[ENTERED AT THE POST-OFFICE AT CHARLOTTE,

N. C., AS SECOND-CLASS MATTER.

NORTH CAROLINA AND THE PEA-BODY FUND.

SUNDAY, OCTOBER 5, 1879.

As the telegraph has informed the reader, the trustees of the Peabody fund were in session several days of last week in New York city. The full report of the proceedings furnishes some points of considerable interest. For instance, we note that the total appropriations for 1878 for the education of children in the Southern States, amounted to $74,850. Of this amount the children of North Carolina received $6,700. The following is an extract from Dr. Sear's report: In North Carolina 82,054 of 273,767 white children, and 50,499 of 148,613 colored children, attended the schools on an average in 1878. The University Normal School at Chapel Hill is pros-perous. The colored Normal School at Fayetteville was organized in 1877, and has had an average attendance of 70 so badly that it is difficult to persuade young men to learn to teach.

There is a good deal that is humiliating to North Carolinians in the above paragraph, and yet the whole truth is not told. Though the average of children that attend school in this State is small compared with the whole number, the case is made the worse when it is known that of those who do attend the average period of attendance is below three months of the twelve. If a State is to be judged by the intelligence of its people, and this is measured by their educational facilities, it is no wonder North Carolina ranks low among the sisterhood. While our educated people are as well educated as any, and do credit to their State when they go abroad, it is a deplorable fact that there is more popular ignorance in North Carolina than in any other State of the American Union. As long as this is the case, just so long will our State rank low in the scale of being.

JUST THE AMOUNT OF IT.

The Winston Sentinel says:

Much has been said in the papers about the exercise of the pardoning power by our Governors. Holden, Caldwell and Brogden abused this power by turning loose from the penitentiary more convicts than all the Governors of North Carolina before them. When Gov. Vance succeeded he made frequent and free use of this prerogative, and in some cases was justly censured by the press. After Vance comes Jarvis, who unlike his predecessors, has steadfastly refused, except in two instances when he commuted the death sentence to imprisonment for life, to interfere with the verdict of the jury and the sentence of the court, and he has been just as ing: soundly abused for not doing the very thing the other Governors were abused for doing. So it seems there is no highway to public favor by way of the penitentiary or gallows.

pardon and commute few or many or none at all, and in any event he will be abused by thoughtless people who know little or nothing of the facts of any of the cases upon which he may act, and who do not realize that this power of pardon and commutation is the most sacred and responsible of all those vested in the Governor.

A Possible Dilemma.-Let us anticipate a possible contingency: Northern Republican newspapers, notably the New York Tribune, are harping strongly upon "Southern repudiation." A contest is now in progress in Virginia over the question of the settlement of the State debt. The Democratic (or, as it is known over there, the Conservative) party is divided between a settlement which will be satisfactory to the creditors, and "forcible re-adjustment," which means partial repudiaso solidly for repudiation as to defeat cannot charge the result to the shotgun policy for a majority of the "rebel Democracy" favor the settlement: it cannot charge it to the innate cussedness of the negro, for it has argued all these years to show how much better man he is than the Southern white. What would be the exact nature of the explanation it puzzles us to conjecture, and we await the result in Virginia with impatience to find out.

"COTTON MOVEMENTS AND FLUCTUA-TIONS."-We are in receipt of the sixth | will confront the enemy in 1880." edition of this little volume, from Messrs. Latham, Alexander & Co., bankers and cotton commission merchants, 37 and 39 Wall street, New York. It embraces a history of the cotton movement and fluctuation from 1869 to 1879, inclusive, and past editions are ample guarantee for the absolute completeness and accuracy of this. The able and lengthy review of the general cotton market for the year 1878-'79 is of marked interest and value. All the statistics which can be imagined in connection with the cotton trade of the country, for last year and for the last ten years are compiled with the utmost care in this little book, and one single table treats of the cotton trade of the United States for fifty years past, showing total crops, home consumption, exports and average price each year. For reference this book is invaluable. It contains facts and figures which cannot be had from any other source, and no cotton merchant should be without it. We shall, at a future time, refer to some of its special features.

United States marshals are rejoicing in an assurance given to one, of them by Mr. Atkins, chairman of the conpressional committee on appropriations, to the effect that the committee will report a bill at the next session for the payment of their salaries and proper outlays. It can hardly be inferred from this, however, that the committee will recommend or Congress grant any pay for partisan services in meddling with elections.

STATE RIGHTS.

The following are such wholesome sentiments, and what is said is so well said, that we adopt the article as our own. It is from the Lynchburg News, of some days ago:

"One might suppose from what is daily seen in the papers of the Republiembodiment of treason against republican institutions.

"Since the war, every leading Southern man who intimated that his State had any rights, independent of the Federal government, has been denounced as a rebel by the school now ruling the Radical party. Even Mr. Hayes has the effrontery to reflect on the Southern leaders in this regard, and, yet the Republicans on the electoral commission, hid the fraud by which he holds an office to which he was not elected, behind the doctrine of State's rights in its most violent form, that of pure independent State sovereingty. These shifts and turns of the Republican party show that with it political principle is nothing-that power and place, at any sacrifice of principle and any use throughout the year. Teachers are paid of money, is its policy. And yet the lawlessness and corruption of the party, the worthlessness of its promises, its cant, hypocrisy and cunning, have failed to learn the Democratic party the ab-

"One might suppose that here in Virginia we have not forgotton the horrors of carpet-bag rule, and the troubles of reconstruction. Yet we see, at least, some of the people who have no personal or pecuniary interest in politics, willing to divide the Democratic party, affiliate with colored Radicals in a campaign upon issues that cannot benefit the State or relieve the people of a sin-

Thus tendered the honor would satisfy my highest ambition.

This is as direct and explicit as it could possibly be, and it will put at rest for all time any apprehensions which may have existed upon the subject of Col. Holt's connection with any independent movement.

"Adventurers and pilferers masquerading in the name of Republicanism," is the characterization which the Utica (N. Y.) Herald, Senator Conkling's organ, puts upon the adherents of the tion. The Republicans will probably Republican party in the Southern hold the balance of power, and it is States.
