Serenade to Gen. Garfield—His Speech

THE PRESIDENTIAL CAMPAIGN.

Washington, June 16.—This evening a serenade was tendered to Gen. James A. Garfield, the Republican nominee for the presidency, by the National Veteran Association. The portico of the Riggs House, at which Gen. Garfield is a guest, was tastefully decorated with flags and bunting, and the surrounding streets were brilliantly illuminated with calcium lights, while at frequent intervals rockets and other fireworks were set off from the steps of the Treasury Department. As the profireworks were set off from the steps of the Treasury Department. As the pro-cession filed past cheers were given for Garfield, and as that gentleman appear-ed on the platform, accompanied by ex-Secretary Robeson and Attorney-Gener-al Devens, they were renewed. Col. J. O. P. Burnside introduced Gen. Devens, who stepped to the front of the plat-form, and, after a few introductory re-marks sind: "I introduce Gen. Garfield as a scholar who has found the path of learning no primrose path, but has won learning no primrose path, but has won his way along by steady industry; a soldier whose shield is unsoiled, and whose sword is spotless; a statesman on whom rests no stain or dishoner; a Christain gentleman respecting the rights of every man, because he him-self is kind, considerate and self-respect-ing always." [Loud cheers.]

the doctors were nearly as frantic as the people. As a general thing the patient would feel at first a sort of dizziness, lasting for several minutes, which would be followed by a deathly sick-SPEECH OF GEN. Then would come violent purging, which as a rule, lasted for several hours. Some cases were ex-Gen. Garfield said: "Fellow-Citizens-While I have looked upon this great array I believe I have gotten a new idea of the majesty of the American people. When I reflect that wherever you find sovereign power every reverent heart on this earth bows before it, and when I remember that here, for a hundred years, we have denied the sovereignty of any man, and, in place of it, we have asserted the sovereignty of all in place of one, I see before me so yast a concourse that it is easy for me to imagine that the rest of the American people are gathered here to-night, and, if they were all here, every man would stand uncovered and in unsandaled feet in presence of the majesty of the only soverign power in this gov-ernment under Almighty God. [Cheers.] And, therefore, to this great audience I pay the respectful homage that in part belongs to the soverignty of the public. I thank you for this great and glorious demonstration. I am not for one moment misled into believing that it refers to so poor a thing as any one of our number. I know it means your rever-

For all these reasons I thank you. I cannot at this time utter a word on the subject of general politics. I would not mar the cordiality of this welcome to which, to some extent, all are gathered, by any reference except to the present moment and its significance; but I wish to say that a large portion of this assem-blage to-night are my comrades late of the war for the Union. For them I can speak with entire propriety, and can say that these very streets heard the measured tread of your disciplined feet years ago, when the imperilled republic needed your hands and your hearts to save it. It was said the atmospheric conditions which brought it on, and the town is getting in a welcome to one who came to England to be a part of her glory—and all the nation spoke when it was said over its fear and laughing at the queer experience. It is strange that North Adams, six miles away, and in the same valley with Adams, was not affected in the slightest. Adams has been a remarkably healthy town, free from epidemics of all sorts. A Story of Deafness. Philadelphia Times.

It is by most people considered an un-pleasant thing to be deaf, but the strange experience of a deaf gentleman who was a passenger on the Stonington last Friday night shows that there are com-
