A GENERAL BANKRUPT LAW.

MADINITY, POSTARY, " Where seems to be a somewhat general demand for a new bankrupt law, and the demand could reasonably be acceded to and would not be opposed by hood and deception don't amount to any one could there be any assurance much in Brocklyn, and a conviction that it would be founded upon anything would only increase Talmage's like equitable principles. People generally must see the force of an argument which sets forth that there should be some protection for the debtor class against relentless creditors. It is altogether proper that the debtor who has become involved to an extent beyond his means of paying out, should be afforded an opportunity to rid himself of his embarrassments and start again in the world. Without some legal restraint upon the rapacity of the creditor this is impossible, and the debtor, laboring under a mountain of debt which he is unable to remove, can hold out no hope to the creditor, deprives his family of benefits which he might otherwise place within their reach and becomes himself a drone in the community which might otherwise number him among its enterprising citizens, adding to the general wealth and progressiveness. It must be admitted that there is strength in this position, and if so the argument in favor of a bankrupt law holds good. - But if we need a law of this character we need that it be just to the creditor as well as generous to the debtor. The country should and doubtless would protest against the enactment of any law which, under the pretence of protecting honest debtors, really opened the door to all manner of frauds and put a premium upon per-jury. This was the objection to the law which the Forty-Fifth Congress so wisely repealed. No amendment of it would have freed it from the objections, to which it was obnoxious. It had to be wiped out entirely, and if a new one acte upon an entirely different

"But never mind," said one old brother, a member of the Presbytery; "wait till this matter gets to the Synod. He can't stuff that place with darkies," (this referring to the fact that a colored elder and a colored preacher, members of the Presbytery, had voted for Dr. Taimage.) But what then? PROFANITY IN THE HOUSE.-In fiery and emphatic speech in the House Thursday on the Warner silver bill, Representative Chittenden, of New York, a hard-money man, losing control of himself and probably fancying that he was addressing the hoodlums of Brooklyn, denounced the Warner doctrine as "the damnedest nonsense," and he didn't spell it with a dash and two d's, either. If the Greenbackers in Congress have any idea of what is due to themselves, to the country and to Mr. Chittenden, they will at once organize a prayer-meeting and have the Hon. Rev. Mr. De La Martyr to offer up a prayer for this "lecherous bondholder."

few exceptions. Edmunds inquired whether what is called the political legislation is the same as that proposed last year, or did it differ by enlargement or diminution. Beck replied that he was not prepared to answer, as he had not compared the two propositions.

A message was received from the House announcing that the Speaker had signed the enrolled bill to prohibit military interference at elections; and returning the bill for the signature of the President pro tem. He having signed the same it will now be taken to the President. e President, The Senate proceeded to act on the amendments to the pending bill, and agreed to those restoring the compensa-tion of the Senate's officers, clerks and other employes which the House had reduced.

Beck moved that the reading of the bill be dispensed with in order to afford Hill, of Georgia, an opportunity to ad-dress the Senate as he intends to leave the city and may not return, before the end of the present session. Hill proceeded to speak with reference to that which prompted it, and was now satis fied that a party in this country had that direction, and alluded to Edmunds, in his speech of yesterday, as taking the position that the little bill prohibiting military interference at elections would have the effect to change and modify all the laws to which the Senator from Vermont alluded. The Senator must have known that the bill would not ef-

LONDON, May 10.—The Times' finan-cial article this morning says: "The value of money remains at about 11/8 per cent. Attention is being drawn to the probable effects of the continuance of the cold northerly winds upon agricultural prospects which are already sufficiently unfavorable. Unless a change occurs soon in the temperature there can be little or no fruit and there may probably be a serious deficiency in the cereal crops: which means larger payments than usual to foreign growers and eventually dearer money. Prominent among other prospective deficient yields on the continent is that of silk, he cold winds keeping back the mulberry leaves upon which the silk worm feeds. The flow of silver to China and Japan will probably be increased! from this cause."

.... Review of United States Supreme Court Business,

WASHINGTON, May 8.- A review of the business transacted by the Supreme Court of the United States during the term which has just ended shows that the court has considered since last October 293 cases, in addition to twentynine passed and continued and six ordered for reargument. One hundred and seventy-six of the cases brought before it were argued orally and 117 submitted upon printed briefs. The number of cases finally disposed of, including those brought over, pending decision from the previous term, is 379. In 210 of these cases the decisions of the lower courts were affirmed, and in seventy-nine are reversed, the remainder having been docketed and dismissed, or settled by agreement between the contending parties. It thus appears that two cases of every five actually decided have resulted in a reversal of the judg-

The Beath-Rate of Our country is getting to be fearfully alarming the average of life being lessened every year, without any reasonable cause, death resulting generally from the most insignificant origin. At this season of the year especially, a cold is such a common thing that in the hurry of every day life we are apt to overlook the dangers attending it and often find to overlook the dangers attending it and often find too late, that a Fever or Lung trouble has already set in. Thousands lose their lives in this way ev-ery winter, while had Bosonick's Original Straup been taken, a cure would have resulted, and a large bill from a doctor been avoided. For all diseases of the Throat and Lungs, Bosonic's Gravan SYRUP has proven itself to be the greatest discov-ery of its kind in medicine. Stimulate the Sluggish Kidneys.

In addition to its tonic and cathartic properties Hostetter's Stomach Bitters exercises a beneficial influence upon the kidneys and bladder, when they are inactive, by stimulating them to renewed exertion, thus re-opening, as it were, a sluice for the escape of impurities whose regular channel of exit is the organs of urination. Among these are certain abnormal and inflammatory elements, productive of irreparable injury to the system if not entirely expelled. The kidneys and bladder themselves are also benefitted by this stimulus, as their Lactivity is usually a preliminary to their disease and disorganization. They also experience, in common with other portions of the system, the potent invigorative effects of the Bitters, which furthermore corrects disordered conditions of the stomach, bowels and liver.

Yes, although they may despair of relief, it is attainable by rheumatic sufferers, for there is a remedy which carries off, by means of increased remedy which carries off, by means of increased activity of the kidneys—important channels for blood purification—the acrid element to which pathologists the most eminent attribute the painful symptoms—a theory completely borne out by urin-ary analysis. The name of this grand depurent is Hostetters, a preparation likewise celebrated as a remedy for constipution, which causer contamina-tion of the blood with the bile—and a certain means of relief in dyspepsia, fever and ague, and nervous ailments. It is, perhaps, the finest tonic extant, and is highly recommended as a medicinal extant, and is highly recommended as a medicinal stimulant by distinguished physicians and analysts who pronounce it to be eminently pure and very beneticial. The press also endorses it.
