HOPE C. SECRET.

It was our duty to attend McDowell Court this week, and the opportunity was improved to visit Secret, the wife and child murderer, who will be sentenced to be hung at the present time.

There is no river, through the desert gilding. But bears some token to the distant sea - Some silent blossom on its bosom riding - From fair oases wrapped in mystery.

There is no life, however dark and brooded. But has some light to gladden on its tears. Some silent blossom on its bosom riding - Shedding its radiance through the gloomy years.

Then let us cling to every sunny token - The turf of moss, the leaf and the flower. The fragrant blossom, the rose unspoken. The joy remembered of a happy hour.

For this and our life's keen winter snows. With still some vanished summer-time depots. A silent desert flower may happily float. Hollywood, N. C., March 21, 1879.
