The Rev. Dr. Talmage yesterday recited his impressions of the disaster on Long Island Sound. The words Anight and a day have I been in the deep, in St. Paul's description of his shipwreck on the Mediterranean, was shipwreck on the Mediterranean, was the preacher's text. Paul, he said, was in the midst of the sea. Whether Paul's ship had been blown to peices by a storm, or had come in collision with another vessel, Mr. Talmage did not know, but the Apostle floated on the water on a plank for twenty-four hours. The perils of navigation were great then, because the sea was so solitary that a ship might float day after day and month after month and not see a sail. To-day, however, in spite af mariners' compasses, lighthouses, storm bucys, fog horns, and bells, the danger to sailors lay in the multiplicity of craft. Any one noticing the innumerable vesfollowers. It will be seen at a glance that the flex. Mr. Furniss, a British derivman from one of whose sermons it is an extract, is a warm disciple of the Miltonic school of theology; id. Merknow how far it is to the middle of the earth—it is just 4,000 miles. So if hell is in the middle of the earth, it is 4,000 miles to the horrible prison of hell Down in this place is a horrible noise. Listen to the tremendous, the horrible uproar of millions and millions of tormented creatures, mad with the fury of hell! Oh! the screams of fear, the groans of horror, the yells of rage, the cries of pain, the shouts of agony the cries of pain, the shouts of agony, the shrieks of despair, from millions on millione! There you hear them roats ing like lions, hissing like serpents, howling like dogs, and wailing like dragons! There you hear the ghashing of teeth and the fearful blasphemies of the devils. Above all you hear the roar of the thunders of God's anger, which shakes hell to its foundations. But there is another sound. There is in hell a sound like that of many oceans of the world were pouring them-selves with a great splash down on the floors of hell. Is it, then, really the selves into hell? No. What is it, then?

ning down from millions of eyes. They cry forever and ever. They cry because the sulphurous smoke torments their eyes. They cry because they are in darkness. They cry because they have lost the beautiful heaven. They cry because the sharp fire burns them. The roof is red hot. The floor is like a thick sheet of red-hot iron. See, on the middle of that red-hot iron floor stands a girl. She looks to be about sixteen years of age. She has neither shees nor stockings on her feet. The door of this room has never been opened since she first set her foot on this red-hot floor. Now she sees the opening. She rushes forward. She has gone down upon her kness upon the red-hot floor.
Listen! She speaks. She says: 'I have been standing with my bare feet on this red-hot floor for years. Day and night my only standing place has been on this red-hot floor. Sleep never came on me for a moment that I might forget this horrible burning floor.

Look at my burned and bleeding feet.

Let me go off this burning floor for one moment—only for a short moment. O! that in this endless eternity of years I might forget the pam only for one mo-ment. The devil answers her question: 'Do you ask for a moment-for one moment—to forget your pain? No, not for a single moment during the never-ending eternity of years shall you ever leave this red-hot floor,"

Beath of Senator Bayard's Father,

James Asheton Bayard, the father of Thomas Bayard, one of the present Senin Wilmington, Delaware, early yester-day morning. Deceased was himself formerly a Senator from that State, and was elected four separate times. He was the son of James Asheton Bayard, one of the most distinguished statesmen of his time, and his ancestors were Marylanders who at one time owned part of the Bohemia Manor, in Cecil county in that State. The first of the American Bayards was Samuel, a French Huguenot, who came to this country in 1647, with a daughter and three sons, from whom all the American Bayards are descended. James Asheton, the venerable gentleman who has just died, was in the eighty-first year of his age. He was first elected to the Senate in 1850. He resigned when the civil war broke out, in indignation at the iron-clad oath, which, however, He took; was re-elected in 1863, and again, to fill a vacancy, in 1860, he and his son, Thomas F. Bayard, being electhis son, Thomas F. Bayard, being elected the same day and occupying contemporary seats in the Senate. James A. Bayard was a remarkable man in many ways, istern in manner, yet of such commanding ability that his constituents esteemed as much as they feared him. He had peculiarly great abilities as a lawyer, and served on the Senate judiciary committee. He was a man of large frame, powerful constitution and very absent-minded ways. tion and very absent-minded ways. During his third term in the Senate, having money to invest, he was offered some of the Credit Mobilier stock by Oakes Ames, but refused to touch it, because he might in some way have to tote on matters connected with it in the Senate. As a lawyer James A. Bay-ard was perhaps the finest legal mind in his native State. He had an intellect of great depth and clearness, without many graces of oratory. He was an "original" Democrat, having first run for Congress in 1828 as a "Jackson man." His reports and arguments on constitu-tional questions always had great weight, and are still cited as authority.

A labama 10 Arkansas 6, Connecticut 1.

Adjacent to the hacienda of Santa Catarina, about twenty leagues to the east of this city, a very remarkable freak of nature has occurred, the facts concerning which we have received from a gentleman who visited the scene. On the 7th institute people of the hacienda were aroused by a startling noise resembling thunder. Upon assembling takes what was the matter, it was soon discovered that a small mountain in the immediate neighborhood had sunk into the earth, and it hood had sunk into the earth, and it must have gone out of sight like a flash. Our informant, with others, made ob-servations, and learned that the aperture thus opened was 650 feet in length, 490 in width, and its depth about 300 feet. It was with great difficulty the rim of the cavern was approached, as all about there were great yawning fissures which threatened to open still fissures which threatened to open still wider. To miss a step there was a danger of finding a grave in the depths beneath. After these brief observations the exploring parties retired hurriedly from the scene, as the earth was trembling and shaking as it upon a balance. This strange phenomena is attuated in the tierra callegte (warm region), and mesquites and palm trees flourish all about. Whenever any parts of the earth along the run of the eavern fell into the depths immense clouds of white dust issued forth. This dust was carried about by the winds and made all the trees perfectly white. Speculation is rife as to whether the mountain sunk owing to the influence of earthquakes, or was the result of gas explosion. It could not be attributed to the former very well, as no shocks were former very well, as no shocks were felt in the neighborhood
