NO. 3,320.

The guests are come, all silent they have waited, Entering the noiseless hush with silent bows; They linger for her coming, sore belated— Where is the little mistress of the house?

The Mistress of the House.

That come too seldom, as she gaily vows; Yet they are here, and wait her pleasure only; Where is the little mistress of the house?

She cannot be far off—perhaps but sleeping;
Doubtless at their low call she would arouse;
Why do they summon her alone with weeping;
Where is the little mistress of the house?

The portraits stay behind their veiling covers;
The dust is in the melancholy room;
Upon the air a ghastly stience hovers;
Within the threshold loneliness and gloom.

Cold, dark and desolate the place without her, Wanting her gentle smile, as each allows; She bears a sunbeam light and warmth about her; Where is the little mistress of the house?

Our stock of plain, striped and fancy Sattines and Velvets for trimmings is the largest and hand-somest we have ever offered in this market. Be The curtains fall, undraped by her slight fingers; Behind the wainscot gnaws a secret mouse. Her treasures need her care, but still she lingers-Where is the little mistress of the house?

Where her small feet fell light as falling snow,
They bear her in, the mortal made immortal;
She comes again, but heavily and slow;

O empty shell! O beautiful frail prison! Celd, white and vacant, tenantiess and dumb, From such poor clay as this has Christ arisen; For such as this He shall in glory come!

But in the calm indifference to our sorrow In the sharp anguish of her parting breath, In the dark gulf that hides her from to-morrow Thou hast thy victory, Grave! thy sting, O Death

Would pale before the glory of her brows Yet in the radiant beauty dare to woo her To be again the mistress of the house.

In about two weeks more Gen. Grant will have to begin to keep house, and as he goes down the back street at Galena with a market basket under his arm, he will find it far different from traveling as a distinguished guest. THE STATE FAIR.

The First Day-The Formal Opening-Gov. Jarvis's Address.

The State Fair at Raleigh opened Tuesday with excellent prospects. The Raleigh Observer says that "while the number of articles shown in all departments is not so large, perhaps, as at some previous exhibitions, yet the display is so much more attractive that it more than counterbalances the lost quantity. The arrangement of the grounds has been improved, while the display in the main exhibition hall is the most pleasing ever made in that

At 10 o'clock Tuesday morning the procession formed in front of the Yarborough House and marched to the fair grounds. At the grand stand the band played "The Old North State," and Col. Thos. M. Holt, president of the State Agricultural Society, introduced His Excel-Persons in Charlotte, or at a distance, can buy beer from me at bottom rock prices, and warranted to be as pure and fresh as if just made.

My facilities this summer for the delivery of Beer are better than ever, and as the sole agent in Charlotte of the Atlanta Brewery, I respectfully solicit the patronage of the public.

Wines and the best Liquers on draught or for sale by the quantity all the time. lency, Gov. Jarvis. The Governor, according to the Raleigh Observer, rose amidst cheers and said:

"Courtesy has assigned to the Chief Executive of the State the privilege each year of formally opening the State Fair. In performing this service to-day I feel that I am in some degree connecting myself with an institution that has aided, does aid and will always materially aid in the development of the varied interests of the State, and in benuried interests of the State, and in bencfit to the people. Whatever brings to-gether the people from the various sec-tions of the State, face to face, and in personal contact, tends to subordinate sectional feelings to State pride, and to instil in the whole people a stronger desire to make North Carolina what she ought to be, among the first States of the Union. Especially so when the occasion that brings them together is the broad, conservative interest of agricul-ture and its kindred subjects. Within these walls he who lives within sound of the roar of the mighty ocean may lock arms with him who rests beneath the shadows of the grand old mountains, and each find here something in common to look at, to talk about, to interest, and put in more active operation their State pride. For these reasons I now extend to the people of the State a general welcome, and only request that amid the pleasure they find in witnessing the exhibition they will remember the patience and labor of those who are its projectors, and who have worked for it. I now declare the State fair of 1879 opened."

This concluded the ceremonies, and the crowd dispersed to look about them. The crowd was, of course, not large the first day, nor was the exhibition complete although there were a number of exhibits. tion. Has they? No paper in the State has undergone a more marked improvement within the past year, especially in its local department, than the Winston Sentinel.

The Winston Sentinel says about a year ago a lot of California salmon were placed in the Yadkin river, and this fall a number have been caught, measuring about a foot in length. Mr. Ryan, a young man from Washington, visited Hillsboro last week to look around, with a view to establishing a newspaper, if there should appear to be an opening. The Winston Sentinel says the farmers of its section speak gloomily of the wheat prospects. The earth is I

The Wilmington Review says that Mr. Wm. Bonitz opened his new hotel in Goldsboro last Monday. It is a new three-story brick building and contains 34 well ventilated rooms; every room has windows, and all are handsomely Salisbury News: Col. D. C. Salisbury has the finest flouring mills in Western North Carolina. He has also the larg-est two-year old Poland-China hog in the State. It weighs 1,000 pounds and measures nine feet in length and four and a half in height.

Another burglary. The Wadesboro Herald says: Some one entered Mr. J. B. Burns's sleeping apartment Monday night, and took from his pants' pocket his pocket book. After leaving his room they found that the book contained nothing but notes, and left it on the window sill.

The Raleigh Farmer and Mechanic has just entered its fifth volume. It is an A1 newspaper, as full of interesting matter as an egg of meat. Capt. Shot-well puts any amount of work upon it, and it has grown wonderfully in the esteem of the people. We congratulate our friend upon the very notable success which his paper has achieved.

Greensboro Patriot: Judge Dick was so much disgusted with the wild swearing of one Philpot, a special revenue officer, last week, that he pronounced him the most abandoned case he ever met in court, ordered the marshal to take charge of him and hold him under a bond of $500 from day to day as a perjurer, and instructed the clerk to enter a nol. pros. in every case in which he was the principal witness.

Cleaveland cripples carry shooting irons. The Shelby Aurora says: We learn that Mr. Ausburn Wray, a crippled man, who lives in Township No. 1, was sitting under the arbor at Rock Springs camp-meeting, in Rutherford county, last Saturday night, when the bench upon which he was sitting broke, and in the fall a pistol, which he had about his person, was accidentally discharged, the ball striking him in the leg and inflicting a painful but not sentence where were rious wound,

Greensboro Patriot: Work on the grading of the Cape Fear & Yadkin Valley Railroad is progressing splendidly. The force of convicts on the eastern end have been moved to the stockade five miles from Matthews', and the force at this end will be moved to the new stockade five miles south of here next week. There remains but twenty-six miles of road to grade, and a couple of miles at Buffalo, which is skipped for the present. Some of the ground is so level that two miles a week can be done. At the present rate its projectors, and who have worked of progress the completion of the grad-for it. I now declare the State fair of ing may be looked for inside of twelve

The Farmer and Mechanic says Mr. John E. Tyler, of Roxobel, Bertie county, has patented his rifle and revolver ty, has patented his rifle and revolver cartridge, which he claims will double the death-dealing capacity of the weapon using them. The cartridge shell is made long enough for two (or more) balls, each having its own charge of powder, separated by a combustible wad. When the first chamber explodes the flame burns the wad and fires the second, which is followed by the third and so on. He prefers, however, a shell holding only two balls. Thus a Winchester rifle using 17 cartridges would really fire 34 balls, and by a quick change of direction would make each missile count on the foe.
