Easy Lessons in Pronunciation. The boy who studied French at school

Will most politely say
That Garfield owned some stock one time
Of the Credit Mobiliay.

But if in English he would speak, He says, "I greatly fear That Garfield cannot clear his skirts Of Credit Mobilier."

The Western phrase is broader still, For there the folks declare That Garfield took and lied about His Credit Mobilare.

But for my part, I choose to think His standpoint was much higher; I cannot think but Garfield is A Credit Mebilitar.

ls It a Grand Conspiracy.

N. Y. Sunday News, Oct. 3. What honest business have the "Boys in Blue" from New York, Pennsylvania and other States of the Union to transact in Indianopolis, Ind., on Thursday, October 7, five days before the annual election in that State? What have the "Boys in Blue" to do with a local State election, apart from the interest some of them may have in it, as citizens of that State? The questions are pertinent in connection with the published order, purporting to be issued over the name of Gen. U.S. Grant, Commander-in-Chief of the Boys in Blue of the United States, and Drake De Kay, Adjutant-General commanding them, to assemble at the time and place designated—that is to say, at Indianapolis, Ind., on Thursday, October 7. We do not know to what extent Gen. Grant has cognizance of this movement, whether he is in active sympathy with it and proposes to aid and abet it by the force of his personal influence and co-operation, or simply lends it the use of his name without investigating or caring to investigate it. Whatever may be the manner of his implication, the practical effect of the publication of his name to the order as commander of its proposed expedition to Indianapolis, will be to give show of respectability and authority to what has every appearance of being an insidious, dangerous and treasonable con-

Nearly a million dollars has been raised within a few days to carry Indiana and Ohie; and much of it, no doubt, is intended to pay the expenses of the "Boys in Blue," in an expedition to colonize Indiananapolis, and to force upon that city the bought Republican upon that city the bought Republican votes of vagabonds from all parts of the United States, most of whom, no doubt, never did soldiers' duty nor served under the flag of the Union.

The published order over Gen. Grant's name is nothing more or less than the basis of a reckless colonization scheme. There are some pure-minded American citizens who may smile incredu

There are some pure-minded American citizens who may smile incredulously at the idea that such a crime against the franchise should be in preparation; but they would have smiled with similar incredulity four years ago if told that a plot was being carried out to steal the Presidency.

The Republican politicians—for the masses of them we believe incapable of complicity in such villanies—will attempt whatever fraud gives promise of success to win at the October elections.

Democracy is forewarned, and, no doubt, forearmed for that; but it may not be quite prepared to meet in the arena so distinguished an individual as Gen. Ulysses S. Grant as chief conspirator against the elective franchise and commander-in-chief of a colonization scheme.

High as Grant has reached in the military and political history of the republic, we regard him as an exceedingly dangerous man to public safety, for he has given evidence of an inordinate ambition, and of phenomenal stubbornness, recklessness and audacity in seeking the gratification of that ambition.

What he looks forward to, we do not know; but when on the eve of a very important State election, the result of which must have a decisive effect upon national politics, he consents to have his name identified with a published movement, looking more or less like a military conspiracy against the elective franchise, we say to Democracy and to the people; Watch that man, for he, too, may cross a Rubicon and betray the republic that he helped to save.

A Cincinnati Protest Against Sections alignį. Cincinnati has built at a cost to the city of eighteen millions of dollars, the Cincinnati Southern Railroad. The city of eighteen millions of dollars, the Cincinnati Southern Railroad. The motive for making this enormous outlay was to secure a portion of the Southern trade. Such enterprise was laudable and legitimate, and many hopes were based upon it. These hopes were justified by the ability of Cincinnati to meet, from her varied industries, many of the wants of the South. But her merchants are greatly troubled by the extreme sectional tone of the Republican speeches, as well as utterances of the Republican press there, that have been made in Ohio during the course of the present campaign. They feel that such speeches are working them an injury, and are taking steps to counteract them. An impromptu meeting, composed of two hundred of the leading bankers, merchants and manufacturers of Cincinnati, was held at the Burnet House, one evening last week, for the purpose of protesting against the michievous sectional warfare waged by politicians against the Southern people, and by which, they asserted, "trade was being driven away from the city and the usefulness of the Cincinnati Southern Rail road was being seriously impaired." There might be other and better reasons assigned for doing justice to the South than those founded on the injury that the Republican stalwarts were doing to trade with that section: but the ons assigned for doing justice to the South than those founded on the injury that the Republican stalwarts were doing to trade with that section; but the marchants of Cincinnett are howered. merchants of Cincinnati are neverthelies right, even in a business sense, in seeking to put an end to an agitation which endangers their gaining a trade when he has finished one of his distance believed to the second series of the second second series of the second series of the second second series of the second second series of the second se they have sought for at so great an expense. As part and parcel of the above movement a large number of Cincinnati's most prominent business men have organized a club, the purposes of which is to counteract the injury being done the trade of that city with the count by the bloody shirt flaunting of with power. Stock jobbing has attained enormous proportions of late years. The first money article published in a New York paper was in May, 1835, forty-five years ago. Then the stock sales did not reach ago. Then the stock sales did not reach 6,000 shares a day. At present 200,000 shares are considered a small sale, and very often the aggregate of operations exceeds 500,000 shares. Last November the daily sales reached 700,000 shares. During the week ending October 11, 1879, the sales amounted to 2,700,000 shares, representing a par value of $270,000,000. It is thought that in the near future 750,000 shares will be thought a rather slow business.

