The Polk Rifles.

At the annual meeting of the Polk Rifles, of Pineville, held a few days ago for election of officers, the following were elected for the ensuing year: Captain, John A. Younts: First Lieutenant, W. S. Williamson; Second Lieu-tenant, J. M. Boyce; Third Lieutenant, heroic verse of Homer than when he A. C. Williamson. The company is increasing both in numbers and in proficiency in the drill.

Listing of Taxables.

The people seem to have overlooked the fact that the township assessors are now sitting with open books ready to receive their returns. The books were opened on the 2nd inst., and according to law must be closed on the 20th. Messrs. J. J. Sims and A. H. Creswell, who have in charge the books for this township, may, be found at any hour during the day at the store of the former, corner Trade and Church, where the citizens can list all of their property that is subject to taxation.

An Alligator as a Gift.

A friend down South has sent to Capt-Pride Jones, of the Statesville Railroad, an alligator which, though of tender years, is four and a half feet long and more terrible to look upon than an army with banners. The gift is a veritable white elephant on the hands of its recipient who, instead of going to sleep yesterday, after his run of the night before, sat up all day trying to decide what to do with it. At a late hour of the evening he made up his mind to put it in Phifer's pond for safe-keeping and to entertain the people who are in the habit of going in bathing there.

S. P. Smith, Esq., president of the Tra-ders' National Bank, of this city, has sent into the board of directors, his resignation. A meeting of the board has been called to take place at 10 o'clock to-morrow [Saturday] morning at which time Mr. Smith's resignation, if accept-ed, will take effect. He resigns the presidency of the bank to take the place of his brother, Mr. J. M. Smith, in the firm of B. R. Smith & Co., of New York, the failing health of the last named gentleman necessitating his retirement from active business pursuits. Mr. Smith has been the president of the Traders' Bank since its organization in 1875, and in his retirement the bank will lose a highly capable officer, while the city will lose, by his change of residence, one of its most enterprising and successful business men.

Fight in a Court Room. Yesterday afternoon Manlius Means went into the office of Justice Davidson for the purpose of instituting suit against John Means for the recovery of a knife. John entered while Manlius was lodging his complaint and the two engaged in a quarrel. Notwithstanding the remonstrances of the magistrate the parties came to blows in his office, and rolling out continued their affray on the ground. The police were not conveniently near and the parties finished their fight undisturbed and were then taken into the justice's office for trial. | Manlius was fined $5 and cost and John $3 and cost. THE ALUMNI.

In the afternoon at 3.30, the alumni held their annual convocation in one of the recitations rooms in the college building. The old officers of the association were re-elected as follows:
President—F. B. McDowell, of Char-

Vice-President-Rev. S. C. Alexander, of Anson county. Secretary—J. H. McClintoch, of Huntersville.

The committee which had been appointed at a previous meeting to collect all information to be obtained concerning the whereabouts and occupations of all the old alumni of the college, were continued, and one of the members thereof was instructed to consult with the trustees in reference to the publication. injustice by requesting The Observer to add the names of Misses Annie Harding and Maggie Harris.

The association then adjourned to

ANNUAL ALUMNI ADDRESS Mr. LeRoy Davidson keeps on ice and on draft at his place of business on Trade street, lemonade and New York ed in the college chapel at 4.30 p. m. -the inestimable advantages of culture, its necessity in preserving the republic and the happiness and contentment of its people, and especially the peculiar advantages of the training, moral as well as mental, afforded by Davidson College. The address included a graceful tribute to the memories of the dead alumni, many of whom had fallen in the front rank of battle, and abounded in rhetoric of a rare and rich character. Mr. White has devoted himself for many years to the quiet pursuits of agriculture, but during that time has not neglected for one moment the more engaging claims of literature, and today he is more familiar with the soft went forth from the college which he has loved and cherished since the day he first knocked for admission at its doors. The address was well received by the audience, and especially by the alumni association. The orator chosen by the association for the next annual meeting is D. J. Devane, of Wilmington, with Rev. W. S.

Lacy, of Jonesboro, as alternate. WEDNESDAY NIGHT.

