THE INVENTORS.

There is no death! The stars go down Some of the Queer Things They are To rise upon some fairy shore, and bright in Heaven's jeweled crown Getting Up.

There is no death! The dust we tread Shall change beneath the summer shower, To golden grain, or mellow fruit, Or rainbow-tinted flow'r.

The granite rocks disorganize
To feed the hanging moss they bear;
The forest trees drink daily life
From out the viewless air.

There is no death! The leaves may fall, The flow'rs may fade and pass away— They only wait through wintry hours The coming of the May.

There is no death! An angel form Walks o'er the earth with silent tread; He bears our best loved things away, And then we call them dead.

He leaves our hearts all desolate

He plucks our fairest, sweetest flow'rs, Transplanted into bliss, they now

The bird-like voice whose joyous notes
Made glad these scenes of sin and strife,
Sing now an everlasting song
Amidst the trees of life. And when he finds a smile too bright, Or heart too pure for taint or vice, He bears it to that world of light To dwell in Paradise.

Born into that undying life, They leave us but to come again; With joy we welcome them the same, Except in sin and pain.

And ever near us, though unseen. The dear immortal spirits tread, For all the boundless universe is life-there are no dead!

ALICE OATES' HUSBAND.

Parting With his Wife in Pittburg After a Little Scene.

PITTSBURG, September 26.-Library Hall, where Alice Oates and party have been playing the past week, was the scene of a little drama not down on the bills yesterday afternoon. The troupe are billed to appear in Cincinnati to-morrow night and N. B. Hodges, advance agent, telegraphed from that point, saying that the newspaper men but that they were down on her husband. Watkins, who is disposed to be jealous of Fitzgerald, the leading support, imagined this was a scheme to keep him away accordingly hied himself to the theatre, fully determined that his wife should leave the company. Charles Randolph Gardiner, the manager, fearing trouble, had policemen back of the scenes to prevent any violence on the part of Watkins, who was threatened with arrest as soon as he made his appearance. Not to be deterred by this, he demanded an interview with his wife, and, forcing his way past the officer, rushed into the dressing room and ordered her to the hotel. She refused to go, when Watkins indulged in language more forcible than elegant. Mrs. Oates returned the compliment in like manner, and for a time the scene was decidedly interesting. Finally he told her to go her way and he would return to Philadelphia, which threat he immediately put into execution, leaving last evening. To-day Mrs. Oates and party took their departure for Cincinnati. Meanwhile there are conflicting rumors of a scandalous nature.

How "Buck" Grant Lost a Wealthy Bride.

The fact has been announced that the engagement between Ulysses S. Grant, of the fatal result which so often follows a few days' neglect.

The inclination to wait and see if the morrow does not bring a better feeling, not infrequently occasions a vast amount of needless suffering, and sometimes costs a life.

A timely dose of Pain Killer will almost invariably save both, and with them the attendant doctor's fee.

It has stood the test of forty years' constant use in all countries and climates, and is perfectly safe in any person's hands. Ir., and Miss Jennie Flood, daughter of the Bonanza millionaire, has been broken. The San Francisco Chronicle says: "The version of Miss Flood's friends is that the former and her mother went to the mountains with the understanding that young Grant should join them in a day or two. 'Instead of doing so he wrote to say that he was sick and could not come until the next day, neglecting to add that his malady was sickness of his bargain. The next day he wrote that his illness continued and he must again postpone his coming. And so it went on from day to day, until the story reached Miss Jennie's ears that her Ulysses was industriously flirting with other women down here. Then she got out her sal volatile and wept, and said he did not care for her and wanted to marry her only because of her money, and she vowed he should never have a single brick, not even a solitary scad, and she broke off the engagement. The version of young Grant's friends is that the wedding was the fancy of the old folks, and that they talked their children into the engagement, while their own inclinations were not over ardent. After obligingly were not over ardent. After oblighingly and finally plighting faith they separated, Ulysses going East and falling desperately in love with another girl. After struggling loyally against the passion for months without weakening its force—in fact, fighting it out on that PALACE line all summer, according to the fami-ly proverb—he resolved to come here in the fall and state the case fairly. This, they say, was his sudden errand here, and he performed his duty."

