great that he was lost to sight and the chase was given up.

Another Cocking Main-North Carolina and Georgia.

The Atlanta Constitution, of Wednesday, says: "We learned on yesterday of a main between the famous shawnee cocks, of Georgia, and the clary-crows, of North Carolina. These cocks have met before in hotly-contested battles, and the shawnees have come off winners." We may stop here to say that the "clary-crow of North Carolina" is altogether a mythical bird. There is here a strain of cocks of which Mr. Edward Glavin, of this city, is the patron, called the "clary-crow" as game a bird as ever fluttered but the strain is not numerous, and they never met the shawnees in a main. Again: We had hardly supposed it would be necessary to state it again, but for the truth of history we should state that the shawnees have never whipped the clary-crows nor any other lot of North Carolina cocks in a main. In the main which was arranged between the two States, to take place in Charlotte last April, the Georgians backed down, and the clary-crows were the winners. The Constitution continues: "The North Carolinians, claim to have improved their breed very handsomely, and are now confident they can get away with the Georgia boys. It is said, indeed, that they have been breeding from the shawnees themselves." There is no shawnee blood in any of the birds which Holt and Arrington will enter in the coming main. Their stock consists of Jim Jenkins, grays, red quills, Irish reds and cripple tony grays.

Our esteemed contemporary says further: "It is said that the main is arranged for the 27th of April, and that it will last four or five days. The main will be a very hotly-contested one if it is fought, and will bring hundreds of sporting men to the city. The figures for the main are put at $5,000, including the wagers on the several fights."

The Festival of Purim.

Although the festival of Purim begins to-day, the Jews in many parts of the world began to celebrate it on Tuesday night—the beginning of the feast of Esther. The feast of Purim derives its origin from the story of Esther, so beautifully told in the Old Testament, and is commemorated by the observance of the Jews through her instrumentality from the hatred of Haman. The date of this event is set down in the Jewish chronology as 2232 years ago, or B. C. 453. The feast is preceded by the Fast of Esther, when the orthodox Jews abstain from food and drink from sunset to sunset in celebration of the three days' fast of Esther before she presented herself before Ahasuerus to defeat the plot of Haman. Services are held in all the synagogues, and the book of Esther, termed in Hebrew the Megillah, is read with appropriate prayers. Among some of the customs now extinct, save with the most ultra orthodox or Polish Jews, is one that indicated that forgiveness, is not one of the virtues of an Israelite's character. Whenever the name of Haman in mentioned in the reading of the book of Esther in these synagogues, of which there are a number in this country, the worshippers beat their breasts with their clenched fists, or even with hammers with which they provide themselves, to show their detestation of Mordecai's enemy, after these 2000 years. This custom is considered as reprehensible by the congregation of other synagogues as it would be if performed by any Christian church.

On Wednesday and Thursday are the lesser and greater feasts of Purim, and are celebrated by a day of festivities and general rejoicing. Presents are distributed and masquerade balls and parties are given. The Israelites of this city, as previously stated, will celebrate the occasion by a grand trade school ball, to be given at Metropolitan Hall Monday night.

Railroad Matters.

A meeting of the committee on rates of the Southern railway and steamship association, to which several of the railroads running into this city are attached, is in session in Charleston. It is learned that the committee have been hard at work for the last two days, considering the rules for classification adopted which went into effect on the 1st of January, revising it and making such alterations as experience has shown to be expedient. The matter has been fully discussed under the light of all the information obtainable, and a large number of changes, several hundred in the aggregate, decided upon. The general effect of these will be to lower classification rates, and to involve necessarily a proportionate lowering of the rates on the articles involved on the lines leading to the interior of the South from commercial centers. Neither cotton nor rice were touched upon. The question of rates was to have been taken up yesterday.

It is learned from a gentleman just from Mocksville that the work of locating the Winston and Salem & Moore'sville Railroad from Third creek station, on the Western North Carolina Railroad, to Mocksville, has just been completed and contracts have already been taken to build a portion of it, the balance in payment for the work. All the line between Mooresville and Third creek station is under contract and several miles of it have been graded. The people of Mocksville, who have been for years clamorous for a railroad to Henderson, and the necessary steps have been already taken to secure the rails and place them in position in time to accommodate the summer travel. The services of an experienced photographic artist have been secured for the purpose of obtaining a complete series of views of the most interesting points along the route. These will be properly distributed throughout the country, and can hardly fail to excite the desired effect of attracting a host of visitors.

United States Board of Trade—Appointment of Delegate.

A telegram received yesterday afternoon by S. Wittkowsky, Esq., president of the Charlotte Chamber of Commerce, from His Excellency Gov. Jarvis, stated that a meeting of the United States board of trade will be held in New York city on Wednesday next, the 12th inst., and requested the appointment of a delegate from the chamber of commerce of this city to attend the meeting. The board of directors was thereupon summoned, and at a meeting held at the chamber of commerce on Monday night, Gen. Thos. F. Drayton was appointed the delegate to represent the interests of Charlotte on the occasion indicated.

