The Old Bachelor's New Year. CHARLES G. HALPINE. Oh, the Spring hath less of brightness And the spring main less of brightness
Every year;
And the snow a ghastlier whiteness
Every year;
Nor do Summer blossoms quicken,
Nor does Autumn fruitage thicken
As it did—the seasons sicken

Every year. It is growing cold and colder
Every year,
And I feel that I am o'der Every year; And my limbs are less elastic, And my fancy not so plastic— Yea, my habits grow monastic Every year.

'Tis becoming bleak and bleaker Every year, And my hopes are waxing weaker And my nopes are waring wearer.

Every year;

Care I now for merry dancing.

Or for eyes with passion glancing?

Love is less and less entrancing

Oh, the days that I have squandered
Every year,
And the friendships rudely sundered
Every year;
Of the ties that might have twined me,
Until time to death resigned me,
My infirmittes remind me

Sad and sad to look before us Every year,
With a heavier shadow o'er us
Every year:
To behold each blossom faded, And to know we might have made it An immortal garland, braided

IRELAND'S DIRE DISTRESS.

"For God's Sake Send Us Bread."

By Cable to the New York Herald. DUBLIN, Feb. 3, 1880.—The daily, hourly cry of distress in Ireland becomes more and more urgent and widespread. Every day reveals new horrors in the catalogue of suffering. The outlook for the coming months is gloomier than any prediction has yet painted. No language can describe the appalling privations, the utter destitution which prevail, but a vivid picture can be found in the statement and figures below. They are unexaggerated and well authenticated. IN THE CAUSE OF HUMANITY. The land agitation has hidden its head for the moment, the agitators lending a hand in the common cause. Parnell's attack upon the Mansion House and the Duchess of Marlborough funds is a crime the responsibility of which no man should take upon himself at this time. The confusion thus caused only blinds the eyes of America to the present awful necessities of the Irish peasantry. If Parnell be a true Irish patriot he will sink animosities which every one here deprecates, even his friends and sympathizers, and will become the champion in America of that cause in which all the world is one —the cause of charity.

THE STATISTICS OF THE ACTUAL DIS-

The following figures are compiled from the official returns of the local committees to the central bodies organized for the distribution of relief in Dublin, as well as from private inquiries made by your correspondent. They are vouched for by Protestant and Catholic clergy, gentry and public officials. Further returns are arriving daily in overwhelming numbers.

The returns by counties where the chief distress exists show the numbers of those suffering to be as follows: RETURNS BY COUNTIES
