Not long since a correspondent of the New York Mail gave an interesting account of the history of the United States flag, in which account it was stated that the first stars and stripes ever flung to the breeze were unfurled in the battle of Saratoga, September 2nd, 1777. The Rome Sentinel reminds the Mail that this is a mistake whic should be corrected, and that the garrison of Fort Stanwix, the present site of the city of Rome, was the first to unfurl Gansevoort's garrison was without a flag. Military pride, indeed, every sense of propriety, would not allow them to dispense with an appendage so proper to a beleaguered fortress. Ne-cessity being the mother of invention, shirts were cut up to form the white of the garrison. This same camlet cloak was taken from a detachment of the British at Peekskill by Col. Marinus Willett, in the spring of 1776, he being then in command of the Third New York Regiment, to which Capt. Swart-wout belonged. There is glory in the flag of our Union, and the honor of first unfurling it belongs to the gallant gar-rison of Fart Starwise, which fought rison of Fort Stanwix, which fought under that flag on the 6th of August, 1777, a day the events of which contrito her humble lodgings at Montmartre or Batignolles. The idea of riding in an omnibus must not enter her head; for while in the lowest rank of her calling she has but a franc a night, and even when grown up and promoted to the "second quadrille," she earns only 700 francs a year or $28. Of such stern material are our entertainments made and .in the no department of public amusements is a more rigid economy practiced than in the salaries of dan-cers. Advancement comes very slowly and there is a great deal of competition for every vacancy in the higher ranks of the profession. Even after the most meritorious and indefatigable labors the native French girl constantly finds herself eclipsed by Russian and Italian dancers. The hierarchy of the dancing world is as narrow and as rigorous as the hierarchy of the army. It bristles with examinations, competitive strug-gles and inspections.

It is considered a great thing to move It is considered a great thing to move up from the "second quadrille" to the "first quadrille," from then the salary is raised to 1,000 francs, or £40, yearly, be-ing just enough, with frugal manage-ment, to keep body and soul together. From the "first quadrille" to the second "coryphees" is a still more vigorous step forward and was rewarded with 1 200 forward, and was rewarded with 1,300 francs a year, or say just £1 a week. The tion of "premiere coryphee" possessing the superb emoluments of 1,500 francs, or £60, a year. Finally, after years and years of nationt study. the domains and of Fort Stanwix Angust 2 277 (1997) years of patient study, the dancing girl attains the summit of her ambition, and rises into a "petit sujet," which gives her an .individuality before the foot-lights. This giddy height of glory and pay, amounting to 1,600 francs, or, in exceptional cases, to 2,000 francs, a year, is the largest reward that dancing stripes, bits of scarlet cloth were joined genius can expect under ordinary cir-cumstances; for the Esslers and Taglio-nis form a class apart. Here and no further can a good dancing girl go, after a blameless youth passed in diligent capers at rehearsals and in public. Hap-pily, there are prizes even in this queer little lottery. M. Halevy was one evening seated in a private room of the late Nester Roqueplan, who was then direc-tor of the opera in Paris. Roqueplan was carelessly turning over some old papers when he came upon a list of the ballet girl of 1838. On reading it care-fully through they found that several of had gone into the choruses of the CHINA PALACE

Opera Comique, one let furnished lodg-ings at Montmartre, another had married a stock broker, a third was the wife of a comic actor. But the last two names which had been written on the faded yellow paper in 1838 belonged, the one to an English peeress and the other to a riche mercer at Dijon. Conkling Dissatisfied with Jewell.
