

THE SOUTH CAROLINA ELECTION CASES

The continuance by Judge Bond of the South Carolina election cases, the trial of which was begun in Charleston last week, is a subject of hearty congratulation to the people of our sister State, on many accounts.

It cannot be justly supposed, however, that any political significance attaches to these figures. People are not apt to break their necks in their hurry to get to the polls to vote for a candidate who has no opposition, or none worth speaking of, and after all the people are not much to blame for staying at home in cases of this kind.

JUDGE DAVIS AND THE REPUBLICANS

The stalwarts have turned the batteries of their wrath upon Senator David Davis because of the facts that he favors free elections and can see no impropriety in attaching a rider to an appropriation bill.

THE POINDEXTER-CURTIS CASE

Some of the Evidence Taken on the Second Trial—Miss Cottrell's Testimony.

Tuesday, the jury in the case of John E. Poindexter, who killed C. C. Curtis in Richmond on March 2d, were carried to the office of Childrey's tobacco factory, where the homicide occurred, and examined the premises that morning.

CONGRESSMAN ELECTED IN LESS THAN 5,000 VOTES

Viewed by comparison our people in this congressional district did not do so very badly after all, in the election last fall. It is true we cast but 4,908 votes, but a glance at the Congressional Directory, received a few days ago, shows that there are several congressmen who were elected on lighter votes than were given in this district.
