"He saves His People from Their Sins."
Days come and go
But will I ever be free,
There is no joy in life so sweet,
No truth our hearts so oft repeat,
As those dear words which begin,
"He saves His people from their sins."
O Gracious Lord
I would be Thine,
My heart, O cleanse it from its guilt,
My life, O make it Thine,
O wash it from the stain within,
And save me from myself and sin.

A well known lawyer said yesterday in reference to the decision in favor of the Taxing district: "Well, as a citizen I am glad that it was done, but as a lawyer I'll be hanged if I can see how it was done."
Planets do not cost much to keep up, certainly; but it is a question whether we have not more planets on hand now than we can conveniently take care of. Couldn't the astronomers set their wits to work to discover another moon to do service for our planet? We're rather short on moons at present.
Andrew's Boaz has the following: A rustic bridegroom was complimented by one of his best acquaintances on the charming appearance of his bride. "She has the most lovely color I have ever seen," remarked the friend. "Yes, it ought to be good," pensively replied the groom; "she paid a dollar for just a little bit of it in a saucer."

A WOMAN PEDESTRIAN.
She Proposes to Walk from Philadelphia to New Orleans and Back in Five Months.
[Danville (Va.) News, 6th.]
Mrs. Mattie Potts, formerly of New York, reached this city yesterday morning, having spent 10 o'clock on route on foot to New Orleans which she expects to reach in about six or seven weeks from this time. She left Philadelphia at 11 o'clock on the 12th of last month. She is a woman about thirty years of age, and has the look of one who can do the tramp, and is resolved to do that which no woman has done, walk from Philadelphia to New Orleans and back within five months, a distance, by the way, almost equal to that across the Atlantic to Queenstown.
Her route to this place was via Washington City, Charlottesville and Lynchburg, arriving at the News office at 10 1/2 yesterday morning, and remaining about one hour, when she left on her tramp southward, via Greensboro, Salisbury and Charlotte for her destination. She dresses neatly but plainly, wears a jaunty white straw hat trimmed with blue, and carries a sturdy valise. She is unaccompanied, and intends to accomplish her journey alone.
The lady is a native of Edenton, N. C., but has lately been a resident of Philadelphia. During the journey she will keep a diary, and from time to time write a book concerning the trip on her return. On her way she has lost five or six days, having stopped four days at the Monumental City to take part in the famous walking match which took place there some days ago.

The Presbyterians and Dancing.
To the Editor of The Observer:
Will you allow me to correct a mistake into which the secular papers have fallen in regard to the action of the late General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church, South. That action does not forbid church sessions to discipline members for dancing, or anything which the session considers an "offense" in the view of our book of Church Order. The General Assembly distinctly states that "it does not interfere, in the slightest degree, to interfere with the power of discipline which is given by our constitution to the courts below. The occasion, the mode, the degree, and the kind of discipline must be left to the courts of original jurisdiction."
Some had considered the former deliverances of the Assembly, as ordering and commanding the lower courts—presbyteries and sessions—to regard all so-called "worldly amusements" as "offenses" and to prosecute those guilty of them.
The Assembly simply declares that it leaves the whole matter to the lower courts, and they must act as they judge best in each specific case. Any church session can, under this ruling, declare dancing an "offense," and discipline for it. In the Block case, it was not that Block was disciplined for dancing, but that the Synod of Georgia condemned, but that the action of the church in his case was harsh and hasty and irregular, and it was this decision of the Synod which the Assembly confirmed.

Gen. Ewing Congratulated.
[Wash. letter of 6th to Baltimore Sun.]
Gen. Tom Ewing has to-day been overwhelmed with telegrams from every part of the country, and from many persons of high political distinction, tendering their congratulations, and predicting his election as the next Governor of Ohio. Gen. Ewing did not have much time to attend to his congressional duties, as his whole time was taken up in conversing on campaign prospects with his friends. He and they are very strong in the belief that he will get a very large part of the Greenback vote of last fall, and they think that the number of hard money Democrats who will decline to support him will be infinitesimally small. Gen. Ewing will be serenaded to-morrow night.

