Hepatitis, or Liver Complaint,

Symptoms of a Diseased Liver.

PAIN in the right side, under the edge of the ribs, increases on pressure; sometimes the pain is in the left side; the patient is rarely able to lie on the left side; sometimes the pain is felt under the shoulder blade, and it frequently extends to the top of the shoulder, and is sometimes mistaken for theumatism in the arm. The stomach is affected with loss of appetite and sickness; the bowels in general are costive, sometimes alternative with lax; the head is troubled with pain, accompanied with a dull, heavy sensation in the back part. There is generally a considerable loss of memory, accompanied with a painful sensation of having left undone something which ought to have been done. A slight, thy cough is sometimes an attendant.

The patient complains of weariness and debility; he is easily startled, his feet are cold or burning, and he complains of a prickly sensation of the skin; his spirits are low; and although he is satisfied that exercise would be beneficial to him, yet he can scarcely summon up fortitude enough to try it.

In fact, he distrusts every remedy.

Several of the above symptoms attend the disease, but cases have occurred

THE HOLIDAYS ARE NEAR AT HAND!

And both the young and old are looking forward in bright expectancy, and with joyful hopes that some kind remembreasts of all your readers. The two brance may be left as a token of friendship from some relative or friend. We trust that none will be disappointed, and have actually been tattooed on the nose with a broad arrow! They were that old Santa Chaus will distribute his favors not only with a liberal hand, but will not show any partiality in his disbursements. We are glad to see this time-honored custom increasing in favor with the people. We hope it will continue to grow, and this joy-giving time will be looked upon as one of the happiest and brightest days in the year. Let us all extend a willing hand and assist those who desire to carry out their part, but who, owing to numerous obligations and limited incomes, are deprived from contributing what they would be most willing to do if circumstances did not prevent. Let not selfishness but liberality predominate. Be willing to divide a part of your own good fortune with those who are not so fortunate, and note the change your kindness produces. The gladness that speaks from the heart will be an arrow or an anchor (for accounts vary as to the real sign) upon their sufficient evidence of the joy within. There is not one of us who cannot contribute something. The gift may be humroyal noses. The captain of the ship ble; that matters not; it will be acceptable. So far there has not been a single Democratic caucus, whereas they were of frequent occurrence last winter and spring, and very little good came of them. One often heavily said and spring, and very little good came of any of them. Several Democrats whose opinions I have sought say they do not think there is any reason to expect a partisan debate will grow out of the "political clause" as it is called, attached to the marshals appropriation bill. Senator Wallace is one who takes that view. But Republicans say they will be compelled to take the glove thrown down by the Democratic and if there shall be no political debate it will be because of Democratic reticence—a virthe they have not been conspicuous for in recent years.

The mummy measures nine feet one inch in length, and is evidently the body of a man. One of the party of discoverers cut the wrappings from the face, but did it so clumsily that the head crumbled into dust. Besides the body of the giant the tomb contained a spear head, a hatchet, two lances, three mattocks or hoes, a spade, a cup, two plates and a small urn, all of copper. The owner of the cave, it is asserted, is anxious to have a scientist to examine it, and in the meanting proposes to throw open the cave to the public, "charging a small fee for admission," and will doubtless do a brisk business if half what the correspondent writes be true.

The conduct of Gen. Brady in reference to the transportation of the mails has been so flagrantly wrong that the leading Republican journals concede his guilt and have not one word to say in its extenuation. Gen. But Tweed pand a fewful penalty—his liberty and his life—for his transgressions, while Oakey Hall, supposed to be half mad at the time was found wandering in Bondon, after his secret and disguised

Democrats in Congress are receiving letters from their constituents suggesting that it will be the wise from a party standpoint to indulge in financial or political discussion this session.
