Col. Duncan McRae's lecture in the opera house next Thursday evening, at 8:30. The subject of the lecture is "Laughter," and it is brim full of both fun and philosophy. Charlotte has never had such a treat in the shape of a lecture, as Col. McRae will deliver. Let us give him a full house.

tredell Superior Court-High Crimes.

The Superior Court is in session at Statesville, Judge Graves presiding. Among the most important trials to come up at the present term are that of Jo. Gillespie, colored, for complicity in the highway robbery and murder of Mr. Fowler in Mooresville, last December, and also the case of Bradwell and several negroes, charged with burglary, near Statesville.

Lawn Party.

One evening next week, the young ladies of the Lutheran church will give a lawn party and festival in the mint yard. They will tell the day later. It is the first time these ladies have invited the public to an entertainment of this sort, and they are determined to make it a success. The preparations have already commenced, and a delightful evening may be expected. Ice cream and promenades in the soft light of Chinese lanterns are luxuries which young people never fail to enjoy.

ANNUAL SERMON

Before the Cadets of the Carolina Mil-

The "Supreme and Inviolable Authority of the Truth" was the subject Mr. Atkinson chose, basing it up the bold an l defiant utterances of the three young Hebrews, Shadrack, Mesheck and Abed-nego, when ordered by Nebucadnezzar, a monarch of absolute power, to fall down and worship the golden image he had made. In the face of the decree of the most powerful and unre-lenting king of that day, these young men had said: "We will not serve thy gods, nor worship the golden image thou hast set up."

By truth, the speaker explained, that he did not mean veracity alone, but used the term in its broadest sense, signifying that which was right and lawful, irrespective of its consequences. He wished to impress upon the rising generation their duty in relation to this truth, in itself considered, without regard to extenuating circumstances. He would guard them against the prevail-ing tendency to make public opinion the criterion of right, a tendency which had always existed, but which was especially dangerous in the present day.
Public opinion is simply the index to the prevailing sentiment of a community, and can never be a criterion of what is right. But its influence is won-derful. Its evil effects were manifest in the corruption and immorality which existed in the days of Charles II in England, during the licentious reign of Louis XV in France, and in the latter days of the Roman Empire Its good effects were visible in the earlier histo-ry of Rome, when that country furn-ished to the world a Regulus and a Cincinnatus, and many times since.

The tendency of the present age is to justify one's conduct by its results; if crime can be covered up it is winked at. This is shown frequently in the public press by the humorous turn which is given to such matters.

A potent influence in creating a false public sentiment is the teaching of the philosophy of the day, ultilitarianism—anything is right that is expedient. Truth recognizes no such doctrine; it admits of no extenuating circumstances. Wrong can never be made right. Neither is there such a thing as a small wrong. The Creator may use such methods as "the survival of the fittest," but the method must not be confounded with, or substituted for the foundation in truth. The sciences of astronomy and chemistry had their origin in the efforts of the astrologer to foretell the destiny of men and of the alchemist to find that hidden substance which would convert anything into gold; but who would assert that the laws of astronomy and chemistry are based upon these false sciences? They have their foundation in truth.

It is the duty of man as of the soldier to do what is right without inquiring into the results and regardless of the consequences. A true sol-dier knows no such thing as disobedience to the most insignificant order, because it is a duty. He would cite as an example to the young men the conduct of that small detachment of the Engdoubtless be the largest ever held there. A number of Davidson College students ted from their command by taking the lish army in India. Becoming separawrong side of a ravine, and, marching under the very shadow of the forts of the enemy, they received a signal to retrace their steps. Mistaking this for a command to charge the heights, which were guarded by a thousand men, they gallantly charged it without once faltering, and lost their lives in the effort. The speaker closed his address by urging the young men to accept the Bible and its teachings as their truth, and to obey its commands with the same intelligent obedience which characterized their conduct as soldiers.

"While a girl she connected herself with the Methodist Church, and for seventy years lived a consistent member of that communion. She was held in high esteem for her Christian character, her firm piety, and her unfailing devotion to the interests of her family. Being greatly afflicted for the past few years, her faith was made perfect through suffering, and then a ripened sheaf was garnered for the sky. Mrs. Yates leaves four children. Among these are Rev. E. A. Yates, of the North Carolina Conference, and W. J. Yates, editor of the Charlotte Democrat."

The excursion was a happy idea. It brought all the employes in the department into social relations with each other, and was a just recognition of their faithful services. We understand this excursion will be followed by another for other departments of the road.

AND THE PERSON

The Charleston News and Courier The annual sermon before the cadets of the Carolina Military Institute was preached Sunday night in the Second Presbyterian church by Rev. W. R. Atkinson, principal of the Charlotte Institute for Young Ladies. The church was almost completely filled by an audience composed of representatives from all evangelical denominations in the city, and the discourse was listened to with marked attention and interest.

Talking With Judge Mackey.