POLITICAL ETHICS.—Continued.
Manual of Calhoun's Disquisition on Government.
CHAPTER XIV.
Effects—Present and Future—of Public Opinion on Government.
As stated in the preceding chapter, the monarchical form of government has heretofore been the prevalent form. The causes that have made them strong and that have enabled them to absorb, in the progress of events, the few governments which have, from time to time, assumed a different form—these causes have been portrayed. The question, however, arises, as to whether the monarchical form will continue to predominate in the face of the great and growing influence of public opinion among the new and imposing form which popular government has assumed in the United States of America. These have already effected great changes and will probably effect still greater adverse to the monarchical form. It remains, however, to be seen whether the popular government of the United States shall or shall not show superiority to the monarchical form. If the government shall be elected to the office, and keep the form of the numerical majority; if the principle of the numerical majority shall be allowed to prevail and work its disastrous results, then will the palm of superior excellence be awarded to monarchy in its constitutional form; and Great Britain, for example, stand higher than this Republic of ours in governmental excellence. If, however, the concurrent principle shall be recognized, and the government, as we shall cause our government to put on and retain constitutional features, and a proper organism come to be regarded as not less indispensable than the right of suffrage, then may we hope for the triumph of self-government on this continent, and expect at no distant day to see the star of monarchy pale its light before the sun of constitutional democracy. Confessing, however, to the direction, politically right or wrong, that public opinion in this country shall take, will the cause of self-government advance or recede. The commanding part that public opinion has to do with the political condition of the land leads to the consideration of public opinion in connection with the causes that have made it so influential as to entitle it to be viewed as a new political element—as an additional estate in the government of the nation. A man who has increased the force and bearing of public opinion may be reckoned the discoverer and inventor made within the last few centuries; such as the invention of the mariner's compass; the discovery of the mode of making gunpowder, and its application to the art of war; and the invention of the art of printing, all of which have tended to improve the masses and to increase the spirit of popular independence, as a philosopher of history has well said, "all great inventions are essentially democratic." Hence all these discoveries and inventions, that have of late years electrified the field, together with the numerous chemical discoveries made of late, have caused a great extension of knowledge attended with an impulse to progress and civilization unusual in the history of the world. To these public opinion and the press owe their origin, and great influence. Public opinion and the press already have a powerful influence, which even the most despotic governments recognize, since kings tremble before the majestic wrath of an outraged people. It is probable that these influences have not attained their maximum force. When public opinion and the press come to reach their condition of largest influence, it is likely that decided changes, political and social, will be brought about—such as will revolutionize politics. Nor is there any reason to doubt but that the changes will be the interests of the well-being of our race. The progressive works for this result, and respects it.

Great changes cannot, however, take place without convulsions and revolutions. Hence, we may expect to see the opinions and principles on which governments are founded, unsettled—may be shaken to the center. This transition period will involve a severe trial to existing political institutions of every kind. These institutions must yield to this enlightened public opinion, for, if they do not, they will feel before the storm, foreshadowed in lowering clouds, surcharged with the electric fluid of human liberty, from the sage of Socrates even to the sage of Fort Hill—from Aristotle to Calhoun.
In his mind's eye, in the spirit of faith, the Christian philosopher sees, and the general millennium, when the principles of good shall have won its final victory over the principle of evil, and perfect peace shall reign over the whole earth. So, too, the political philosopher may anticipate, as one of the results of an enfranchised earth—a redeemed humanity—a political millennium where ruler and ruled, when moving each in his fixed orbit, and recognizing to the fullest extent each other's rights, shall noble government to do its perfect work—no power tending to abuse; no power exceeding its just authority; no liberty tending to pass outside of the line of law; no liberty treading on legitimate authority or running into unwholesome license.

Tom Ewing has to-day been overwhelmed with telegrams from every part of the country, and from many persons of high political distinction, tendering their congratulations, and predicting his election as the next Governor of Ohio. Gen. Ewing did not have much time to attend to his congressional duties, as his whole time was taken up in conversing on campaign prospects with his friends. He and they are very strong in the belief that he will get a very large part of the Greenback vote of last fall, and they think that the number of hard money Democrats who will decline to support him will be infinitesimally small. Gen. Ewing will be serenaded to-morrow night.

IMPORTANT!
In the early part of every season there is a natural desire to know what are the newest, latest and most fashionable styles, and also who are recognized as standard authority in the fashionable world. Our relations to, and dealings with the public, and the general standing of our house, will assure all intelligent readers that the information given below is authentic, reliable and correct.
Several changes have taken place, both in shape and pattern, of fabrics in Men's Garments, of which special mention will be made. The latest demand in Spring Garments is our new WEST END SACK.
It has many admirers among those who prefer new shapes and ideas instead of adhering to the old time-worn styles of the past—very stylish in appearance and cut from Cheviots of the newest designs.
Our St. Nicholas Outwary Frock, with three or four buttons, front cut a trifle longer, giving it a neat and graceful appearance, are made up in every variety of Spring textures.
THE PRINCE ALBERT FROCK,
In shape and style retains its hold in popular favor. Its length is a little longer than last season, and it is one of the most useful among the garments of a gentleman's wardrobe. The materials are French Castings, Granite and various patterns of English Worsted.
Our Pants stock is complete, with every novelty in fabrics, and the shapes are perfect. In our Hat department we invite the inspection of the most cultivated tastes, and in fine Felts and Straw Goods we are confident of universal approval.
Our Neck Wear assortment is almost unlimited in devices of shades and styles, but boasts particularly upon the very recent introduction of the University Scarf. Unique and very elegant.
In Waist Vests we have a State reputation, and we will only assert "progress" in this season's selections. Our efforts have been to place upon our counters only reliable and standard goods, and in the rapid increase of our business we are assured of the public's appreciation.
We invite the attention of all, both far and near, and their advantages will be the same, for we will send goods to any section on approval, with privilege of inspection before payment of bill.
Very respectfully,
E. D. LATTA & BRO., The People's Clothiers.
