

THE NEWS FROM WASHINGTON— This morning is interesting. The army bill, having previously passed the House, passed the Senate yesterday afternoon.

THE LAMAR-CONKLING EMBROILLO— THE RESULT. The most notable occurrence in the United States Senate for many years past was that of last Wednesday night—the colloquy between Messrs. Lamar and Conkling.

It is not to be expected that anything further will come of this fierce controversy. Clearly, the necessity, if such there exists, for further steps in the matter, rests upon Mr. Conkling, since, as is pointed out by one of the correspondents whom we quote, one insult cannot be wiped out with another.

The severe lesson which Mr. Conkling has just been taught, has not come to him too early. For years he has been growing more and more malignant, discourtageous and overbearing.

He has been on a perpetual hunt for plantation manners in the Senate during the present session. He has had his hunt, in which he displayed his supreme art in flinging his contempt and insult upon the Confederate brigadiers without utterance.

And what shall the harvest be? Conkling, usually forgetful of the common courtesies which obtain among Senators, and which are cultivated by gentlemen everywhere, has exhausted his great powers during the present session, to hurl insult after insult upon our Southern Senator.

"No honest voter need be intimidated by a few soldiers at the polls," said Senator Carpenter in his speech Friday. A well known citizen of a county adjoining this—a citizen distinguished for his capacity for berating—having been asked on one occasion how much he could conceal in the course of a day, made answer: "Well, in general, I drink a half a gallon of water myself, and a quart a day won't hurt anybody."

of his pride with the reiterated charge of falsehood biased in his face. This is the picture which the country beholds to-day. The lofty Roscoe holds by his own petard; met by a manner man than himself and that man unhorsed; insulted by a Confederate Brigadier and the insult burnt in by being told that were he a good man he would not deserve it and were he a brave man he would not brook it!

WASHINGTON, June 21.—SENATE.—The army bill passed the Senate at 1:50 this morning by a strict party vote except that of Burnside, who voted yesterday, May 19.

THE SENATE AMENDMENTS TO THE HOUSE BILL FOR THE APPOINTMENT OF A MISSISSIPPI RIVER COMMISSION WAS TAKEN UP AND PASSED.

Speaking of the Wednesday night scene in the Senate when the mighty New Yorker was overthrown by the Senator from Mississippi, the Washington Republican says that Mr. Lamar "had allowed himself, like a mere prize-fighter, to be coached and groomed for the occasion by his ex-Confederate peers."

ARMYING A CHANGE OF BREVET AND COMMISSION. A country paper in Illinois rushes wildly upon the thick bosses of Mr. Henry Watterson's buckler, charging that in 1876 he procured $100,000 in New York for his support of Mr. Tilden anterior and subsequent to the holding of the convention which nominated the latter gentleman for President.

ONE SUNDAY NIGHT, "OVER THE RHINE." It is proposed, a little group of newspaper writers and reporters, were willing away the leisure of the happy hours by discussing the problem touching the use of whiskey, made up of an hundredth of a dollar, and so on. Finally, the old General, which stamped the nib of his cigar upon the edge of his mug, and as the clock ticked like snowflakes in the moonlight and the orchestra floated off into the mazes of the "Beautiful Blue Danube," says he: "Well, eh? ever I get up, I get up."

ATLANTA, June 20.—Judge Hillyer, after a day's argument upon nineteen assignments of error in the case of Cox, convicted of the murder of Col. Alston, said he discovered no error in the trial and was bound to refuse the motion for a new trial. The defendant accepted, and the case goes to the Supreme Court in September.
