PREVENTING A MARRIAGE.

A Sister Placing Her Hand on the Mouth of Her Brother.

WASHINGTON, March 20.—On Saturday night Capt. Norman Crane, well-known here, was lying at Meyer's Hotel in this city.

He had lived five years with a woman named Mary Crane, and had introduced her as his wife in some of the most respectable circles in the District.

No marriage ceremony had, however, been performed.

When Capt. Crane was dying he desired to make Mary his legal wife.

The captain's sister, Celia Crane, was violently opposed to a marriage, there being, it appears, no will.

A clergyman, Rev. Dr. J. G. Allison, was sent for, and was willing to perform the ceremony.

Dr. Townsend, who was also present, thus described the scene in an interview with a Post reporter:

"The sister kept her place by the side of the bed, and as I asked the question first to prove his consciousness, 'Do you know me?' he indicated his reply by an affirmative nod of the head.

Then I asked, 'Are you willing to marry this woman?' but before he could nod, his sister patted him on the cheek and said, 'Don't answer them, my dear brother.'

In his weak condition he would at once relapse, and after several attempts and failures, both I and Dr. Addison gave it up."

The marriage was thus prevented, and after the captain's death the sister took possession of his personal property.

The alleged wife caused the arrest of the sister on the accusation of larceny, but on the witness stand the complainant acknowledged that there had been no marriage ceremony.

The police justice thereupon decided that the sister, being the natural heir, was entitled to the property.

The so-called Mrs. Crane was visited by a Post reporter. She is of a petite figure, about 30 years of age, of fair complexion, and very lady-like and demure in her demeanor.

She was dressed in deep mourning. She was evidently worn and worried with excitement. She said she had been living for years as the wife of Mr. Crane; had forsaken home and friends for him, and she was now a widow.

Speaking of the reasons for deluding the marriage, she explained that it had been spoken of between them, but that up to his last sickness nothing definite had been arranged.

Some time before Mr. Crane's death the Rev. Dr. Addison had called, but at that time, although she thought of suggesting the marriage, she was too late, and when he next came it was too late to suggest that she did not know the sister until her arrival, and that the sister had prevented the marriage by placing her hand over the mouth and head of Mr. Crane, thus preventing him from answering the questions when asked.

New Laws and Changed Laws.

[Raleigh Observer.] Since February 20, 1879, Battle's Revised, chapter 68, section 18, has been amended as to make coils answerable for their sires' wages twelve instead of six months after foaling.

The sins of the sires, &c., or words to that effect.

Amended are two laws as to which inquiry has been made of us.

INJUNCTIONS AND RESTRAINING ORDERS.

SECTION 1. The judges of the Superior Courts of this State shall have jurisdiction to appoint receivers, issue restraining orders, and grant injunctions in all civil actions and proceedings which are authorized by law.

SECTION 2. All restraining orders granted by any of the judges of the said Superior Courts shall be made returnable to the court granting the same, or to the judge or judges assigned to the district, or holding by exchange the courts of the district, when the civil action or special proceeding is there depending.

SECTION 3. All orders showing cause why a receiver should not be appointed shall be made returnable in the same manner and before the same judge, as prescribed in section two of this act: Provided, that a judge holding a special term in any county may, at his own discretion, grant an injunction, or issue a restraining order returnable before himself in any case which he may have jurisdiction to hear and determine under the commission issued to him.

SECTION 4. A law in conflict with this act is hereby repealed.

SECTION 5. This act shall be in force from and after its ratification.

APPEALS FROM JUSTICES' JUDGMENTS.

SECTION 1. That in all appeals from judgments of justices of the peace, the appellant, when judgment shall be rendered against the appellant, shall also give judgment against the sureties to the amount of the judgment and the costs awarded against the appellant.

SECTION 2. Strike out the following words in section 68, chapter 68 of Battle's Revised, viz: "and execution thereon be returned unsatisfied, in whole or in part, the sureties will pay the amount unsatisfied," and also the word "unsatisfied" in next to last line of said section.

SECTION 3. This act shall be in force from its ratification.

The Republican Senators as a Minority.

[Wash. Special to Richmond Dispatch.] Some of the Republican Senators adapt themselves more readily to the changed condition of affairs than others.

They are fresh and vigorous, and instead of writing continually, as he used to do, has lately leaped to the front as a minority leader. The fact, however, is that while nominally heretofore a Republican, he has not been in accord with the administration; but, now that he can attack his Democratic enemies independently of Hayes, John Sherman & Co., he seems happy, and promises to make more reputation than he has made of late.

Editing is prepared to growl at everything, but does not work quietly in minority traces. Blaine, who is out of place in the Senate, is ready at the shortest notice to do guerilla service out of order in spite of the gavel of the Vice-President or the objections of Senators. His true place is in the House.

A South Carolina Suicide.

[Monroe Enquirer.] Mack Hill, who resides eighteen miles south of this place, in Chesterfield county, S. C., suicided by drowning himself in a well upon his premises in the early part of the morning of Tuesday last.

CAPITAL NOTES.

Steele and the Speakership—The Length of the Session—Everett and Hyman.

[Wash. Cor. Raleigh News.] Representative Steele was the only member who objected to making Randall's nomination unanimous in caucus.

He has been much complimented by the press for the bold stand he took in standing up to what he said and believed to be right.

He voted against Randall from principle, and did not yield in any other direction.

He is said to be bold and most candid man in Congress, when he believes he is right.

Various speculations are afloat as to how long the extra session will last and the class of legislation that will be brought up for consideration.

Senator Hanson, whose opinions are always worthy of the highest consideration, says he thinks Congress should transact such business as it was called together for by the President and adjourn.

Senator Vance entertains similar views. In the House there is a division of opinion; most of the new members want to go into general legislation and prolong the session until June or July.

States Senator Everett, of North Carolina, called on the President yesterday with ex-Congressman Brogden and presented a memorial numerous signed by Republicans of the State and members of the Legislature.

The memorial sets forth that unless certain United States officials are removed in the State
