Philadelphia Times.

While the New York and Boston papers have been publishing requests for contributions to a fund for the oldest living ex-President, a number of gentlemen of this city have quietly raised between themselves the handsome sum of $100,000, which will be presented to General U.S. Grant at an early date. This latter movement is entirely distinct from the others, and has been conducted by a few personal friends of the ex-President with a view of expressing their esteem for his ser-of expressing their esteem for his services to his country in a substantial manner. A few days after the last November election a gentleman of this city, who is well known as one of Gen.

Grant's warmest friends, but who does not desire his name mentioned, con-ceived the idea of presenting him with a substantial token of his regard. He mentioned the matter to two other friends of the General, one of whom is a leading banker and the other a promi-nent railroad company's ex-president, who coincided in his views at once. As the gentlemen knew that there were many other friends of the ex-President who would be desirous of joining with them it was decided to raise a fund of $100,000 and to receive contributions in sums of not less than $5,000 from each person. The plan was quietly made known to a few others, and in a short time it became difficult to prevent some of them from subscribing the whole amount. Upwards of $20,000 were raised in a short time by means of appeals to the public through the columns of the New York Times, and it was subsequently made known that four gentlemen in that city had agreed to contribute the entire sum of $250,000, if desired. To the Editor of the Phila Times.

To the Editor of the Phila Times.

We desire your information upon a very important and practical question. Within forty miles of Fayetteville we have some of the finest coal beds in the world. During the late war they supplied the Confederacy with the greater part of its coal. Within thirty miles of Fayetteville we have a bed of the finest hematite iron one. Both the coal and iron beds are within easy water communication with Fayetteville by the Cape Fear river. At present coal mining is almost entirely and iron mining partially abandoned and our people engaged in raising cotton. We wish, however, to diversify our industries and to develop our mining and manufacturing interests (vide Senator Dawes on protection,) but owing te the destructive competition of the Pennsylvania iron men we cannot find it profitable to mine and manufacture our iron. Now, te get rid of this competition, we propose that our Legislature at its next session shall pass some law protecting the mining and manufacturing industries; of our State against all outside competition. Now, we wish to know: First, whether such a law would be right and constitutional? and if so, secondly, what would be the best plan to attain the desired end? and if it is not right and constitutional, thirdly, why it is wrong for North Carolina.

it is not right and constitutional, thirdly, why it is wrong for North Carolina to be protected against Pennsylvania but right for Pennsylvania to be protected against England? It is as hard for us to compete with Pennsylvania as it is to compete with England, so we gain nothing from the protection afforded by the common government.

afforded by the common government.
Please answer editorially in your weekly.

Fayetteville, N. C., Nov. 25, 1880.
[1. Such a law would be of doubtful constitutionality and it would not be right even if constitutional. North Carolina is just as fully protected in the development of her iron and coal as is Pennsylvania, and if her manufacturing interests are not advanced, it is the fault of the people and not the fault

2. There are two remedies for the ment of coal and the manufacture of iron, but that is not likely to be acceptable to the people who would thus be compelled to pay more than their just share of taxes. In Pennsylvania the discrimination in our tax laws is the other way. Our coal, iron and other corporations pay all the State taxes and our land-owners are exempt. The only other remedy, and the proper one under all circumstances, is to make iron and furnish coal cheaper or as cheaply as Pennsylvania can, and that can de done if you have the facilities you claim. You have a better climate and cheaper labor, and if you have the coal and the iron, you want only capital, energy and good business direction to supply your own people and send your surplus to Pennsylvania and undersell our producers. You don't need local laws to bedy and soul, over his large congregation. Brudder Barber's word was law and gospel unto his followers, and none ever dared to question his authority or dispute his away. Vehement, magnetic and powerful, one swing from his long arms and a dhant from his strangely musical voice would set a hundred sisters swaying their bodies to and fro and as many brothers keeping time to the weird rhythm with beating feet; in awful interest the sermon would grow, a medley of declamation and rebitative, until one wild, dearing cry brings to a climax the ecstalic loy in shouts and trances and moanings. Last summer the preacher died and fils friends and followers refused to be comforted. He was honored with burial rights beyond precedent, and such a funeral was indeed seldom seen. The deeds and memory left by the good paster were not sufficient for his members and not comforted with these they have set up a sort of graven image, so to speak, of Barber, which is placed above the pulpit of his principal church. The image itself is the work of the crudest art, made of white and black cotton cloth, stuffed with staw and painted with charcoal. To an unbiased critic it looks more like a scarecrow set up to frighten hawks than anything else; but a devout member informed the writer it was a very striking like mess of the deceased. county, which is singularly peculiar and at the same time very suggestive of an interesting chain of ethnological points. Lewis Earber, a colored preacher of the Baptist denomination, had in his charge a membership numbering, perhaps, three thousand, making up his four churches. He was a typical specimen of the negro clergy, and wielded almost an absolute power, body and soul, over his large congregation. Brudder Barber's word was law and gospel unto his followers, and WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—The chief of the secret service to-day received a let-

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—The chief of the secret service to-day received a letter from a cotton and commission merchant in Holly Springs, Miss, staffing that he was one of the victims of the fraudulent operations of Charles E. Anchisi, who represents himself as a secret service operative in search of forged bonds, and who has, as mentioned heretofore, duped a number of persons to the extent of thousands of dollars. The writer encloses a description of the impostor as follows: Anchisi also goes, under the name of Charles Archer; he is about 5 feet 10, has a bald head, black eyes and hair, and a small moustache; wears a suit of plain broad cloth and a soft black hat. He also wears a gold hand on one finger with engraved hieroglyphics upon it. He speaks English with a strong forceign accent, is about 45 years of age and uses eye classes when reading. Chief Brooks has information that Anphisi, has fraudulently obtained eleven hundred dollars from one person and four hundred for Anchisi which were drawn on dif-ferent banks in Cincinnati. During his star in Holly Harings Andhisi re-ceived a telegram from New Orleans which leads to the suspicion that he has an accomplice in that felty. No less than 5 fraudulent checks were recently presented at a Cincinnati bank fit one day coming from various sections of the South and all drawn by Anchisi. Deputy Sheriff A. V. Davidson of New York, writes to Chief Brooks that he is very anxious to recover possession of Anchisi's body. Sheriff Davidson had Anchisi's body. Sheriff Davidson had Anchisi's under arrest in July last for similar operations in New York City, but he succeeded in making his escape before his examination took place.

PIPTSBURG, Dec. 2.—A thrilling accident occurred at the American Iron Works, on South Side, this afternoon, While Robert Moore was at work at his rolls his catcher failed to seize with his tongs a bar of white-hot iron which had been placed between the rolls. The iron twisted itself thrice around the rolls, forming a "collar." The catcher struck the iron, when there blew off a piece in shape of a ring with a stem twenty inches long. Running off at right angles to the circle the band flew back and fell around Moore's head, resting on his shoulders. Quick as thought he grabbed the long stem with his tongs and the white hot ring with his hand, and with steady nerve and gentle movement lifted the first thing from his shoulders. His face was badly hurned by the heat emitted from the fron and the flesh of his hand was out into the the flesh of his hand was out into the bone. Afterwards he put the ring over his head. It was but two inches larger in diameter than his head.
