GREAT BARGAINS ARE IN STORE

FOR those who have delayed in making their Winter Clothing purchases. We prefer to turn our Stock into Cash, open each season with the newest designs in fabrics, and increase the solid reputation we have already achieved for keeping in every respect a first-class Stock. And we have decided to clear out all heavy Goods, they are to be sold, and we know the only way to make quick and rapid work is to make a price low enough and the public will respond. We have had a successful year's business and we intend to make a clear and thorough sweep of all Winter Goods on hand. Remember the first comes secures the best selection, and such inducements as we will now offer happen but a few times in any person's experience. We never make any promises that we do not fulfill, the verifications of these facts can be seen on our tables. Our prices are all marked in plain figures, and we repeat again the Goods are to be sold.

The butter was made by Mrs. John Reich, placed in a crock, and suspended in the well over night, by a cord, to become firm. It is supposed the rats cut the cord and thus it fell into the well and sank into the mud at the bottom, where it remained till to-day, some eight feet in the mud. It was taken out by Mr. Mart Peebles, who now lives on the place. The well had become dry, and Mr. Peebles was cleaning it out to secure a flow of water. The butter is perfectly good, as I ate some of it to-day. The outside of the lump to the thickness of an eighth of an inch was as firm as a rock. The orock was perfectly sound.

Some time ago an article appeared in one of the papers entitled "Social Affinities." It was received with much unthinking approbation, and the great question, "Does Man Like Woman?" seemed triumphantly settled in the negative. Again, in the Times of January 31, 1880, it presents its warped and one-sided views upon a question of more importance than at first appears, for a suspicion once dissemminated that the sexes really are antagonistic

The old Russian Czar was so convinced of the attraction of the sexes that he and in his struggles broke the ice for about a hundred feet before we got him landed. Seeing that our weight was too great for the ice we separated, and also soon found we had lost our course heavily fined, and in some instances, imprisoned, such of his courtier as failed to bring their wives and daughters with them to his levees. Solomon the also soon found we had lost our course and were heading above the island toward open water. Cummings, Robinson, and myself stayed together and pushed the sleigh, which we had unloaded, and which soon went through, and we abandoned it. The wind blew a hurricane, and it was becoming pitch dark. Suddenly we all broke through at once, and then each tried to save himself. I found a cake big enough to sustain me in a kneeling position, and Wise surrounded himself with 300 feminine. Have we no Solomons among us? I found a cake big enough to sustain me in a kneeling position, and Cummings and Robinson got on another. We consulted, and I told Robinson that I should go no further. He said he would try to get ashore and get a boat, and he stripped off his coat and boots and plunged into the open water. He swam about a hundred feet, crawled out on the ice and we lost sight of him. I should think I remained on my

If any one doubts a boy's attraction toward a girl, just let him reside in a town where boarding schools of the opposite sexes are established; the amount of letters surreptitiously conveyed into that female seminary would astonish a pestman. The punishment in rural schools of placing a boy among the girls consists in lowering him in their estimation, and not, as my learned contemporary implies, of a hatred of the sex. I have known boys to steal their dead I have known boys to steal their dead sister's treasures to present to their little sweethearts. I do not write exceptions, but examples of what is passing daily, hourly, in our midst. I have been careful not to exaggerate, as any man who will speak thruthfully will acknowledge. Man does like woman, collectively or individually, and for a woman's approbation will peril life and soul. Unhappy marriages do not arise row. The moon had come out, and I paddled to the cake on which Cummings stood, and which I found to be about twenty feet square and some five inches thick. I found the poor fellow was losing his mind and perishing. He was thinly clad, so I took my overcoat off and wrapped it around him, and got on his windward side to protect him from the gale. To add to my distress and terror, the motion of the ice, as it rose and fell with the waves and ground soul. Unhappy marriages do not arise from antagonism of the sexes.
