The Charlotte Observer.

TUESDAY, MAY 4, 1880.

STATE NEWS.

The North Carolina Press Association meets in Asheville on the 30th of June.

The majority of the merchants of Winston will close their stores on Memorial day.

Wilmington is going ahead in the direction of her proposed railroad (or rather tramway) to the Sound.

A young man of Monroe tried to take two young ladies riding in the same buggy. It wouldn't work. All were thrown out and the young man himself considerably injured.

Monroe Express: Who do our Anson friends propose naming for the Senate this year? They are entitled to name the candidate. All we ask is that they give us a good man.

A correspondent of the Monroe Express wants Maj. C. Dowd, of Charlotte, for Congress, and the editor of the Express says he has considerable following, notwithstanding he is making no effort to secure the place.

Raleigh Observer: Judge Tourgee is now at work on a new book, "Bricks without Straw," which will deal with the negro exodus. As the judge is a sort of an "exoduster" himself, he should be able to make the most of his subject.

The Oxford Orphan's Friend says that there are 231 working Mason lodges in the State; members initiated in 1879, 216; died 108; number of Masons reported in good standing, 6,542. This is taken from the report made to the State Grand Lodge of Masons, at its last session.

There is no use in trying to pretend that certain counties have declared for you or against you, when they have done anything of the kind. There is a great deal of difference between a newspaper correspondent writing that a certain county is for Fowle or Jarvis, or anybody else, and a declaration by the convention of the party.

The Wake county Democratic convention was held in Raleigh Saturday. Delegates to the State convention were instructed to vote as a unit for Fowle for Governor, and for Scarborough for Superintendent of Public Instruction. Delegates to the congressional convention were instructed to vote as a unit for Cox.

Wilmington Star: By a private letter received here yesterday by Mr. Hanstein, from his brother in Clinton, we learn that William Gaskin, who shot and killed Jethro Calkin, a week or two ago, mention of which was made in the Star, is still at large, the impression being that he is somewhere in the country. Calkin was a married man and has two small children.

Monroe Express: We have heard very discouraging reports from the growing crop within the last few days. Some farmers report that it has the rust very badly; while the damage from the cold to the early wheat is now said to be much greater than at first supposed. Several farmers have told us that there is a great deal of their wheat which they didn't think would head.

Chatham Record: We regret to learn that a young man named John Lewis, of Handley township in this county, shot himself with a pistol on the morning of that day the family noticed that he ate no breakfast, and shortly afterwards went off with his gun, but still no one thought of his killing himself, which alarmed the family and a search was made for him, and Tuesday his dead body was found about two miles from home, his gun lying by his side with one barrel discharged and a mortal wound in his breast. A love affair is said to have been the cause of his committing the sad deed.

FELL FROM THE SKY.

Finding of a Meteorite in a North Carolina Gravel-Pit.

Prof. Wm. E. Hadden in Morganton Blade.

On the 10th of last July, while Mr. Gray W. Harris was prospecting for gold on his plantation near Lick creek, Davidson county, he found in a ditch a nugget of what appeared to him to be silver. It was covered with a thick scaly crust of iron oxide; weighed two and three-fourth pounds; was pear-shaped, measured 4 1/2 by 2 1/2 inches over its broadest surface and about 1 inch in thickness. Whenever cut or hammered it showed a white metallic mass underlying the red crust, and we cannot blame Mr. Harris for concluding the mass to be silver; more especially as it was a native metal and no other metals but silver, platinum and gold are found native in such large masses.

Accordingly the story went far and wide that a "three-pound nugget of silver" had been found in Davidson county.

Search was made for more "nuggets," but unsuccessfully.

I heard the story as above recorded from Messrs. Robt. Eames, Jr. and Sr., of Thomasville. In their opinion the nugget was iron, perhaps "native iron," which is not of iron, but of a veritable what Mr. Eames, Jr., aptly termed "night sweats." Little beads of moisture would gather on its surface when left for a few hours, which, if wiped away, would soon form again; showing thereby that decomposition was going on in the mass. (In all probability the oxidation of its phosphides and sulphides.)

This last and most important addition to the "silver nugget" story confirmed my suspicion of the mass being meteoric iron, in truth a meteor, whose coming and fall had not been observed. After no little outlay of time and money it was finally brought to New York and is now in the cabinet of the writer; where it keeps company with two others from the South collected within the year. It contains iron, nickel, cobalt, phosphorus, copper and carbon, iron largely predominating. Dr. J. Lawrence Smith, of Louisville, Ky., has his analysis now in hand and it will be published soon. It is one of that rare class of meteorites that do not contain iron, manganese, nickel, and will therefore obtain a wide notoriety among scientific men.

OTHER METEORITES.

North Carolina has been very prolific in meteorites. No less than fifteen different "falls" are recorded and credited to this State. Buncombe, Haywood, Randolph, Rockingham, Nash, Madison, and Davidson counties have furnished meteorites. The Nash county fall (1874) was of stone, not of iron, and weighed 100 lbs. In the last month I have heard of two new ones in this State and have hopes of soon bringing them to light.