Judge Mackey, of South Carolina, was in the city again Sunday. He was on his way to lopen court, yesterday at Marlboro, and came from his home in Chester to Charlotte and went hence by the Carolina Central Railroad to Laurinburg, thence across the country to Marlboro, thus making the distance 130 miles less than if he had gone via Columbia. A reporter chatted the judge for a few moments Sunday eyening. He spoke first of "Johnson's History of the Early Times in the Carolinas," in which is presented evidence of the verity of the Mecklenburg Declaration of Independence, and from this passed to the pattle of King's Mountain, preparations for the center-nial celebration of which have just begun. He referred to the great importance of that engagement, as breaking in upon a long line of British victories and infusing fresh hopes into the Amer-

and infusing fresh hopes into the American army. He regrets that Chester county was left out of the account by the preliminary meeting a week or two ago at King's Mountain, in behalf of the coming celebration, as Capt. Lacy, the individual who laid off the town of Chester. Chester, was a prominent character in that battle. Judge Mackey has in his possession the gun with which Fergu-son was killed at King's Mountain, and he related a dozen interesting incidents of the battle. He has been a close student of the early history of the Carolinas, and in view of his manifestly large fund of information, historical traditional, with reference to the battle the celebration of which is to take place next year, we respectfully suggest to the management, now in time, that he be invited to attend that celebration as one of the orators of the occasion.

From the battle of King's Mountain

Judge Mackey drifted to national politics. He reiterated what he had said here ten days previous, as to the President and the appropriation bins and expressed the perfect confidence (basing his conclusions upon what the President had told him) that he (Mr. Hayes) would certainly veto the army bill in the form in which the Democrats now propose to submit it, on the ground that they are now attempting to do by indirection that which they had failed to do by direct means. He says it would delight Zach Chandler if Congress were to adjourn without passing the army bill, for in that event the troops would be withdrawn from the frontier, the Indians would scalp a few hundred settlers, and Zach could then wave the bloody scalp instead of the bloody shirt. The "All aboard" was sounded and the reporter reluctantly parted compa-ny with Judge Mackey, not, however, until he had extorted from him a promise to furnish The Observer with some King's Mountain literature during some of the leisure moments which the summer will bring.

Relief Association.

The Charlotte relief association will convene in monthly meeting in Young Men's Christian Association rooms, at 5 o'clock this evening. A full attendance of members and citizens is desired: The funds of the association are exhausted, and several cases of destitution are needing aid. The chairmen and members of the ward committees are specially asked to be present. JOHN A. YOUNG, Pres't.

The Subject of a Cornet Band.

To the Citizens of Charlotte:

It is a noted fact that almost every city and town in our country has a cornet band. Charlotte with about 8,000 inhabitants has none. Many unsuccessful attempts have been made here to organize such a band since our old one went down. It could not be expected that the old band could hold out forever. It was composed principally of men who had families, and the little extra time that they could spare from their work was needed at home. The only way that we can make it a success is so put our "shoulders to the wheel." We are determined to have a band, and one which our citizens will band, and one which our citizens will feel proud of, if we can get a little assistance from them to help us buy our set of instruments. We don't want a costly set, but simply one that will do us. If we can raise the required amount we will place ourselves immediately under Prof. W. H. Neave's charge, and this, if nothing else, is enough to insure success. enough to insure success. Enough has already been paid out by our people for bands to pay for two or three sets of instruments. One or two of the band will wait up-on the citizens generally soliciting con-

A Matter of Interest to Travelers. Tourists, emigrants and mariners find that Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is a medicinal safeguard against unhealthful influences, upon which they can implicity rely, since it prevents the effects that an unhealthy climate, vitiated atmosphere, unaccustomed or unwholesome diet, bad water, or other conditions unfavorable to health, would otherwise produce. On long voyages, or journeys by land in latitudes adjacent to the equator, it is especially useful as a preventive of the febrile complaints and disorders of the stomach, liver and bowels, which are apt to attack natives of the temperate zones sojourning or traveling in such regions, and is an excellent protection against the influence of extreme cold, sudden changes of temperature, exposure to damp or extreme fatigue. It not only prevents intermittent and remittent fever, and other disease of a malarial type, but eradicates them, a fact which has been notorious for years past in North and South America, Mexico, the West Indies, Australia and other countries. jun10 1w

The climate of some parts of the South seems to peculiarly foster three special scourges of the general health; these are yellow fever, periodically; malarial fever and consumption or premature decline always. The result of all of them, when not rapidly fatal, is complete prostration of the whole system, and in most cases, utter hability to derive restoration from the nourishment of ordinary food. Then the doctors all say, the only thing the stomach and pancreas, and liver, can accept and turn into vitalizing blood and solid fibre is Cod Liver Oil, or rather Scott's Empision of the Oil with the Hypophosphites of Lime and Soda. This is a finer nutrient than the Oil alone, and is besides a splendid tonic, and then it has not the least disagreenble taste or odor, and is acceptable to the most sensitive stomach. sensitive stomach. may28 2w