SUPERIOR COURT.

The Pethel Case Postponed Till Monday—The Jenkins Case Tried.

When Judge Kerr took his seat on the bench yesterday morning and asked the solicitor if he was ready to proceed in the case of the State vs. Geo. Pethel, for murder, set for a hearing at that hour, the court room was crowded with eager faces. The prisoner had already been brought in, and was sitting quietly in the felon's box. In answer to the judge's question, the State was announced to be ready for trial, and when the defendant was called on, Col. Armfield, of his counsel, read an affidavit setting forth the delay in the case, which were very material to the case, were absent, from what cause the counsel did not know, and asking for a continuance of the case on this ground. The court also set forth the facts which it was proposed to prove by the absent witnesses.

The solicitor objected to a continuance on the ground that the case had already stood on the dockets for over twelve months, and he was prepared to move; that the State had put itself to great inconvenience and trouble to have all the witnesses present. He did not demand speedy trials in all cases, preferring a sufficient delay to allow of the removal of the first sessions after a homicide had been committed, which nearly always judged the accused more harshly than he deserved, but thought the delay had been long enough.

To this Col. Armfield replied that a special order had been procured from the court in Iredell compelling the witnesses to be present at this term of the court, and he could not tell why they were not present, except in one instance, that of a witness named Swink. The sheriff of Cabarrus, evidently misreading the name, had returned the paper with the statement that no such man could be found.

Judge Kerr: "It is a great pity that the clerk of Iredell can't write." Col. Armfield: "May it please your honor is not exactly the case. It is the sheriff of Cabarrus who can't read."

Judge Kerr: "Gentlemen, I am opposed to further delay in this case, but am willing to hold it over till Monday, and will issue capias for the witnesses."

The clerk was ordered to issue the capias, and the sheriff directed to have them delivered to the sheriff of Cabarrus.

Judge Kerr then asked the solicitor if he was prepared to try any other capital cases, and after some delay it was announced that the sessions of THE CASE OF ISAAC JENKINS, COLORED, charged with the murder of Jim Ross, in the city of Charlotte, on the 17th of October, 1878, could be taken up.

Messrs. Osborne & Maxwell and Judge Bynum appeared for the accused, and Solicitor Montgomery represented the State.

Jenkins was brought into court and arraigned, and after an hour and a half spent in selecting a jury, the following were announced as having been chosen: J. B. Swan, W. L. Boyd, H. L. Suggs, T. J. McConee, C. B. Howell, F. W. Allen, W. B. Nisbet, W. D. Stewart, T. S. Cooper, H. T. Butler, E. T. Henderson, and J. F. Johnston.

There were only three or four witnesses to the distribution of the poison by the State, and their story may be briefly summed up as follows: At quite a late hour of the night the accused found his wife on the street talking to Jim Ross, the deceased, and commanding her to go home at the same time charging her with having left two or three of their children locked up at home, and with turning the other out of the house. The wife appealed to another negro woman, who was standing by, to prove that she had done nothing of the kind, whereupon insulting epithets were applied to the woman by Jenkins, and upon her hurling back the charges against him, he struck her. Jim Ross here interferred, and in an angry mood got into a difficulty. Jenkins finally cried out, "You have cut me," to which Ross replied, "You have cut me, too." Jenkins two or three minutes afterwards threw a rock at Ross and knocked him down. Here the difficulty ended.

Dr. Gregory, who was called to see Ross on the following day, testified that he found the skull fractured, and dressed the wound. Several weeks afterwards, Ross died of the effects of the poison, which was administered to him by Jenkins, and he carefully followed the physician's directions, the primary cause of his death was the wound.

The speeches of the counsel, Messrs. Osborne and Bynum, and Solicitor Montgomery for the prosecution, were very brief, the defence submitting to the charge of manslaughter, and arguing the case from this standpoint, although Judge Bynum, towards the close of his speech, stated that he even manslaughter did not clearly appear from the testimony.

Judge Kerr charged the jury to return a verdict of manslaughter, and while they were deliberating over the matter in the jury-box, the prisoner's counsel submitted to this verdict. The sentence was not pronounced. It was half past 5 o'clock when the trial was concluded, and the court adjourned for the day.

Capture of a Conspirator After Two Years.

A day or two ago Sheriff Alexander received from J. J. Ward, a citizen of Darlington, S. C., a letter informing that a diabolical arson committed in his town about two years ago, under a conspiracy in which ten negroes were engaged, six of whom were caught and convicted. He inclosed a letter written from Alexandria, in the county, by a negro who signs himself as E. G. Smith, to relatives in Darlington, which was accidentally found in that town. Mr. Ward writes that from all that could be ascertained from the letter, the real name is Dogin Flinn, who was one of the conspirators and for whose capture a reward of $50 is offered. Mr. Ward's letter gives a full description of Flinn, even as to a peculiar scar on his face, and E. G. Smith's letter to his friends in Darlington, which Mr. Ward inclosed, incidentally mentioned that he had cut his foot so badly that he was unable to walk.