The weather, upon which the success of a commencement so largely depends, vim, dispelled the illusion which rowas the topic throughout the day, for mance has thrown around "The Mediathe clouds had begun to lower and grow | val Knight," by showing that he lacked threatening. Later it rained, but at a the very essentials of noble manhood. time when it did not interfere seriously This address was marked by a vigor with any thing. At 8 o'clock represen- and originality of thought and a grace tatives of the two literary societies be of oratory which excited general adgan to speak. This occasion, always an interesting one as marking the culmination of the generous rivalry between the societies, has been made doubly so within the past two years by the establishment of the Fowle medal for oratory, which is awarded to one of the six representatives on the strength of their efforts then and there. The decision is made by a committee selected by the president of the college, generally from among the distinguished visitors present, who note every detail and render of the college, generally from quitted himself with great credit, by throwing into it an originality which is not usual. He has a very marked face, their decision on the following day. There were only five speakers this year, Mr. J. S. Brockinton, of Kingstree, S. C., having been called home by illness in his family.

The first speaker, A. Walker White, of Concord, a tall, dignified looking young man with a powerful voice, told the story of the "Foundation of the University of Leyden," describing the stormy times of its birth, sketching its history and outlining its influence in the field of general education. The address was closed by a few practical dress was closed by a few practical suggestions concerning education in North Carolina, which were well-timed.

"William the Silent," was the subject of the oration of C. R. Harding, of Charlotte, a young man of fine address and graceful delivery. The character of William of Orange was sketched in a highly entertaining style, and his influence on the age in which he lived was shown in a clear and logical manner. W. B. Jennings, of Bennettsville, S. C., pictured the "Capture of the Bastile," sketched the condition of France during the revolution and especially at the period which culminated in this important event, and traced the results which followed it. Mr. Jennings' voice is mellow and well modulated and his manner was at times dramatic. "Ottoman Rule in Europe" was the subject of the oration of J. F. McKinnon, of Monticello, Fla. He took the ground that the impurturbable Turk had been always a clog in the wheel of civilization in Europe, and described the characteristics which rendered him the opponent of progress. The last speaker was J. Z. Dunlap, of Cedar Shoals, S. C., who discussed or rather defended "The Legal Profession." He argued that the profession received more unjust abuse and condemnation than any other, that in dignity and importance it was second to none save the ministry, described the true lawyer, the protector of the weak, the guardian of liberty, and contrasted him with the pettifogger. Mr. Dunlap's delivery was marked by grace and self-possession. The speeches were all good-thoughtful, earnest, and logical, displaying undoubted evidences of careful training in all the details of elecution under President Hepburn himself. The audience applauded the speeches and the lady friends of the young ora-tors fairly loaded them down with flowers. SOCIETY PRIZES.

The liter try societies each award three prizes—gold medals. These were presented immediately after the speaking closed by Mr. J. L. Leland, of Sumter, S. C., at one time a professor in Davidson. The following were the recipients of the prizes attached to the sub-ville at 10,20 of the same night. Retrain will leave Hendersonville at 6 a. m. reach Spartanburg at 0.30 and there passengers remain only about three hours, when they can take the Air Line Etain for Charlette.

B. Palmer Reid, of Reidville, S. C., delivered the salutatory address. This privilege is accorded to the member of the class who stands second, the first being the valedictorian. "The American Citizen" was the subject J. A. Hodges, of Little River Academy, N. C., presented—his liberty and intelligence. The speaker made popular hits by citing Vance and Hampton as men of whom every Amer-can could be proud. This speech was delivered in a dignified and deliberate manner, and was well received.

James W. Osborne, of Charlotte, N. C., animated, aggressive and full of miration and applause. The philosophical oration (the third distinction) was delivered by D. A. Mc-Gregor, of Wadesboro, N. C., who discussed in a truly philosophical and able manner the relations of labor and

The college has shown a most commendable spirit by being chary with its right to confer degrees. Not a D. D. nor an LL.D. was created. A. B. was conferred on all the graduating class except A. P. Ho! for New Orleans.

After breakfasting yesterday morning at the Central Hotel, the walking wo-man, Mrs. Mattie Potts, reported at THE OBSERVER office and announced that she was ready to set sail for Atlanta. With the remark that she felt better at that time than she had done since she left Philadelphia, she nodded farewell to the man at the wheel and about 8:30 set off for the Air-Line depot, and made off down the track of that railroad. As she turned down the grade in front of the First Presbyterian church, several smalls boys dropped in behind and concluded to keep her company to the depot, but she walked off from them as the rabbit from the snail, and with a swinging gait and a springy step was soon out of sight of Charlotte.

