About a Postal Card.

[Louisville Courier-Journal.] There were some mad men in a certain Kentucky post office a few days ago. A postal card was dropped into the letter-box addressed to "Rev. John Penobscot, ——." It was an ordinary card, and the postmaster was an ordinary postmaster. He took it up, glanced at the address, turned it leisusely over and read: "-May 2d, 1879. You, to whom this card is not addressed, and who, nevertheless, have the cheek to read it, are a contemptible, unprincipled sneak and a prying, pusilanimous coward. George F. Dugan." The postmaster laid the card gently down and lounged to the other end of the house, softly whistling "Nancy Lee." In due time the clerk mayor and one councilman. came upon the card, perused it, threw his hat upon the floor, stamped it, and made the neighborhood hideous with the howls of his pet dog, which he kick-ed in the ribs. How the card fared with the various route agents through whom it passed it is impossible to say nor do we know whether it was read by the woman who is postmistress at the office where the Rev. John Penobscot is supposed to get his mail; but the report is that on the day it reached there she smashed a bottle of ink on her husband's head, spanked the children all around and chewed up ninety-five cen's' worth of wax. We cannot be too care-sul never to write on postal cards any-thing in the least calculated to wound the sensitive delicacy of the postoffice people's feelings.