Bancroft, the Historian, Celebrates Two Events.

On Sunday last the venerable George Bancroft celebrated, at New York, the anniversary of his eightieth birthday and the completion of his great work, the "History of the United States, from the Discovery of America to the Inauguration of the Federal Consitution System in 1789." The tenth volume of the original edition, carrying the history to the end of the revolutionary period, was completed and published in 1874! Mr. Bancroft then devoted a year to the careful revision and condensation of the whole work, which was issued in 1876, in six volumes, as the centennary edition. His later labors have been devoted to the history of the formation of the government of the United States between the years 1783 and 1789, and it is this work, as rounding and completing his history, of which the copy was ready to be given out to the printers on Saturday last. This history, which was begun in 1825, and has just been brought to a close fifty-five years later, has won for Mr. Bancroft the highest reputation as a historian, and although it has not escaped criticism as indicating his Northern bias and as doing scant justice to some of the ablest of the revolutionary statesmen and soldiers, it will probably continue to be the standard history of the United States for many years to come.

[Mr. Bancroft has recently declared his purpose to vote for Hancock. He thinks, perhaps, it will be his last bal-

General Episcopal Convention. Baltimere Sun, Oct. 5.

The triennial session of the General Convention of the Protestant Episcopal Church will begin to-morrow at 11 o'clock a. m., at St. George's Church, in Stuyvesant Square, New York city, and will be presided over by the senior bishop, the Right Rev. Benjamin Boswith Smith, D. D., LL. D., who is now in his eighty-seventh year. The sermon will be preached by the Right Rev. William Ingraham Kip, D. D., Bishop of California, and it is expected that the Bishp of Edinburgh and Bishop Herzog, of the Old Catholic Church in Switzerland, will be present. The House of Bishops, numbering over 60, will meet in the chapel, on Sixteenth street, to robe, and from there will walk in procession to the church. They will all be seated in the chancel, while the House 400 clergymen and laymen, will be assigned seats in the middle aisle of the church. Other seats will be reserved for the standing committee of the dio-cese, professors of the general seminary and rectors of city churches. After the conclusion of the services a lunch will be provided for the House of Bishops in the rectory, and for the House of Deputies in the chapel. At 4 o'clock p. m. the House of Deputies will meet in the Church of the House of Deputies will meet in the Church of the Holy Trinity, Forty-second street and Madison avenue, for the executive session. To the services at St. George's and the sessions at Holy Trinity the public are invited.

Gravesa.

Gravosa, where the allied fleet is now assembled with the object of making a "demonstration" on Dulcigno and compelling the Turks and Albanians to surrender it to Montenegro, is the seaport of Ragusa, one of the most considerable towns in the Austrian province Dalmatia. Ragusa lies at the foot of Mount Sergins, and had in 1870 a population of 8,600. It contains a cathedral built by Richard Cosur de Lion, and is an old city, founded in the seventh century by the Venetians. It was a republic during the middle ages, and in the fifteenth century had 40,000 was a republic during the middle ages, and in the fifteenth century had 40,000 inhabitants. Napoleon's Marshall Marmont got his title of Duke of Ragusa from this place, Gravosa, the outer harbor of Ragusa, is two miles distant, and the other side of the long spit of land which here juts into the Adriatic. It is more commonly called Santa Croce, and has many shipyards and fine villas. The scenery and air here are very charming, and it is a favorite summer resort of Italians, as it was of the Romans in the later empire, and after the time of Divoclesian, whose "cabbage garden" was at Spalato.

Mrs. Langury's Retirement,

It is not remarkable that the bare idea of the retirement of Mrs. Langtry from what is called society should have caused considerable consternation. We are not in the confidence of the lady, and cannot, therefore, affect to determine whether the prophets who predict she will be no more seen in Belgravian haunts, or the unbelievers who scout the nation that society could exist for many months without the light of her many months without the light of her presence, are right. It is, we believe, a fact that the Dean of the Channel Islands (the lady's father) has elected to retire into private life, and has gone to the length of disposing of his household goods. But Mrs. Langtry can hardly hold it to be her bounden duty to follow the Dean into seclusion. If there is any truth in the report that she contemplates such a step it must be, we imagine, that she has reason to fear her star as reigning beauty is, from some cause or other, on the wane. Mrs. Langtry cannot be queen forever.

A Wonderful Preacher. The Lewistown (Pa.) Gazette has the following: "Noah Troyer and wife, of Iowa, and his mother and father from the next morning. He preaches with his eyes closed, is unconscious of all he says, and is a wonder to all who see and hear him. He is unconscious about and his attendants are sojourning in Lancaster county, where his discourses