Commencement Exercises C. M. I.

The sixth annual commencement of the Carolina Military Institute takes place this morning at the Institute, commencing at 10 o'clock. The following young men compose the graduating class: T. S. Carter, Lancaster, S. C.; Albert Gilbert, Abbeville, S. C.; J. B. Guess, Barnwell, S. C.; A. K. Sanders, Sumter, S. C.; Hasell Thomas, Charlotte, N. C.; R. E. Wylie, Lancaster, S. C. Cadet Hasell Thomas will deliver the valedictory and Cadet T. S. Carter the salutatory addresses. The Rev. Ellison Capers, of Greenville, S. C., will deliver the annual address before the corps of cadets.

The public and the ladies especially are cordially invited to attend.

IN MEMORIAM.

Departed this life, in Winston, N. C., on the 29th of May last, Mrs. Elizabeth Carter Brown, in the 69th year of her age. She received her higher education at the Salem Female Academy, when her education at the Salem Female Academy, when her home was in her native county, Caswell, lived for years in Davie county, and spent the close of her life near the scenes of her early training, and where reside three of her four surviving children. She early professed faith in Jesus Christ as her Saviour, under the ministry of Dr. N. H. Harding, and joined the Presbyterian church in Yanceyville; and her husband, Dr. John E. Brown, dying over 30 years ago, and leaving ner with five minor children, some of them quite small, she was soon made to feel that she had chosen the good part for time as well as for eternity. Her husband's dying desire that those whom he was about to leave fatheriess should be raised up in the nuture and admonition of the Lord became the great end of her efforts and prayers, and she had abundant reason to rejoice, as she was wont to do, in the faithher efforts and prayers, and she had abundant rea-son to rejoice, as she was wont to do, in the faith-fulness of a covenant keeping God who declares himself to be a father of the fatherless, and a judge of the widow in his holy habitation. Four surviviring children, two sons and two daughters, are members of the church of her love, and both the sons are ruling elders, one in the First Presby-terian church of Charlotte, and the other in the Presbyterian church of Winston, and all the chil-dren of her deceased son are also members of the dren of her deceased son are also members of the Church.

Her life's task was well done, and the results are living memorials of maternal prudence, affection, and devotion, and of Christian instruction, faith and example; and her declining years were overshadowed by a rich experience of Divine grace, and by the tender and unremitting care of her loving offspring. As she neared the end of her earthly pligrimage her thoughts became more fixed on the things beyond, and those who were on terms of intimacy with her could easily mark the ripening of her character for the higher life even in one of her oulet and modest nature which shrank from her quiet and modest nature which shrank from the public exhibition of its inner emotions. Weeks before her last filness she said to a lady of the writhe public exhibition of its inner emotions. Weeks before her last filness she said to a lady of the writers family that she was then spending very happy nights with her Saviour—a troubling cough kept her awake, and the sleepless hours were made delightful by thoughts on the love of Jesus, and by communion with her Divine Lord. Her mortal sickness lasted put a few days, and the surprise to her family was not one to her. She seems to have been calmly anticipating the end, her worldly affairs had been carefully and minutely arranged, and exerything, even in her chamber and wardrobe, showed the preparation of one meditating a long journey and ready for the summons to leave at any hour; and during all her illness down to its last stroke, her mind was clear, her heart fixed, and her hopes brightening with anticipations of the inheritance of the Saints in light.

Every step now to the boundary line of time and etamis was brighter and more joyful, and all beholders were deeply impressed with the truth and reality of the Christian faith. The spirit brightened with the decay of its earthly tabernacle the aged pilgrim was seen to be comforted by a Divine rod and staff as she went down into the valiey and shadow of death, and she who by nature, and in her bodily strength was most impretentious became more and more joyful in religious exercises as she faded from the world, and to the moment of its sudden and painless departure, her soul gave stronger and more fervent expression to her trust and delight in Him "who loved us, and washed us from our sins in His own blood." "The sting of death a sin, and the strength of sin s the law, But thanks be to God which giveth us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ."—I. Cor. xv. 58, 57.