The Charlotte Observer chronicled the falling of a meteor in Rowan county in February last, about which, we have as yet heard nothing further. I ask, did it actually fall as recorded?

Meteoritic iron in masses of extraordinary size have been discovered in Brazil. The largest weighs over sixteen tons.

A yet larger mass now exists in the Cascade Mountains in Oregon, U. S., which, when first discovered, was thought to be a ledge of native iron. I regret to write, its exact location is now lost.

WHY THEY FALL.

It is now generally conceded, that these strange bodies swing around the sun, like so many miniature worlds and coming under the attractive force of a larger planet, fall to it. They come from regions interstellar and only become heated, and consequently luminous, in their short passage through our atmosphere.

Kepler believes there are more small bodies lying about in space than there are fishes in the ocean, which seems to find support in modern discoveries.

KILLED BY METEOR.

The story from Kansas, about a man being killed by the fall of a meteor, has been proven untrue by the village paper published where it was said to have occurred. The editor thought it "the unkindest thing ever credited to their town." However, people have been killed by meteorites. Humboldt records a monk killed at Crema, Sept. 4th, 1317; another monk at Milan in 1659; and two Swedish soldiers killed in 1674. Not once in one hundred years will a human being meet his fate from this cause; thousands of years might pass without such an accident happening.

RARITY OF NATIVE IRON.

Terrestrial or native iron is of extreme rarity and is found only in very considerable quantities, only in small grains in the form of iron pyrites, or with native platinum, iridium, etc.

It is generally safe to conclude that any mass of metallic iron found in the soil, is of celestial origin, is a meteorite, and should never be put to any practical use, but carefully preserved in their original condition, for scientific purposes. Buyers can always be found for meteorites. They will bring from ten to one hundred times their intrinsic (iron) value.

THE AIR-LINE RAILROAD.

There is a great deal of talk just now about the contemplated road from Greenville to Laurens, and it is reported that what is said to be good authority, that the Air-Line Railway has offered to furnish the cross-ties and rails if the citizens will do the grading. A similar arrangement has been made with short lines which feed the Air-Line road at different points.

We are informed that the Air-Line road has no interest in an road or route east of Charlotte, and works its own line on its merits without attempting to build up or pull down any particular town or port. The Air-Line, we are informed, has control of the Knoxville and Maryville Railroad and of the charter of the Blue Ridge Railroad in North Carolina. There is a report that the Air-Line road will ultimately build the Blue Ridge road from either Seneca City or Mount Airy to Marysville in order to be able to compete successfully with the Western and Atlantic railroad for Atlanta business, and to secure other business for its main line east and west of the Blue Ridge connection. The officers of the road say that there would be no discrimination in the matter, and that business that gravitated this way would be as free from obstruction as if the road were owned here.

The State Normal School at Chapel Hill.

Baleigh Observer.

Marked interest is taken by the teachers of the State in the next term of this school, and no doubt the attendance will be large, even then heretofore. It is gratifying to know that through the kindness of the Rev. Dr. Sears, agent of the Peabody fund, a sum has been given to assist in paying the expenses of teachers whose own means will not enable them to reach the school. This fund will be applied to the payment of traveling expenses, so that all students may reach the school on an equality. All persons desiring aid will apply to President Battle, at Chapel Hill, by May 15th, and will be able to obtain it may learn in advance what amount will be received. This will be of assistance to numbers of teachers, who would not otherwise be able to attend.

WATERGATE.

The English Hangman on the American System of Killing Murderers.

NEW YORK, April 29.—Among the visitors to the city prison to-day was William Marwood, an English official executioner of England. Marwood is about thirty-five years old, wearing a mustache and side whiskers in approved English fashion, a mild mannered, and in the last man in the world to be taken for a public hangman. He was conducted through the prison and introduced to the more prominent prisoners. He conversed freely with Chastine Cox, and Pietro Balbo, convicted murderers, now under sentence of death, but they were ignorant of his identity. He then asked to be shown the gallows and system of weights used in the execution. He examined them carefully, and pronounced the American system of jerking criminals up in the air far inferior and less humane than the English method.

Marwood said that the American system, in a great proportion of cases, would result in slow strangulation, in addition to affording the spectators a sickening spectacle of the dying man's struggles. By the English system of "the drop," where the trap is suddenly sprung from under the feet of the criminal, the sudden fall, if the noose be properly adjusted, almost invariably breaks the prisoner's neck.

Bayard Taylor's Readiness with Words.

Congdon's Recollections.