Henewed Interest in Aprile Explora-

The success of Lieut, Schwatka's long sledge ride to and from King William's Land, and the simple means used by him, have revived the interest in Arctic exploration. Capt. Howgate, not discouraged by the incompetency of the steamer Gulnare, has telegraphed to New Foundland to engage a seal fishing vessel to go due north in the fishing vessel to go due north in the spring, to carry out his plan of explorations. News from Franz Joseph's Land as late as August, and from the revenue cutter Corwin, in Behring's straits, show that the Arctic ocean has been unusually open during the present season at points widely apart. Mr. Leigh Smith's steam yacht, at Franz Joseph's Land, could see a great distance north Land, could see a great distance northward over a clear sea, and says that it ward over a clear sea, and says that it is not impossible to make the voyage to the pole, Capt. Hooper, in the Corwin, found no signs of the missing whalers in Behring's sea. It may be the case that Mr. Bennett's yacht, the Jeannette, profiting by this open Arctic weather, has penetrated into the polar and solved the great problem. sea and solved the great problem,

An Imperial Scandal.

The quid nuncs of the London clubs will have it that the Czar of all the Russias has made haste since his wife's death to take to himself another, a morganatic wife, in the person of the Princess Dolgorouky, who has already been a lady of his household for many years and is the mother of five children, of whom his Majesty is the reputed father. The marriage was privately celebrated three weeks ago, the report says, in the presence of Counts Addlersburg and Milutine and Gen. Baranof. This marriage, the gossips say, is but preliminary to abdication in favor of the

has been properly placed. Clocks can now be made self-winding that is, electric clocks of the Copenhagen variety. Louis Soendenberg, the Dane in charge of them, applies to them a mechanical contrivance which periodically cuts off the stream of electric fluid from the battery, and brings an electro-magnet to bear upon the relaxing maintains in such a way as a reing mainspring in such a way as to renew its tension instantaneously.

A young New Yorker has patented what he calls water skates. The skate is an air vessel and hermetically sealed; is about five feet in length, ten inches broad, and five inches deep, with verti-cal sides, and tapers off fore and aft, or at the toe and heel, like a steamboat. On the deck or upper surface there is a socket into which the foot is set, the opening being guarded by a rim of metal to keep the water from washing into the socket. The bottom is fitted with a double gang of automatic pad-dles, one gang forward and another aft, with five blades in each gang. The blades are set on swivels in a frame ten inches square, that hangs vertically from the bottom of the skate. As the skate is pushed forward through the water, the blades are opened and offer no resistance, but when the foot rests so as to begin a forward movement with the other foot, the pressure back-ward closes the blades and gives a purchase on the water that materially aids in propulsion. Each skate weighs about eight pounds, but in the water, owing to its buoyancy, it has no perceptible weight on the foot. The other day the inventor walked across the surface of the Harlem river on them, the movement being a sort of a gliding step, in which the skate is not lifted out of the

New York Shipping Merchants and

NEW YORK, September 27.-A delegation of fifty gentlemen connected with the shipping interests of this city, went to Governor's Island this morning to wait on Gen. Hancock. On their arrival at the island they were ushered into Gen. Hancock's apartment, and through their chairman, Jas. J. Ferris, presented an address to Gen. Hancock referring to the shipping interests, and hoping for some change for the benefit of those interests. Gen. Hancock said in reply: "I am very highly honored by being waited upon to-day by representatives of various branches of the shipping interest, I am very glad to receive this address which you now present to me. I am much pleased with your visit, if it only be that it has shown to me details of organization that I was not previously familiar with. I will not be able to say much to-day, as I have a cold and am very hoarse. I was fearful yesterday that I would not be able to meet this delegation to-day in consequence of indisposition. I am very glad that I have been able to meet you." The general was then introduced to the gentlemen comprising the delegation, after which the delegation returned to Another Vindication. The opponents of Governor Colquitt in Georgia, are fertile in bringing charges against him, but he successfully refutes them as fast as made. The latest charge is brought by Col. B. C. Yancey, a prominent Georgian, to the effect that when president of the State Agricultural Society, Governor Colquitt failed to account for $7,500 of the funds of the society. But the Governor immediately caused the secretary of the society, Mr. Malcom Johnston, to pubsociety, Mr. Malcom Johnston, to publish a statement showing that this $7,500 was paid into the treasury of the society and properly expended under the direction of the financial committee. This has forced Colonel Yancey to publish a card acknowledging his error and confessing that he had done Governor Colquitt an injustice. The election for Governor in Georgia takes place October 6. place October 6.

A Prosperone Corporation

The annual report of the Georgia Central Railroad and Banking Com-pany, just submitted to the stockholders by President Wadley, shows that ers by President Wadley, shows that corporation to be in a prosperous candition. The total earnings for the year just closed were $3,190,499, expenditures of all kinds $1,652,544, leaving a net revenue of $1,537,934. The gross earnings were $365,943 more than during previous year, whilst the expenditures only increased $36,253, leaving the net income $329,689 more than the previous year. President Wadley says the increased earnings of the road last year increased earnings of the road last year year were, in the main, due to the general prosperity of the entire country and the universal revival of business.
