"Poor Tom's A-Cold."

The following charmingly musical and suggestive lines were recently written by Mr. H. Clay Lutens in memory of Mr. Thomas W. Eichelberger, London Spectator.

Out from the West a sorrow came, Borne on the wires of woe-By Death's fell stroke, lay low: And now beneath the prairie mold, Poor Tom's a-cold!

His life was earnest, for his mind, Though oft attuned to mirth. To soberer sentiments inclined And gave the pathos birth, That on our eager hearts took hold.

Sigh, gentle Summer zephyrs, sigh Above the fresh-turned sod, Where peacefully the form doth lie, hose soul hath soared to God. Sad requiem this as e'er was tolled Poor Tom's a cold! Poor Tom's a cold!

CUMBERLAND, MD., April 17.—A remarkable case of accidental poisoning of a whole family, with the narrow escape from death of seven persons, occape from death of seven persons, occurred on the farm of a young man named Charles Keller, six miles from this place, yesterday. Mr. Keller and Daniel Schultz, a fourteen-year-old boy employed on the farm, were at work in a field some distance from the house and Mrs. Keller prepared their dinner and sent it to them by her two sons, aged about six and seven years respectively. In preparing the meal Mrs. Keller made some biscuit, using what she supposed was baking powder, as the substance was taken from a jar so labeled. The two lads started with the dinner, eating some of the buscuit by the way. They had scarcely swallowed the food before they became very ill and were forced to return to the house. Mr. Keller's aged grand mother, Mrs. Wilkinson, then took the dinner and carried it to Mr. Keller, who with the hired boy, also became very ill after eating. Mr. Keller was able to reach the house, but Schultz, fell prostrate in the road.

the decision of the Court of Appeal York sanday News. There are in them a in the case of Debenham vs. Mellor is utaintiess and a simplicity seldom met with in so contrary to popular belief as to the state of the law upon the subject, and will so greatly alarm all tradesmen, except butchers and greengrocers, that it deserves more than passing notice. Mrs. Mellor, the wife of a man in a respectable position—manager of a rail-way hotel at Bradford—ordered some articles of dress of Messrs. Debenham

& Freebody upon credit, which were sent in to her and her husband's residence in the usual course. There was no contention that the dresses were extravagant, or unsuited to Mrs. Mellor's station, or overcharged or objectionable in any way whatever. Indeed, Lord Justice Bramwell seems to have thought that the very vague word "necessaries" might have been fairly applied to them, and no question as to their price was so much as raised. Nevertheless, when the bill was sent in, the husband refused to pay for them, alleging, quite truly and conscientiously, as it would appear, that he had strictly forbidden his wife to buy anything upon his credit; that she had disobeyed his commands, and that consequently he should not pay for the dresses. He adhered to this decision, and Messrs. Debenham sued him for money. The court, however, decided that the husband was not liable, and Messrs. Debenham, whose business, with that of every other silk mercer, is attacked by the decision at the root, carried their plaint up to the Court of Appeal. There, however, three judges-Lord Justice Bramwell, Lord Justice Baggallay and Lord Justice Thesiger-unanimously agreed in two elaborately-reasoned judgments that the court below were right, and that if a husband prohibited his wife from pledging his credit that prohibition ended his liability, even though it was privately given and remained entirely unknown to the tradesmen concerned. They fancy they are supplying goods to a wife, but are really supplying them to a feme sole, who also happens to be exoverated by law from process for debt. For, be it observed, the exemption of the husband does not create a liability in the wife, the tradesman having in fact no legal debtor, Some little doubt was hard upon the tradesman, but it would be harder still upon the husband to lay upon him a burden of liability against his will, and from which he would be unable to relieve himself ex-cept by public advertisement not to

A WHOLE FAMILY POISONED.

Arsenic Used for Baking Powder Through Mistake-A Battle for Life.

Cumberland, Md., April 17.—A remarkable case of accidental poisoning of a whole family, with the narrow essential possible and the sun's rays as they reach our earth in its equabut by the natural heat of the sun's rays as they reach our earth in its equatorial regions. To protract his sufferings and to avert his too speedy end by sunstroke, the ingenious Al-Quadjis cover their erring compatriot's head with fresh green leaves, which effectually shield his brain from Phæbus's darts. No such protection is however, accorded to his body, which gradually dries up, shrinks together, and ultimately becomes carbonized. One chance of salvation is open to the roasting man, while as yet he is not completely "done to death." If a cloud pass between the sun and his place of torment he is at once cast loose from his post, he is at once cast loose from his post, and becomes the object of popular reverence as a mighty magician in whose behalf the natural powers have deigned directly to intervene. But clouds seldent interfere with the administration dom interfere with the administration of justice on the days chosen for public executions by the Al-Quadji authorities; at least that appears to be Dr. Schweinfurth's experience of African weather as far as it bears upon the judicial roasting of malefactors.

also became very ill after eating. Mr. Keller was able to reach the house, but Schultz fell prostrate in the road, While these events were occurring outdoors, the grandmother, Mrs. Keller and an infant son who also ate of the biscuit, were seized in the same manner; all exhibited decided symptoms of arsenical poisoning. They all experienced burning sensations in the throat and stomach, suffered from a terrible thirst and somited freely. About eight o'clock in the ayening a physician was summoned from here who, on reaching the linuse, found the enthe family stretched on their beds writhing in agony. Fortunately most of the poison was vomited up early in the day but enough was absorbed to make the cases dangerous. By hard work the doctor succeeded by midnight in getting the grandmother and the three boys out of danger, but Mr. and Mrs Keller and Schultz remained very lit until morning. Their sufferings were awful, their faces become ghastly white, and their limbs were drawn and twisted by the powerful poison. All the patients were alive at last accounts, and all except Schultz were pronounced out of danger, and he, having battled successfully for twenty-four hours, stands a fair chance of recovery. Mr. Keller, who is an industrious farmer about thirty years old, formerly kept and wallowed over and over in the poison was carefessly placed in the bottle marked "Baking Powder," and
