free-born reason." FRIDAY, JUNE 27, 1879.

CONGRESS AND THE PRESIDENT. Our telegrams this morning show that the appropriations committee has reported to the House and that body has passed one of the two bills into which the judicial expenses bill, which has just been vetoed, was divided. As has already been explained, the first of these bills provides appropriations for United States courts, and to it is attached the repeal of the test oath and the amendment of the jury law; the second contains an appropriation of $600,000 to pay United States marshals, coupled with the restrictive clauses of the vetoed bill. The interesting questions now are as to the action of the President upon these, and the subsequent action of Congress should he veto either or both of them. It seems to be generally conceded at Washington that Mr. Hayes will sign the first bill, and Gen. Garfield is put down as having said that he will certainly do so. It is as confidently expected that he will veto bill No. 2. If so, then what? It is confidently believed that in this event Congress will adjourn. If it does, however, the President will reconvene it; then it will again adjourn and he will again reproceeded far enough. If you want convene it; and so on ad infinitum. peace you must do something in the Regarding the end we express no way of securing it. Hitherto we have opinion; we give the news from Washington and stop there. Matters have forth, until you mend your ways, we arrived at that pass where nobody's opinion as to the ultimate result is worth a copper.

EXTENT AND VALUE OF THE COT-TON CROP.

Northern politicians take pride and pleasure in belittling the value and extent of Southern productions, and if a Southern claim happens to be presented in Congress, no matter how just, a howl goes up through the length and breadth of the United States, that the "rebel brigadiers," having captured Congress, will speedily deplete the Federal treas. ury. In view of these facts it is well occasionally to look into the matter and see what is the value of the producfions of the South.

We have before us the "Report of the Chief of the Bureau of Statistics, on Commerce and Navigation," at Washington City, printed and distributed by authority of the government. On page 121-122 we find the extent and value of

Year.	Bales.	Product'n in pound: —Gross weight.

	45,608,669	21.082,884,843

By this table it will be seen that up to the 30th of June last year Southern labor, expended on Southern fields, had produced forty-five millions, six hundred and eight thousand, six hundred and sixty-nine bales, or a total product in pounds of twenty-one billions, eightytwo millions, eight hundred and sixty four thousand, eight hundred and fortythree, up to September 30th, 1878. The average price of cotton in New York for the previous eleven years was 23.02 per pound, but since that time the price may be averaged at 12.50, or a round average for the thirteen years ending September 30th, 1878, of 21.40, as per tables furnished by Latham, Alexander & Co., of New York, one of the largest and most reliable cotton commission houses in the United States. If we multiply the number of pounds of cotton produced by these figures, we find that the cotton crop-that has found its way to market during this time-has been worth four billions. five hundred and eleven millions, seven hundred and thirty-four thousand, seventy-six dollars and thirty cents, or, a good deal more than double the whole debt of the Federal government. Of this sum, 67.93 per cent. has been exported to foreign countries, thus adding to the wealth of the nation three billions, sixty-three millions, seven hundred and seventy thousand, nine hundred and forty-eight dollars and four cents.

In the face of these facts it seems to us that it is bad policy to ridicule the resources of the South, and it is about if it could draw to its support any contime for us to realize that we are of siderable part of the Greenback vote, more importance than a mere dependency to this nation. It is about time this. The meeting at Toledo, Tuesday, settles this question summarily, and, that while we have produced all this wealth, we have purchased almost as much other commodities, many of selves, with the proceeds of our cotton crop, and as our lands grow poorer and poerer each year, we are expending the products of our soil to enrich others. 'How long, oh Cataline, how long?"

REPUBLICAN CONSISTENCY.

In its editorial columns Harper Weekly for this week, discussing the question of Southern school books, says that at this time "the paramount necessity of the country is the obliteration of a wretched, irritating, belittling sectionalism." The reader turns from this deliverance to the reverse side of the paper and there sees a cartoon of the Hon. Jefferson Davis, dressed as an old woman, a water-bucket at his feet, and addressing the Mississippi press associa-The distinguished gentleman is designated, at the foot of this caricature, as "Miss J. Davis," and the idea sought to be brought out is, of course. that of Mr. Davis's alleged flight, in woman's clothing, from the Federal troops who were in pursuit of him at the close of the war-a story which no decent man believes to-day. This is the way Harper's Weekly has of obliterating "a wretched, irritating, belittling sectionalism"—thus showing that it is possessed of the regulation Radical idea of the proper course to be pursued in obliterating sectionalism, to-wit: That the South should keep its mouth shut with reference to the war and the issues thereof, while the North goads it and insults it daily in speech, by pen and by pencil. Truly this is a nice source for a wail against sectionalism to arise from, when Harper's Weekly's man Nast has done and is doing more than all other men combined to keep alive the spirit of sectional antagonism. Your pardon, masters! but this hypocrisy has done all and to no purpose. Hence-

There is an embarrassing affair at Washington. Mr. Oscar Turner, Democratic Congressman from one of the districts of Kentucky, very closely resembles Mr. Robinson, the chairman of the Ohio Republican State executive committee. Mr. Hubbell, Congressman from Michigan and chairman of the Republican Congressional campaign committee, meeting Mr. Turner in the capitol a few days ago, called him aside and told him that the editor of a certain newspaper in Washington City, The National View, a Greenback paper, was doing "us" a great deal of good in Ohio and Kentucky; that he was sending thousands of his paper into these States and was making serious inroads upon the Democratic party. The speaker told the party addressed that he would be glad if he could aid the editor, and Mr. Turner having said that he would take the matter under consideration, turned off. He did not know Hubbell at first but made inquiries and found out, and then it dawned upon him that it was a case of mistaken identity. He afterwards learned that he had been mistaken for Robinson and that through this mistake on Hubbell's part he had been put in possession of an important party secret. He had told the secret around very generally as an excellent joke, and not only so but has published a card setting forth the salient points of the interview.

