THE LITTLEFIELD CASE.

The following is an editorial paragraph in the Washington Republican: General John S. Littlefield, a notorious North Carolina lobbyist, who is reputed to have gobbled up two-thirds of the railroad property of that State, now enjoys the protection of Democratic Governor Drew of Florida, who refuses to listen to what the Governor of North Carolina has to say in this case. Littlefield enjoyed a similar immunity from arrest under requisitions from the Old North State while the Republicans had control of Florida. It will be in order now for the Democrats to say something about the harbor and refuge afforded to thieves and plunderers by Governor Drew's administration; that is, unless it makes some difference to them whose ox is being gored.

THE RICHMOND STATE.

The Richmond State doesn't like Senator Vance's speech at the Ewing serenade and it wishes it accordingly. Backbiting and lies for one!