His desk was next to mine in the office, which made it convenient for me to apply to him for general information, and to save me the trouble of walking across the room to consult the encyclopedia. Happy the newspaper writer who has such a well-informed associate at his elbow! Mr. Taylor was an infallible resource when one was at a loss for a word, and his taste, especially in poetical diction, was entirely trustworthy. Shall I repeat an instance of his exercise? As I was submitting to his final revision my "Carmen Seculare"—for I wrote about the centennial anniversary of the Republic, as so many of the verse makers, not to mention the real poets, did—objecting was made to the word "flogs" in the line, "From where the sun flogs up its golden seeds." It being determined, greatly against my own judgment, that the word should be omitted, I wandered around in rather a hopeless state asking everybody what I should put in its place. Some were for "drives," others suggested "whips," but when I consulted Mr. Taylor, he instantly said "goads," and a better word than "drives" became less hackneyed and colloquial. This anecdote is related especially for the benefit of those young ladies and gentlemen who write with ease, and forget that easy writing is usually, as Sheridan said, "readfully hard reading." They cannot have a better example than Mr. Taylor. Of course, some of his works are of greater importance than others; some of them have been forgotten, and others are destined to be for their early productions are not to be compared with the ripened fruit of his middle age; but always from the beginning to the end he was painstaking, methodical, a neat as well as a dexterous literary laborer. I doubt if in any of his poems a slovenly line or an intolerable rhyme can be found.

LIFE OF A JOURNALIST.

By one of the Most Noted Members of the Profession.

Watterson in Courier-Journal.

The lot of the journalist, like that of the policeman, "is not a happy one." It is his office, his duty, to say ungracious things. Especially in daily journalism is this part of his vocation both intensified and multiplied in its operations; because he has to think and write upon the ever-revolving edges of current events—under the pressure of urgency—catching a view here and a view there, and putting this and that together into a tolerably consistent raison d'être. Technical consistency he cannot hope to attain. No man is so able, so astute, so ready, so poised, and so sagacious as to catch the very phrase for the fleeting impression of the moment which, to the outer seeming of wisdom and prudence, shall survive the wear and tear of time. All that the best man can hope to compass, all that the greatest ever aims, is spiritual consistency, born of true feeling—the inner light of self-conviction which doth shine afar—the wish, ill-put, perhaps, but still the wish, to do the State some service. The journalist, being himself a veritable slave, and truly of the lamp, has but one genit beneath him, and that is his pen; and if this pen could speak, it would utter of its poor master, and again, these famous and golden words:

"I've writ the foolish fang of his brain. The stammer just that striking bath caused pain; The idle word that he'd wish back again."

"I've helped him to pen many a line for bread. To joke with sorrow when in his head. And make men's laughter when his own heart bled."

"Day after day the labor's to be done. And sure as comes the penman and the sun. The indefatigable ink must run."

An Important Law Suit.

NEW YORK, May 1.—In the suit of Christopher C. Campbell against Postmaster James Horace G. Casswell, Charles Eddy and Samuel R. Cleton, brought to recover the profits arising from the use by the New York post-office of the name of Campbell for the cancellation of postage stamps and stamping thereon with the date at one blow of the hand, Judge Wheeler, in the United States District Court, today handed down a decision favorable to the plaintiff. From the report of the master before whom the testimony was taken, it appears that the defendant James, as postmaster of New York, while the patent was owned by Helen M. Ingalls, has since he patented the invention in the performance of his duties. In January, 1877, the owner assigned her claim to the plaintiff. It also appears from the said report that the profits and gains resulting from the use of the invention to the defendant James, in the sum of $63,000, Judge Wheeler overrules all exceptions made by counsel to the master's report. The report is accepted and confirmed, and a decree ordered entered.

A decree was entered that James pay to the clerk of the court $63,000 from the entry of decree for the benefit of the parties to the suit; $42,000 for the plaintiff; $13,125 for Cleton; $7,000 for Casswell; and $875 for Charles Eddy. Casswell, Eddy and Cleton were made defendants in the suit because they declined to sue with the complainant and were allowed to recover against co-defendant James on equity principles.

Gov. Vance Makes a Speech on the Kellogg Case.

COR. RICHMOND DISPATCH.

WASHINGTON, April 30.—The Republicans were not ready to speak this afternoon in the Kellogg case, and Gov. Vance took the floor and made an interesting and argumentative speech in favor of unseating Kellogg and seating Spofford, as proposed by the elections committee. He said that, as usual, the Republicans went over to a banner with the stars and stripes, or a banner on which is inscribed the lily of France, the double eagle of Prussia, or the lion of Great Britain, but with a sardonic smile on his face he said that the Democrats are about to perpetrate a great crime because they want to purge the Senate of members who have been seated in violation of the constitution and the laws. He was reminded of a case in which a man who stole a horse became a persecuted saint, while the unfortunate owner of the horse became the criminal. Gov. Vance reviewed the testimony with striking effect, and his comments on witnesses who held several offices were characteristic and sometimes very amusing. A number of members of the House from the South were on the floor of the Senate while he was speaking. Without concluding he gave way to a motion to adjourn at 3:20 o'clock, when the Senate adjourned until Monday.

ADVERTISING CHEATS.

It has become so common to write the beginning of an elegant, interesting article and then run it into some advertisement that it is almost impossible to avoid such cheats and simply call attention to the merits of the article in plain honest terms as possible, to induce people to give one trial, as no one who knows their value will ever use anything else.

A CARD.

To all who are suffering from the errors and indiscretions of youth, nervous weakness, early decay, loss of manhood, etc., I will send complete and reliable information, and will cure you. FREE OF CHARGE. This great remedy was discovered by a missionary in South America. Send a self-addressed envelope to the Rev. Joseph T. Inman, Station D, New York City, apt 27—cod17k1w1y