Thus is the Greenback paper shown up as playing into the hands of the Radicals, and Congressman Hubbell is put in the disagreeable position of drummer for a paper which is sailing under false colors and as the promoter of a scheme which, to designate it lightly, is a species of sharp practice not warranted by good morality.

THE OHIO GREENBACKERS.

That portion of the Greenback party of Ohio which split off from the Greenback convention, held at Columbus. about two weeks ago, met at Toledo Tuesday and adopted a thorough-going Greenback platform, A report of the proceedings says:

A letter was read from Peter Cooper advising the Ohio Greenbackers to vote the Ewing (regular Democratic) ticket, and was received with great applause. A resolution was then adopted, after considerable filibustering, declaring it inexpedient to nominate a State ticket. A meeting of dissenting members of the convention subsequently agreed to support the Columbus Greenback ticket, but not the platform. The meeting was exciting, and the action of the convention in not nominating a ticket was characterized as a sell out to the Demo-

ONE GOOD RESULT .- The present sitnation of affairs at Washington is not an unmixed evil, since it has resulted in Mr. Alexander H. Stephens joining the Democratic party, temporarily at least. He called on the President a few days ago, and with a great deal of persistence urged him to sign the judicial expenses bill. The President gave him evasive answers, and further than this, the Washington correspondent of the Baltimore Sun says: Mr. Stephens was not satisfied wit this remark of the President, and he left not in a very good humor. His disappointment accounts for his placing imself alongside of the stalwart Dem-

THE JUDICIAL EXPENSES. THE BILL PASSES THE HOUSE. Republican Filibustering-Window on the Exodus-Other General Matters Yesterday.

WASHINGTON, June 26 .- SENATE .-Vest asked unanimous consent out of the morning hour to call up the concurrent resolution submitted by him yesterday declaring that the remonetiza-tion of silver—its full restoration as a money metal and its free coinage-are demanded alike by the dictates of justice and wise statesmanship. Chandler objected and the resolution went over.

Ferry introducd a bill to amend the act providing for the appointment of a Mississippi river improvement commission. Referred.

Beck, from the finance committee, reported favorably on the joint resolution providing for a committee to investigate the best means of guarding and collecting the public revenues, and to ascertain whether any change is necessary in the method of making appro-priations. The resolution was passwill give you a Lamar for your Conked. It provides that the committee shall consist of three members of each House, instead of five Senators and seven Representatives, as required by Beck's original resolution.

Ransom, from the committee on commerce, reported favorably on the House joint resolution authorizing a survey of the Mississippi river near Concordia and Cowpen Bend, and it was passed. The Senate then took up the unfinished business of yesterday, Windom resuming his speech in defence of the record of the Republican party. He referred at length to the colored exodus; said he had encouraged it and gloried

Vance read a letter from colored men n North Carolina, to show that there nad never been intimidation of colored voters in that State. Davis, of West Virginia, read statistics in contravention of those cited by Windom, and said the latter's figures were deceptive. The Senate then went into executive | ples. session, and when the doors were reopened the presiding officer laid before the judicial expenses bill passed by the appropriation committee. Adjourned. House.-A proposition for revoking he leaves of absence granted to members and requiring all absentees to report for duty immediately, was made by Armfield, of North Carolin, but was bjected to.

The bill making appropriations for certain judicial expenses, and one to pay the fees of marshals and their general deputies, were reported from the committee on appropriations. Ordered to be printed and referred to the committee of the whole.

The bill prohibiting political assessments came up as the business of the morning hour. Garfield sought an op-portunity of speaking against the bill, but was cut off by the previous question, and the Republicans resorted to dilatory tactics.

At the expiration of the morning hour, Cox submitted a conference report on the letter-carrier's bill, and after a short discussion it was adopted The bill as agreed to appropriates $415,-000 for the payment of letter-carriers during the ensuing fiscal year, and $71,-000 for increased salaries of letter-carriers during the present fiscal year.

Gibson, of Louisiana, introduced a bill amending the Mississippi river improvement act. Referred. The House then went into committee of the whole on the judicial expenses bill, Blackburn, of Kentucky, in the chair. Weaver, of Iowa, offered an amendment, providing that the commissioner of jurors mentioned in the bill shall be appointed from the principal political party in the district in which the court is held, opposed to that to which the clerk of the court belongs. Adopted. Many other amendments were proposed but all were rejected.

The committee then rose and the bill was reported to the House and passed -yeas 99, nays 67. All the Greenbackers present, except Forsythe, voted in the affirmative. the affirmative. Adjourned.

The Khedive Finally Deposed. LONDON, June 25.—A Reuters dispatch from Cairo to-day says the French, British and German consuls general went in a body to the palace after midnight last night and announced. ed to the Khedive that he had been deposed by the Sultan and that Halim Pasha would be sent to succeed him unless he immediately abdicated. The Khedive in reply merely referred the consuls again to the Sultan.