The sheriff turned the letter over to Mr. W. M. Abernathy, who lives near Alexandria, with instructions to inquire in the neighborhood for a negro who filled the description given, at the same time deputing him to arrest the negro if found. Mr. Abernathy had no difficulty in at once identifying the negro, beyond a question of a doubt, the cut foot betraying him at once, and accordingly effected his arrest. He was brought to this city, and now awaits a requisition from the governor of South Carolina.

A Big Trade in Brass.

Capt. L. M. Davis of Rock Hill, who bought the gold dust from L. H. Smart, of Rutherford county, in this State, and found that it was pure brass, came up yesterday to appear against Smart before the mayor. The trial went on at 1 o'clock. It was shown that Smart and one or two others have been practicing this fraud quite extensively in South Carolina. The method of proceeding seems to have been to procure from machine shops or elsewhere a quantity of brass filings, which were wrapped in small papers and sold at the usual price for gold dust. The assayer, Col. Cowles, gave it as his opinion that these filings were calculated to deceive any one not an expert. This gentleman also had in his possession, while the trial was going on, a package of this same stuff, which he had just received from a citizen of Chester by express, and valued at $150, but which in reality is not worth twenty-five cents.

Smart was of course recommitted to jail to await trial by the Inferior Court. It is learned that he attempted to practice the fraud upon several citizens of this place, but failed, as they were not buying gold at that time. Col. Cowles is awaiting further returns from South Carolina, and is prepared to count them out as rapidly as they come in.

A Visage Revalling in Yellowness.

That of a "heaven Chinese," if belonging to one of our race, can scarcely be described as attractive. But worse than this, it is the index of a disordered liver, of a liver that needs scouring and regulating. The remedy is at hand, prompt, efficacious. Course of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters will expel the misdirected bile from the blood and divert it into the proper channel, open the bowels, remove the dyspeptic symptoms which invariably accompany biliousness, and counteract the rapid decomposing tendency to dangerous congestion of the liver, which must always exist when the skin and whites of the eyes assume this yellow hue. The pains through the right lower ribs, side and shoulder blade, the nausea, furred state of the tongue, and unpleasant breath which indicate liver complaint, in short all its disagreeable concomitants are soon remedied by this sovereign corrective, which in addition to its regulating properties is a superb invigorant, and a pure and agreeable medicinal stimulant, appetizer and nerve.

Good cheer for Consumptives. There is a form of consumption which is better understood than the ordinary kind, and is the dreaded scourge of some parts of the Southern States, claiming more victims every year than are saved away by means of the most judicious of the yellow fever. The malarial arises from the impure and putrid matter taken up and assimilated the nourishing ingredients of the food that is eaten. Some years ago the medical profession in this country discovered a certain compound of Liver Oil contained the most concentrated and easily absorbed elements of nutrition. If the nature and smell of the oil could be so remedied as to make it palatable, it would unquestionably be the most sovereign remedy that ever shed a healing blessing on the human race. After some experiments, it was found that the fully refined by the union of pure Cod Liver Oil with the Hypophosphites of Lime and Soda in Scott's Emulsion. The combination is a most agreeable, pleasant as sweet milk in flavor, congenial to the stomach, and acting directly and successfully on the brain and nervous system.

A Legitimate Triumph in Medicine. Dread and despair fall upon the community when a terrible epidemic, like the cholera or yellow fever, suddenly desolates our homes, yet, all the while, the disease, though less fatal, enters thousands of households every year and carries off many young and budding womanhood. People call it consumption, or "consumption," it is not, in most cases, the tubercular phthisis, but a congestion of the lungs, which is the peculiar malady in climates like those of the British Islands and New England, but generally more or less of the vital processes of nutrition. All the doctors agree that the most successful remedy for this disease is Scott's Emulsion of the Oil with the Hypophosphites of Lime and Soda which is agreeable to the taste, and an unequalled nutrient and tonic for the body nerve and brain.

Ease Attainable by the Rheumatic. Yes, although they may despair of relief, it is attainable by rheumatic sufferers, for there is a remedy which cures by means of increased activity of the kidneys—the important channels for purification—the acid element to which the pathologists the most eminent attribute the painful symptoms—a theory completely borne out by urine analysis. The name of this grand remedial preparation, a preparation likewise celebrated as a remedy for constipation, which causes contamination of the blood, with the blood, and certain means of relief in dyspepsia, fever and acute, and nervous ailments. It is, perhaps, the finest tonic extant, and is highly recommended by distinguished physicians and analysts who have tried it, and who are suffering from any of the complaints peculiar to the sex.

A Card. To all who are suffering from the errors and indiscretions of youth, or from early decay, loss of manhood, &c., I will send a receipt that will cure you, FREE OF CHARGE.
