"A most disgraceful scene," says Vanity Fair, "took place last week at Newmarket, England. A number of ladies of high position and rank, and well known in society, assembled after dinner at the house of one of their num-ber to play baccarat. The hostess took the bank, together with a gentleman of the party: but at her first deal an ob-jection was made to her manner of deal-ing. She dealt again, when another point was raised, and thereupon ensued the most discreditable 'row' that proba-bly ever took place between ladies. Smoking and swearing, the heroines of the affair hurled every kind of uncom-plimentary remark at each other for the space of something like half an hour plimentary remark at each other for the space of something like half an hour to the great fright of such of them as still retained the ordinary timidity of womanhood. At length the 'row' end-ed, but so great an effect was produced by it that it was thought necessary by the hostess to ask an exalted personage to come down and play the next night at the house in order to rehabilitate it and her, which the personage was good-naturedly pleased to do. It is right to add that the hostess herself is said to have acted properly throughout. But the point is that it is a simple disgrace that ladies should gamble at all in this that ladies should gamble at all in this business-like and professional manner; that it is doubly disgraceful that they should gamble as they do with mere paper, and that it is trebly disgraceful for them to adopt scullery manners. While this scene was taking place in-side the house the crowd were engaged in killing a policeman outside, while the doors were not even shut. It re-minds one of the preliminary scenes of the French Revolution."

Women as Engravers.

From the Woman's Journal. At the present time there are only wo women in the United States nota-Sartain had the good fortune to be edu-cated under her accomplished father, whose task of engraving Rothermel's latest picture, the "Battle of Gettys-burg," she lately returned from Europe to assume in part, that he might accept the honorable appointment offered to him. Mrs. Wormley, who first became expert in drawing, devoted herself to the illustration of a large work which her husband, a distinguished chemist, wrote on crystals. After she had fin-ished the drawings they were sent to some Eastern city to be engraved. A difficulty arose—no engraver could be found willing to undertake the micro-scopic work required. It was the opin-tures could successfully engrave them. Thus compelled to finish the work, the wife of Dr. Wormley learned the patter, so f a celebrated scientific treatise. The work in progress of the wood-carving school in Cincinnati, under the direction of Mrs. Pittman, has been highly praised, and will be a unique contribution to the woman's depart. lavender flowers, lavender stockings, ladies say that the old Irish green which has been worn by the servant girls for the last ten years is to come next. The tawdry red and the faded out yellow and blue—such colors as we find in old Mosque rugs—are the next shades. They are called the art colors. They go with the Jersey waist. There is no walking by the ladies in Saratoga this season. The present high heels have ruined the spiace of nine out of ten fashionable ladies, and they are
