The negro had gone crazy on the subject of civil rights. Dressed in a costly broadcloth suit, kid gloves, a glossy white shirt bosom and plug hat, he went to the house of one of Lexington's most substantial citizens, to call on his lovely daughter, and took his seat in the parlor. He was told the family were not at home. An hour later he was under arrest, and in the later he was under arrest, and in the morning was tried in the city court for trespass, but was remanded for trial on

Senator Hampton evidently thinks that a backdown would be well nigh ruinous, seeing that the people demand through the press and in the thousands of private letters received here daily from all parts of the country, that the Democrats shall stand firm and fight this battle to a conclusion. There is to be, it seems then, no nearer approach to a compromise than that of presenting the several measures in separate form, the amendments being put forward first, and it is claimed that this, instead of being an abandonment of the first position, is really an advance and a drawing of the line sharper than

---The Debt of Gratitude Which the Country Owes Capt. Coy, of Georgi.

[Petersburg Index-Appeal.] We are afraid the people of this country hardly appreciate the debt of gratitude which they owe Capt, Edward Cox, of Georgia. This amiable and gallant gentleman is now on trial at Atlanta, in that State, on the charge of killing one Col. Rob't Alston, some weeks ago. A negro named Dock Matthews was On Saturday Capt. Cox made a spech to the court and jury, setting forth his arrested for an attempt to throw the version of what had taken place; from which it appears that Col, Alston had track. near Rocky Point. The Wil- borrowed several pistols, cannon, bowie mington Star says it is believed that he knives, bludgeons, and other weapons, is the tool of other persons in the neigh- with which to slay, kill, demolish, and borhood who wish to wreak vengeance annihilate the orator, Capt. Cox; and that he, Cox, only fired at Alston after he had been shot several times himself, and then he shot only at a mass of smoke, and was surprised as well as distressed to find that he had killed his dearest and best friend, Bob Alston. In short it was a calamity, such as might befall any young man of the community. It may be proper to state that this version of the facts differs very widely from that given by every other witness, with one exception—that of Sams, who is in Cox's employ, and who every mark of consideration and es- naturally has beheld things through his spectacles. No doubt can be reasonably entertained, however, in regard to the ing him attention. He was not permit-ted to dine at his hotel a single day dur-for as he committed the murder, he knows more about it than anybody else; and moreover the fact of his being a murderer is itself sufficient in these times to prove him a person of the most refined and elevated sentiments, quite superior to any dishonorable practice of any kind. Moreover, since Mr. Cox has discovered that he will probably be hanged for his murder of Colonel Alston, he is moved by quite a handsome and generous regret for his deed, and all good people must acknowledge that the sentiment is greatly to his credit. But the debt which the public owes Capt. Cox is based on his having checked a tragedy of depopulation which might not have stopped with his own sacrifice had Col. Alston gone on in the way he had started-(according to Cox's shot, when the thief darted through the back door, through which it is supposed with all the things that Alston had borrowed (according to Cox.) and who was breathing forth threats of slaughter and violence against everybody in general and Cox in particular (according to Cox.) might have slain nearly everybody in Georgia by this time except for the conduct of Capt. Cox in laying him low in the midst of his mad a-muck. Thus it is, we do not appreciate what great public benefits are rendered by our most deserving fellow-citizens. Cox will probably be hanged, notwithstanding the great services which he discharged in protecting the State of Georgia from Col. Alston. It is strange that people cannot see the transaction in the light of Capt. Cox's version, seeing that Capt. Cox is a person of such fine feelings, who sincerely regrets the calamity of his friend's sudden demise

The Result of a Presidential Bet.

Soon after the presidential election in 1876, Baker Reed, of Vanport, Pa., betted twenty-five dollars to ten dollars that Tilden was elected President. Daniel Barndollar put up the money, T H. Davy acting as stakeholder. After President Hayes's inauguration the money was paid over to Barndollar. Reed then entered suit against Davy to trespass, but was remanded for trial on a writ of lunacy. In this cause this morning a postal card was produced which the negro had written to Mr. B—, stating that he would be on hand with the key and the ring. He had been a driver for Mark Harris, liveryman, in which capacity he had frequently driven the young lady round. His head became turned by a contemplation of her loveliness, and he became a lunatic. He will be taken to the asylum this morning.

Reed then entered suit against Davy to recover the amount, and the case came up in a local court recently. A law of Pennsylvania punishes betters by decreeing that the stakes shall be handed over to the poor directors of the county where the betting takes places, but if two years elapse after the betting the money goes to the winner in the absence of a suit by the poor directors. In this instance the two years had passed, and the defendant, Barndollar, was allowed to keep the money.

Rev. Drs. Jeter, Broaddus, Dickinson (Bap.) It is endorsed by the direct personal testimony of men of national fame and of strictness of of men of national fame and of strictness of speech. It is not too much to say that no medicine ever had such support in its favor as a specific. The word of any one of the eminent divines who underwrite this antidote to dyspepsia has deserved weight. Their united witness joined with the experimental use and approval of the preparation by well-known physicians, removes all doubt. It is, beyond question, a wonderful therapeutical agent.—Editors Religious Herald, Va.

It is highly esteemed here by the regular Medical Faculty and the people. It is excellent for indigestion and flatulent colle—sedative, soportic, tonic, slightly aperient, without nausea. SOLD BY ALL DRUGGISTS. For sale by: DR. T. C. SMITH, Charlotte, N. C.
