Lingering at the Stile.

The leaves are growing ruddy as the sun begins to dip,
The birds are twittering forth their even song;
Little Lucy sits expectant, with her finger to her lip—

What makes her sister Alice stop so long?
There are butterflies and dragonflies all ready to There are daisy chains to weave, there are blackberries to taste;
Why not play about the meadows for awhile? Why linger, linger, linger at the stile?

impatient little Lucy is a simple-witted mite-Her sweetheart days are tuture joys, 'tis clear; Why should Harry keep his arm around her sister's waist so tight? Why make her blush by whispering in her ear?

The sun will soon be setting-Lucy does not love the dark; She does not love the silent bats that filt across the Since we met him Alice might have walked Why linger, linger, linger at the stile?

This dialogue, small Lucy, which seems tedious, as you tarry,
To Alice is a rather serious thing;
For it means that she and Harry have this evening vowed to marry;
It means a cake, lace veil and wedding ring.
And when a little bridesmaid, uncommonly like you, Comes in to church so trippingly all dressed in white and blue, You'll discover as you reach the middle aisle, Why they lingered, lingered, lingered at the stile.

An Arithmetical Omen that Drives the Garfield Bird Out of Sight.

THE OHIO SPARROWHAWK.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, July 12.—The story going the rounds of the Republican papers about an eagle alighting on Gen. Garfield's house at the very moment that he was nominated at Chicago is a very pretty one; but the only foundation for it is the fact that a sparrowhawk rested on the ridge pole for a moment. Possibly he was looking for a Credit Mobilier grasshopper. Admitting the authenticity of the omen, the eagle should have been departing from the house to make the Bornes to the Bor the house to make the Roman augury good. But even then the omen would have been far less ominous than others. Take the letters of the alphabet in their numerical order from 1 up to 26, spell out the name of each candidate and number the letters in their regular order, and we have the following aston-

23 9 14 7 9 5 12 4 19 3 15 20 20 8 1 14 3 15 3 11 215 W I N F I E L D S C O T T H A N C O C K 10 1 13 5 19 1 2 18 1 8 1 13 7 1 18 6 9 5 12 4 154 J A M E S A B R A H A M G A R F I E L D

This a much more striking coincidence than the alighting of a sparrowhawk upon a farm house, which is an almost every day occurrence. What adds to the force of the above remarkable figures is they represent the elec-toral vote and their division between the two candidates. To still further add to the ominous result, we have only to take the following list of States, with their electoral vote, which is sure to be cast for Gen. Hancock:

Alabama, : : : 8 Missouri, : : 15 6 Nevada, : : California, : 6 New Jersey, : 9 6 New York, : 35 3 North Carolina, 10 Connecticut, Delaware, 4 Oregon, : : 3 11 South Carolina, 7 15 Tennessee, : 12 Florida, Georgia, : Indiana, Kentucky, : Louisiana, 8 Virginia, : : 11 8 West Virginia, 5 Maryland, Mississippi, : : 8

While the writer does not pretend that there is anything particularly prophetic in this, it is certainly a singular coincidence. If it needed any strengthening I might state that in 1876 I was an editorial writer on the Pittsburg Post, and taking the names of Samuel J. Tilden and Rutherford B. Hayes and applying the same rule as above it resulted: Tilden, 203; Hayes, 166. The electoral vote was divided between the two candidates in exactly that proportion. tion. The Republican conspirators, visiting statesmen, and 8-to-7 Electoral Commission, stole 8 votes in Louisiana, 7 in South Carolina and 4 in Florida, so as to make the count stand 185 for Hayes and 184 for Tilden. The figures appeared in the Post and other papers in 1876, and were extensively republished. It remains to be seen whether a verification of the same singular coincidence of figures will follow in 1880, and whether the Republican leaders will undertake to steal 31 electoral votes from Hancock in 1880, as they stole 19 from Tilden in 1876.

PLUNDERING THE CLERKS.

The Latest and Boldest Knavery of Local Republicans.

Washington Post. The instinct of the Republican party for plunder is all persuasive. From the Republican congressional committee that arrogates to itself the management of the national campaign to the veriest pot-house politician of the District, who aims no higher than a paltry clerkship, extortion is the alpha and omega of their political knowlege. They regard the officeholder as a species of chattel property, useful only for assessment purposes. The boldest piece of knavery in this line that has yet seen the light is the following circular, which has been sent to the employees of the District:

REPUBLICAN CENTRAL COM., FOR THE DIST. OF COLUMBIA, WASHINGTON, July 16, 1880.

SIR: This committee, composed of three members from each of the twenty-two legislative districts in the District of Columbia, is organized for the protection of the interests of the Republican party; to aid the Republican cause in congressional districts in contiguous States; to provide for the transportation of voters; to circulate suitable decuments illustrating the issues which distinguish the Republican party from every other, and to do such other campaign work as may be assigned it by the national Republican committee. The committee feels authorized to apply to all citizens whose interests or principles are involved in the struggle. Under the circumstances in which the District finds itself placed, the committee believes that you will esteem it both a privilege and a pleasure to make to its funds a contribution, which it is hoped may not be less than $--. The committee is authorized to state that such voluntary contribution from persons employed by the District of Co-lumbia will not be objected to in any official quarter.

It has been decided to hold a mass meeting of the Republican party of the District of Columbia at an early date to ratify the nominations of the Chicago convention. The importance of our position at the national capital renders it necessary that every effort be made to insure entire success. Please make prompt and favorable response to this letter, by check payable to the order of W. B. Reed, chairman of the finance committee, P. O. box 594, Washington, D. C., or in person to any member of the finance committee.

J. M. GREGORY, Sec'y.

Belgium's Independence.

Fifty years ago the little Kingdom of Belgium, coming out of a successful struggle against the house of Orange and Nassau, in the person of Prince William Frederick, made its appearance on the man age of the interest of the struggle and the man age of the interest of the struggle and the man age of the struggle and the struggle and the man age of the struggle and the struggle a ance on the map as one of the independent States of Europe, a position which rather because of its weakness than its strength it has since maintained. For more than five hundred years it had been the fighting ground of Europe, held in succession by the Spaniard and the Austrian, the Hollander and the Frenchman, as the fortunes of war and diplomacy inclined diplomacy inclined. No portion of the world holds within it more battle fields. At one period or another every one of the great nations of the Continent has quartered its armies upon its soil and contended for empire within its borders. In it the most famous generals of modern Europe have contended for the mastery—from Marlborough to Napoleon and Wellington. The history of the past fifty years abundantly justifies the wisdom of the revolution the anniversary of which its people are now so enthusiastically celebrating. In consti-tutional development and in material progress it has grown as no country in Europe has grown. Nominally a mon-archy, it is really more Republican than France, and it is doubtful if there is a single country in Europe whose affairs are more wisely or more ably administered or whose people are happier and more prosperous. The little kingdom and its inhabitants have good reason to rejoice over the position the courage and patriotism of their ancestors con-quered and which they themselves have preserved.

Unwilling to accept the gallantry of these young men, the young ladies preferred to depend upon themselves and formed the association mentioned. Out of revenge the gallants dubbed these independent damsels "old maids," and they accepted the cognomen and made it their own. A humerous constitution and by-laws were drafted by Mrs. C. E. Henry, then a single young lady and one of the founders of the institution. Man was declared the "common enemy," and one of the chief objects of the society was a continued war against his advances.
