manded by the Leading Indepen-dent Republican Newspaper. N. Y. Herald, editorial Oct. 23. On Tuesday morning a Demogratic journal in this city published a letter perporting to have been written last January by General Garfield to a citi zen of Massachusetts, en the question of Chinese labor. The letter was in this form:

[Personal and Confidential.]

House of Representatives, washington, D. C., Jan. 23, 1880. DEAR SIR; -Yours in relation to the Chinese problem came duly to hand.

I take it that the question of employes is only a question of private and corporate economy, and individuals or companies have the right to buy labor where they can get it cheapest.

will always find the latest novelies in DRESS TRIMMINGS. All know that we keep abreast with the Styles in this line. We can show a wary handsome assortment of where they can get it cheapest.

We have a treaty, with the Chinese government which should be religiously kept until its provisions are abregated by the action of the general government, and I am not prepared to say that it should be abrogated until our great manufacturing interests are conserved in the matter of labor.

H. L. Morky, Employers Union, Lynn, Mass. Fancy Dress Goods

Some people may incline to pronounce it a forgery. I have seen it. I am familiar with General Garfield's signature. I have compared it with his letters in my possession, and I have no doubt it is genuine. If it be a forgery, it is the work of a consummate artist; but if I thought, after examination, there was the slightest doubt of its authenticity. I should not refer to it. P. S. -Our Cloak Department has been enlarged thenticity, I should not refer to it. Mr. Hewitt is a Democrat; he is strong partisan; but he is a gentleman, and while of course his opinion is not final on a question of handwriting what he said has a certain weight.

it adviseable to deny over his own name the authorship of the letter, offering, if he had not seen the letter, to telegraph to him at once, and opening the Herald's columns to him for a denial. To this dispatch we have up to nial. To this dispatch we have up to this present writing received no reply. There has appeared in the associated press despatches a very brief report, unauthenticated in any way, that General Garfield had declared the letter a "stupid forgery." From Republican sources in Boston came yesterday the further assertion that no such man as "H. L. Morey" has lived in Lynn since 1873, to which the Democrats reply that he lived outside of Lynn, which may be; and that they are ready to prove his existence if General Garfield denies writing the letter.

We have waited some days to see if General Garfield would make such a General Garfield would make such a denial of the authorship of this letter as we are convinced that he ought to make if he did not write it.

make if he did not write it.

His denial over his own name would, in our opinion, settle the question. It would in any case throw the burden of proof upon the Democrats, who, for political ends, have made it public, and would leave them, until they brought such proof, under the just suspicion of having uttered a forgery.

But it is a mistake in General Gardield to hesitate about a frank and explicit denial in his own name if he did not write the letter. Some of the sentiments in it are strocious and indefensible. If he entertained them last January, or at any time, he is not fit to be President, or benator, or to hold any public effice whatever. If he did not entertain them and did not write the letter, he ought to say so, not at second or third hand, but over his own name. Even if he were not a candidate for the presidency, he should repudiale at once presidency, he should repudiate at once the sentiments imputed to him, and no notion of sham dignity longht to bar

Because here in this letter is no ques-Because here in this letter is no question of immigration or the right of asylum, on which there may be and are fair differences of opinion. This letter considers the importation, not the migration of Chiese; it regards not the people of the United States, but only a small part, the employers of labor; it does not consider the rights of the workingment her they are required. small part, the employers of labor; it does not consider the rights of the workingmen, be they Americans or Chinese, but encourages the greed of those who seek to make money out of their jabor. The letter says: We have a treaty with the Chinese government; and the general government; and this is not merely; harroless but insubitably right. The next clause of the sentence, however; contains what we have orded an attractors sentiment. It is in these words—and I am hot by pared to say that it should be suprogated at the say discussed of the Budden of Recent are conserved in the matter of labor. That is simply a defense of the cooling system, or of a new slave system. The great manufacturing interests are conserved in the matter of labor. That is simply a defense of the cooling the his statement, to have the special privilege of "conserving" themselves by importing Chinese, and to ritroduce here a new form of gets the service of the grige of immigration. We reteat that the grige of immigration with the sentiment of the second of the cooling by this statement form of gets the special privilege of "conserving" themselves by importing Chinese, and to ritroduce here a new form of gets the sentiment of the sentence of the sentiment of t vile labor, under the guise of immigra-tion. We repeat that tieneral charfield, account by such men as Mr. A. S. Hew itt, and later speake r Randall, of having done this, wrongs himself if he does not hasten to deny the charge in I the most positive and explicit manner and over his own name. He has delayed too long The Republican organs are evidently dismayed at his silence. After waiting for sume days several of them have reprinted a passage from his letter of acceptance, in which he speaks fairly enough on the Chinese labor question enough on the Chinese labor question, saying:

Hadaw 1211

The recent movement of the Chinese to our Pacific coast partakes that lead the partakes that lead the coast partakes that lead the purposes or its resulting the labor like an importation to be looked up on without self-citade. We cannot consent to allow any form of servile labor to be introduced among us funder the guise of immigration.

Unfortunately for their candidate that she were other caser so giaringly guilty of the vice of tergiversation that where made public atterned he was nominated has no necessary fellation to his rest thoughts and reflects.

Before he was nominated he denounced in Congress those was not not congress that was not congress to congress that was not congress that sectional and and southern agitation; but after he was nominated he turned about and unitusingly hoisted the bipody shirt, before he was nominated he asserted positively and circomstantially that reform of the civil service was an urgent necessity and that to effect it all interference of members of Congress must cease; but in his letter of acceptance, to the amazement of the public, he turned squarely about and declared that the Executive must seek the advice and recommendation of seek the advice and recommendation of congressmen.

These and other instances, so familiar to the public and to his own supporters that we need not cite them, make any perfunctory, or second hand denials in his case of no force; it is use denials in his case of no force, it is useless for his organs to tell us what he said after he was nominated. What the public has a right to know is wheth er he ever wrote such a letter as that of which he is accused, and on that it needs his personal assurance. If he did write such a letter he is not fit to be President, he ought to resign from the Senate; his support by any party would rightly be fatal to it. The American people do not want a man in the presidency who has even in a private letter countenanced a new form of servile labor.

Gartield's Disputed Letter. Philadelphia Times

H. I. Morey, Employers' Union, Lynn, Mass.

On Wednesday evening Mr. A. S.
Hewitt, a gentleman of character, a personal friend of General Garfield, with whom he had served in Congress, and in a speech in this city concerning this letter said:

Some people may incline to pronounce it a forgery. I have seen it. I am familiar with General Garfield's signamiliar with General Garfield's signature. I have compared it with his let. pronounced the letter a "stupid forgery," but to whom he made the decla-ration or on whose authority the statement is given, the public are not advised. That is not the way Presidenwhen they can meet them boldly, Equally lame is the denial that any such person as Mr. Morey lived in Lynn. If no such person lived there at the time of the date of letter, the fact would have been conclusively established within twelve hours after the publication, and it would not have been left On receiving a report of Mr. Hewitt's for a party organ to give a denial that speech the Herald on Wednesday even- | carries discredit on its face, by an anonable evidence on the point. The official denial which comes along this morning over the signatures of Marshall Jewell and S. W. Dorsey is apparantly more explicit; and yet it is as unsatisfactory as the rest, in that it fails to state by whom these two eminently truthful statesmen are "authorized" to disown not only the language, but the sentiments of the letter. Their denial is made in most emphatic style, with a wealth of expletives most be-wildering; but a much more convincing statement might have been made in much fewer words if it were desired to meet the matter squarely, and that without the need of consulting "experts" on Wall street.

The letter is not one that General Garfield should deny, as it is in exact accord with his record in Congress for fifteen years on the Tariff question, and in complete harmony with his positive record on the anti-Chinese bill in 1879.

The record and the letter are in entire harmony with each other, and if General Garfield rejects the letter, he cannot do so on the ground that it does not express his views, as: that would bring him in direct conflict with his

The North American takes the sensi-ble and candid view of the question. It assumes that General Garfield's denial is to be credited, as most persons would credit it if made in any authentic way; but it says;

There was certainly no reason why
Mr. Garfield should deny the authorship of that letter if it was really written by him. It takes a perfectly sound and rational view of the queston to which it refers, for no one will deny that the employer of labor has a right to buy it as cheaply as he can, just as the workman has the right to charge as much as he can get for his labor and skill. The forgery is stupid, indeed.

It would, indeed, be a stupid forgery to fabricate a letter that simply reiterates General Garfield's recent record in Congress on the question, and the North American treats the matter in the only way that is likely to command public
